Rencher Nicholos Harris

Friends and relaitves of the late Rencher Nicholos Harris who were fortunate enough to be present at the dedication program of the new elementary school here Sunday, October 13, which bears his name, were compelled to be moved by the many tributes paid the honoree and fine things said about him. It was one of those occasions when one feels so regretfully that the person being honored or praised is not present to hear the remarks of praise and tribute being paid him or her.

Too often, as has so befittingly been said, a majority of us humans wait until one is unable to smell the fragrance to hand him his flowers. Thus Sunday's dedication of the R. N. Harris Elementary School must, in spite of all its good intents and purpose, be recorded as most approprivate for the edifice but too late

For those who knew Rencher Harris, personally, no finer man or citizen ever lived or walked this earth. For those who were fortunate enough to cultivate his friendship the memory of his integrity, devotion and manhood will never be forgotten. Rencher was no hypocrite, Rencher was honest to the core; he could be depended upon in an hour of a crisis.

We think it most fitting that the City Board of Education and other city officials have endeavored to perpetuate the memory of one of Durham's most beloved and respected citizens by naming a school building in his honor. It is our hope that his photograph and his name will forever be an inspiration to the students and faculty member of the R. N. Harris Elementary School.

Another Register and Vote Appeal

From the A. Philip Randolph Institute in New York comes an appeal to the black people of this country to register and vote in the Novemher 5 General Election that is so similar to our editorial of last week, on the same subject, that we are taking the liberty to publish below the Randolph appeal in its entirety.

Under the title "The Importance of Black Registration and Voting" the statement had the following to "The results of the November election will affect black Americans for the next hundred years.

The election may well determine whether the United States will be torn into two nations-one black and one white-or whether we will become one nation with justice for all

Social and political justice spring from economic justice. And economic justice must be pursued through political action. The solution to the problems of decent housing, quality education, full employment, proper medical care and adequate income depends on whether we can now elect an Administration and a Congress dedicated to voting the necessary funds. To achieve this is a political job involving political action on the part of black Americans who in many areas can hold the balance of power in this election.

Under these circumstances, any effort to opt out of the political process'is a form of political suicide. We urge black people to reject the 'let's go fishing' concept. We urge them to register now! We urge them to vote in Novemer!"

So important is the matter of registering and voting that we would like to suggest that every secret order, club or civic organization of black people, with possibly the exception of the church, make it a requirement for membership that any and all applicants must first be registered

With only two more Saturdays left before the registration books close we urge the ministers in every black church next Sunday to impress upon their members the necessity of registering and voting in the General Election on November 5. Especially do we urge them to seek out any and members of their respective churches who have not registered and impress upon them the importance of their vote in all elections as well as that of November 5.

Textile Employment for Negroes

The Carolina Times is of the opinfon that it is high time for Negro citizens of North Carolina to bestir themselves and make a determined effort to obtain employment in the textile industry of this state. As was pointed out in an article, published in last week's issue of this newspaper, the textile industry in North and South Carolina furnishes 44 per cent of the manufacturing employment of the people of both states. As usual an overall investigation will reveal that black citizens of both states are for the most part always on the outside looking in.

Under title VII of the Civil Rights Act the textile industry cannot legally exclude an applicant for employment because of race, color, religion, sex or national origin. With this in mind it is our hope that a determined, if not an organized effort, will be made to secure more eimployment for Negroes in the textile industry which in the end will serve to better the economy of both the Carolinas as a whole, which in turn will better the welfare of all the citizens.

The sooner a breakthrough can be achieved in the textile industry and other fields, where blacks have here- ministrator, warned that "the tofore been excluded, the better. Along with the above comes the matter of upgrading blacks in all American business. Negroes areas of employment on jobs with and other minorities account whites. The general practice of setting aside certain employment and upgrading of the white employes only must be abolished here and now if peace in the valley is to be expected in the future. In short, black citizens have reached the point where only full citizenship and the human dignity that goes with it will be ac-

Negroes MUST Vote

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey the disadvantaged, to register and vote this year for candidates and policies which will correct inequities in our society.

"The way to correct any inequity, the way to change any policy that is wrong is not in the streets, it is not out there through violence or even loud demonstration. It is through the peaceful political processes," the Vice President

"Ballot power is real power."

The U. S. Bureau of the Census estimates that in 1964 only 43 percent of those with family incomes of under $5000 and only 61 percent of those within the $3000 to $4900 range used their votes to elect a President and help determine national policy. In contrast, 81.5 per cent of those in income ranges of more than 10,000 voted.

Among black Americans of voting age, only 58.5 per cent voted in 1964, while 71 per cent of the potential white elec-terate west to the politic.

"I believe that there is not a single inequity in the country that we cannot change through the peaceful political processes if we set ourselves to the task," Vice President Humphrey said. He urged action "to get people register-ed and then politically informed."

"They will make their own choices. I'm not sure how they are going to vote, but one thing I do know is they ought to

"No candidate can sit back and count in the support of the poor and the black oters," the Vice President said. "I want to earn and merit it."

Humphrey said he thought he deserved and would get strong support in the

Black, White Allies

ONE OF THE REASONS black people are questioning the sincerity of their liberal friends, is the refusal of many liberals to place the problems of the black man at the top of their list of priorities.

Black people are busy trying to survive in an increasingly hostile society. They are concerned with the basic, gut issues of feeding their kids and finding decent homes and tobe.

But the minds of white liberals and radicals are occupied with other things — Vietnam, changing university administrations, and protecting their own vested interests. We see this attitude among frustrated liberals who say they will sit out this election — no compromises for them. They say they want to spend the next four years reorganizing the Democratic Party, and they won't sully themselves by voting for any of the major candidates.

Can't Afford To Be High-Minded

But black voters can't afford to be so high-minded. For us, the next dour years could mean life or death. We've got to live in rotting ghettos and we have to send our kids to schools that don't teach our kids. We can't throw away our hard-won political rights by not voting, especially in such a crucial election year.

The school decentralization fight in New York is another example of the way many white people ran out on the black community when they thought their own interests were in-

For years they've been giving lip service to how bad the schools are, but when the Ocean Hill-Brownsville school district representing black and Puerto Rican parents got into a hassle with the teacher's union about the transfer of a handful of teachers who weren't sympathetic to community control, many white people put their own sympathies with unionism ahead of the needs of black kids and the black community.

Campus rebels offer yet another example of the failure of white radicals to communicate with black people. They are quite willing to use issues of importance to the black community among the issues around which they organize demonstrations and protests, but that's primarily to attract brack students to their banner.

When the cards are really put on the table, the life and death issues of importance to black people take their place behind Vietnam, the CIA, or other concerns.

Disciplined Black Students

Black students have shown a discipline and a maturity far exceeding that of white student rebels Last Spring, during the Columbia University "rebellion," black students had to organize a separate demonstration of their own to protest the university's callous attitude toward its Harlem issues of the war or the draft.

Other allegations were that voters in Martin county were prevented from using sample ballots as a guide in voting and that Bertie county law of ficers stationed at precinct registration places copied down the auto license num bers of Negro registration campaign workers.

Edwards also said at one Bertie county precinct an of-ficer had a dog which tended to intimidate registrants.
