LDF Challenges Supreme Court With U.S. Study

WASHINGTON, D. C. — A comprehensive study showing high death penalties for Negroes involved in rape of white women was presented to the U. S. Supreme Court this week.

The study is part of the defense of a Negro man on death row.

This unusual challenge was made by the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc. (LDF) attorneys, who asked the High Court to reverse the death sentence of Arkansas Negro inmates, William L. Maxwell.

Maxwell was sentenced to the electric chair in 1962 after an all-white jury found him guilty of raping a white woman.

The study used in the case is based on the investigation of 2,500 rape cases in 225 counties of 11 southern states.

Noted criminologist and statistician, Dr. Marvin E. Wolfgang of the University of Pennsylvania, who headed the study said, "On the basis of the foregoing findings, it appears that Negro defendants who rape white victims have been disproportionately sentenced to death, by reason of their race, during the years 1945-65 in the state of Arkansas." ## Boycott Not To Be Called Off Says Burt

"We're not going to call the boycott off...until the spirit of the city of Durham that is embodied in the tune, 'Dixie', is done away with... Dixie and all its meaning must go if there's to be peace in the Valleys of this Southland."

With those words at Sunday night's mass meeting of the Black Solidarity Movement in Durham, attorney Moses C. Burt endorsed the protest of black students at Durham High School against the playing of the tune "Dixie" at public functions.

The crowd of boycott supporters at the meeting at New Bethel Baptist Church strongly applauded attorney Burt's support for the protest.

Last week a group of black students at the school protested to the principal about the use of the tune at school functions. The principal then "suggested" to the band director that "Dixie" should not be played at last Friday night's Durham High football game.

Later certain white students at the school objected to the principal's action, saying they wanted use of the tune to be continued.

The Durham Morning Herald and The Durham Sun both published stories giving these white students' side of the controversy, and the Morning Herald even published an editorial supporting the use of "Dixie."

Sunday night, attorney Burt and two other speakers joined the Durham High black students in support of the protest against "Dixie." The crowd of boycott supporters expressed See BOYCOTT 10A
