National Tennis Championship To Be Held at Central State

DANVILLE, Va.—The American Tennis Association has set August 19-26 as the dates for its annual national tennis championships to be held on the campus of Central State University. Officials to the ATA expect a record number of players to participate. Expected to return to the nationals are all defending champions in all events. Wilbert Davis of New York City is expected to return to seek another Men's singles' title as well as Miss Bonnie Logan of Durham and Morgan State College, will seek another women's singles' title. Other champions expected to return, Louis Graves, Detroit, men's senior singles, John Mudd and Arthur Carrington, Elizabeth, New Jersey, Miss Sylvia Hooks and crowd pleasing Edgar Lee of Washington, D. C. and outstanding players of the 1967 championships Linwood Simpson of Willington. In addition to the tennis tournament many affairs and events are planned for the non-tennis player. There will be golf, ping pong, billiard, bowling, bridge and pinocle tournaments with trophies going to all winners. Swimming in the beautiful Central State University swimming pool will be held nightly.

Tournament players will stage their annual fashion show modeling fashionable sport and evening wear as well as tennis attire.

The American Tennis Association is composed of tennis clubs and association across the United States, Canada, Nassau and Bermuda. Many of the champions will qualify to play in the USLTA National Championships at Forest Hills in September.

MEL JONES

Denver Rockets of ABA Signs Mel Jones, 14th Draft Choice

ALBANY, Ga.—"He could be the Bill Russell of the ABA." That's the way the Denver Rockets' coach, Bob Bass, described the Rockets' latest signee, Mel Jones, a 6-9 frontliner who led Albany (Ga.) State College to a 57-14 record over the last two seasons. Jones hauled down 920 rebounds in 40 games during the past season for a 23.0 rebound average to rank seventh in the nation among collegiate performers. The McGeehee, Ark. native was the Rockets' 14th draft selection. He was also the 8th draft choice of the NBA Philadelphia 76ers.

In four varsity seasons, Jones gathered in 2,061 errant shots for a fine pre-game average of 17.7, bearing out Robert Rainey's, his college mentor, words that "he goes to the boards like he owns them."

Jones, while lacking impressive scoring credentials, (10.7 point career average), has the Rockets' eyes popping over his ed shots per game. Bass, the Rockets' coach, spotted Jones two years ago in Kansas City when the then-junior led his Albany State "running, gunning" Rams into the famed small-college tourney. Rockets' General Manager Dick Eicher scouted Jones in the same tourney this past March, and was equally impressed. "Our club was ninth in the League (ABA) in rebounding last year," Bass said, "but a strong youngster like Mel Jones could reverse our standing in this vital department." Witness to Bass' words is the fact that as a junior, Jones blocked 59 shots in 31 games.
