

Self-Cleaning Ovens Highlight New Ranges

Panels from the eye-level oven all can be cleaned electrically in the self-cleaning master oven of this new Hotpoint Hi/Low Hallmark range, Model RHV786.

Hotpoint has introduced a 36-model line of electric ranges for 1969, with the self-cleaning feature in every basic type of range.

Self-cleaning ovens are available on drop-in, slide-in, 30-inch cabinet, 40-inch cabinet and hi/low models.

Also available for kitchen modernizing are eight range hood, five electric surface sections, and 10 wall ovens, including three models with the self-clean feature.

Star of the new Hotpoint line is a double-oven Hallmark

Hi/Low range that is a complete cooking center in itself. Among its many convenience features are a Rota-Grill Rotisserie, which cooks meat up to one-third faster than by roasting, a two-level exhaust system to remove vapor and cooking odors, and a high-speed automatic surface unit with thermostatic control to maintain selected temperature. Infinite heat controls for the surface units permit selection of an infinite variety of heats to serve all cooking needs, while a Roast Right meat thermometer in the master oven alerts the homemaker when her roast has reached the desired degree of "doneness." The flexibility provided by two ovens enables the homemaker to confidently prepare any type of meal, from a brunch to a banquet. Removable panels in the eye-level oven can be quickly slipped into the master oven to be cleaned electrically. The new Hi/Low range also adds an attractive stylized to any kitchen. Oven doors feature opaque black glass which become "see-through" when the oven light is turned on.

Black Capitalism Essential Says President of Business League

WASHINGTON — Berkeley G. Burrell, President of the National Business League stated in a private interview recently that Black Capitalism is a reasonable objective designed to fulfill one of many imperative needs required to qualify black people for equitable inclusion into our society as it exists today.

Criticism of the concept, according to Burrell, results from a failure to recognize the nature of the problems in which we are involved. First, there is the problem of inequities which are the result of racism. Black Capitalism has as its objective the elimination of these racial inequities as they affect black participation in ownership and management.

Secondly, there are those problems of capital diffusion and income distribution. This problem is common to white and black people. It is not associated with race. It is the result of an economic system which is weighted in favor of those who have. The solution to this problem is in bringing about changes in the economic system which will effect equitable distribution of income and wealth and eliminate poverty.

To be a success in business requires an adherence to those proven principles and practice which are essential to earn a profit. It is unrealistic in the extreme to expect black entrepreneurs to increase the high probability of business failure by violating those principles in an effort to effect economic change. The problem of overcoming those barriers solely attributable to racism are in themselves virtually insurmountable for the black entrepreneur.

The NBL's concept of Black Capitalism does not exclude joint ventures between black and white owners. It certainly does not exclude or ignore the absolute necessity for strong positive action in the areas of economic development, community development, multiple ownership and race relations.

Businessmen (capitalists) provide the real leadership in our country. Our politics, our economy and virtually all other aspects of our existence come under the influence of capitalists and entrepreneurs. It is their money and their power which determine what happens in our country. Capitalists direct and control our governmental institutions.

If, in our current system, black people hope to acquire real influence and assured relevant responses to our needs, we must acquire the tools of influence. Those tools are land, labor, capital and business enterprise.

Black business leaders must use their influence to effect those social changes essential to the well-being of the total community and the whole country. In striving for economic inclusion, the NBL is making its contribution to achievement of the overall objective of social justice.

Build True Academic Community Urges Dr. Dowdy of A&T State

GREENSBORO — Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, president of A&T State University, last Tuesday called for the building of "the true academic community" on the nation's colleges and universities.

"There must be a desire on the part of all to have open, continuous dialogue without allowing differences of opinion to block the communication's arteries," said Dr. Dowdy in the principal address at A&T's 78th Founder's Day observance.

Dr. Dowdy called for respect for every individual in the academic community. "We must not have open season for unfounded criticism and disrespect without first trying to know the facts," he said.

"If we are to write the kind of history which will stand up as a beacon light for generations to follow," Dr. Dowdy added, "we must be mature enough to approach our freedom with responsible behavior. We can ask no one to build our ideal academic community for us. We must do it ourselves."

We are drawing near that season when families—by the thousands—start planning their move to a new home. As a result, my mail at Allied Van Lines is getting heavier. And I thought it might be a service to some harried housewives if I passed on some of the questions I am asked most frequently—plus my answers.

Q. Isn't it wise to save space in larger packing containers by filling in the corners with smaller items?

A. Generally not, if you're thinking about the containers used for lamps and large mirrors and those used as wardrobes. The smaller pieces might be overlooked in the unpacking and thrown out with the container.

Q. If the move isn't too long a distance, is it feasible to pack food for moving with the other belongings?

A. Yes, if you're sure it's the type that will keep. Remember that moving vans can become pretty warm. Also, be sure you don't pack soap; furniture polish; medicine; cleaning compounds or other inflammables in the same carton with groceries.

Q. Can I leave clothing and other items in bureau drawers? A. Yes, but be sure you check those drawers for valuables. Household goods movers will not accept responsibility for money, stamp or coin collections, documents, jewelry, watches or precious stones.

2 Educators and Journalist Honored for Relations Effort

SALISBURY — Two educators and a journalist were honored last week by the Salisbury-Rowan chapter of the National Conference of Christians and Jews for their outstanding efforts in the field of race relations in Salisbury and Rowan County.

Chosen for the top NCCJ brotherhood awards were O.K. Beatty, head of the biology department at Livingstone College and a member of the Salisbury City Council; Jesse Carson, Rowan County school superintendent; and Mrs. Rose Post, veteran education and feature writer for The Salisbury Post.

The three were presented the awards at the annual brotherhood awards banquet at First Methodist Church, marking the first time in the history of the awards program that three individuals were honored and the first time that a woman was among the honorees.

Beatty, a Livingstone graduate with a master's degree from Columbia University and a doctoral candidate at Duke University, is the first of his race to be elected to the Salisbury City Council. He is serving his first term. He has served on the Livingstone faculty since 1948.

A native of Spartanburg, S. C., Beatty is a trustee at Rowan Technical Institute and a board member at Moore's Chapel A.M.E. Zion Church. He is a member of the city recreation commission and the Citizen Advisory Committee.

"His election and service on the city council," said Bill Stanback in making the award, "transcends race as do his relationships with his fellowman. He was elected to the council promising to represent all citizens with no special favors to anyone. He was elected by all the people and has served all the people."

Mrs. Post has been a reporter for The Post for 17 years and has specialized in covering educational affairs and writing features on personalities, many having to do with racial and human relationships. Mr. Carson has been county school superintendent here since 1965 and has taken a leadership role in public school desegregation. His efforts to give all children in Rowan County the best education possible has made him the target of Klan activities.

Recent Study Shows Who Buys Ordinary Life

For Release March 10, 1969

Ordinary life insurance—issued in amounts of $1,000 or more and based on an annual premium—is the most widely-owned type of life insurance today.

A total of $95 billion of ordinary life was purchased in the United States during 1967. Who are the people who bought that amount of protection for themselves and their families during that 12-month period?

The Institute of Life Insurance reports that:

- About $62 out of every $100 of protection was purchased by people under 30 years of age, the same as the previous year.
- While the average size policy bought by nearly all age groups rose, the biggest increase was among the 35-39 age group. New policies purchased on the lives of people in this age span averaged $16,870, or $1,980 more than in 1966.

All Buyers

- Among all buyers, the average size new policy increased to $10,590, from $9,910 in 1966.
- The average size policy among adult men was $14,750, compared with $13,840 during the previous year.

The figures are based on the Life Insurance Agency Management Association's annual "Buyer Study" of ordinary life insurance purchases.

The study also revealed that:

- The average size policy of executives, managers and proprietors was $24,660. Clerical and sales people bought an average size policy of $11,100.
- The relationship of life insurance buying to the income of policyholders showed minor changes. In 1966, about 49 per cent of the new insurance on adults was bought by people with incomes of less than $7,
