So You Are Planning A Church Supper

When putting on a church meal, special attention needs to be given the dining room. You'll want to make it as attractive as possible, for the least amount of money. Fresh flowers when donated are always nice; otherwise they are rather costly. Long branches from flowers shrubs in season or beautiful leaves make a very good show, if arranged attractively.

Fruit or vegetable arrangements or a mixture of both are responsible.

Candles on the tables and around the room are flattering and create a charming atmosphere. Bright-colored cloths can be very effective. No matter what you choose for the centerpiece, it should be low enough so the guests can see over it, and not interfere with conversation.

These attractive tables have to be set now with glassware, silver, napkins, pitchers of water, butter, salt and pepper, ect. Everything but the food can be placed on the table beforehand. It's always a good idea to have a service station set up in the dining area—a table on which to keep extra plates, silver glasses, and water. This saves running back and forth to the kitchen during the meal service.

Before the guests arrive, be sure there are enough chairs to seat everyone. Place the chairs so that you can seat the maximum number of people in comfort.

There can be no mention of a large dinner without calling attention to the cleanup crew. It's a good idea to decide on who's responsible for this task at the same time you plan the dinner.

NCCU Placement Officer Has Unusual Success With Grads

Frances Hairston, who graduated from North Carolina Central University in June, has begun a career in computer programming with E. I. DuPont de Nemours, and Jasper Nance, also a June graduate will work in quality control with the same firm.

Miss Hairston, an honor mathematics student from Lexington, and a graduate of Dunbar High School in Lake View, S. C., are two of eight NCCU graduates who were employed by DuPont this year. Four other seniors were offered employment by the firm. Salaries offered to graduates of the Durham institution by DuPont ranged from $7,200 a year to more than $10,000 a year.

Lindsay Merritt, Director of the university, has just received a comprehensive report from DuPont, showing job offers made and accepted as a result of the company's two days of recruitment efforts at North Carolina Central University.

"DuPont is not the company which made the most offers, or hired the most graduates," Merritt said. "One reason I chose to mention DuPont is that they have three plants in this state. One of my prime concerns is getting North Carolina businesses to employ more of our graduates."

If North Carolina businesses are not hiring NCCU graduates to the extent they should, they are not keeping up with national industry. North Carolina Central University was visited during the recruiting from industry, financial institutions, retail organizations, transportation firms, municipal agencies and federal agencies.

That figure of 506 does not include educational institutions, which continue to employ large percentage of NCCU graduates.

The industrial recruiters conducted a total of 3,083 individual interviews. The 382 seniors who registered for interviews with the Placement Bureau averaged about four interviews apiece. (Merritt says and other interviews were conducted with graduate students, already registered, or with undergraduates seeking summer employment.) The placement officer estimates that 500 job offers resulted from those interviews.

Salaries offered ranged from a low of $5,100 annually to a high of $11,000. "The average salary offered was about $7,000."

Most in demand were graduates with degrees in accounting, chemistry, and mathematics for whom industrial salary offers started at $8,000. This group was followed by business administration majors in popularity.

DuPont, for example, employed students who had majored in mathematics, accounting, chemistry, business administration, and business education. Of the 33 students seen by DuPont recruiters, 12 were offered employment.

Encouraging to majors in other fields, Merritt said, is the trend toward recruitment of management potential, regardless of major.

Insurance companies banks, retail institutions are particularly interested in management trainees," Merritt said.

Among the companies recruiting last year, Merritt said, were seven of what he called the "Big Eight" accounting firms in the nation. "Those are the eight firms with the largest staffs, the most accounts, and the highest paying accounts."

U. S. Savings Bonds Sales Ahead of Quota in N. Carolina

Savings Bonds Sales in North Carolina for January-June amounted to $32,259,962. This is 54.1 percent of the State's Dollar Quota for 1969.

Because of the exceptional sales record in North Carolina. The state now ranks 6th in the nation in percent of quota reached.

In making this release, Bland W. Worley, State Volunteer Chairman, Stated: "We are exceedingly proud of the record established by North Carolina in U. S. Savings Bonds Sales for the first six months of 1969. Much credited for this record is due to volunteers, advertising media, banks, industries, and others who have assisted in the promotion of this great thrift program. With their continued support North Carolina will surpass its 1969

Enemy Loses 35 Soldiers In Battle

SAIGON—U.S. infantrymen swept in by helicopter Tuesday to reinforce South Vietnamese irregulars screening the Cambodian border, and the joint force killed 35 North Vietnamese troops in an eight-hour fight.

No breakdown of allied casualties was given but a U.S. spokesman said they were light. The action, along the banks of the rain-swollen Bobo Canal, 26 miles west of Saigon, was only 12 miles southeast of the area called the Citadel where American troops killed 53 enemy soldiers in a battle that ended 12 hours earlier.

The two fights were among the heaviest since the lull in ground action began nearly six weeks ago. Both were along traditional infiltration routes toward Saigon, but American military sources said there was no indication that the enemy was preparing a major move against the capital.

Allied headquarters also reported nearly a dozen other ground encounters throughout South Vietnam Monday, including two more north of Dong Ha and within three miles of the demilitarized zone, which divides the two Vietnams.

100 Killed
They left a total of nearly 100 enemy soldiers killed.

The clashes, following Sunday skirmishes which the allies said accounted for 102 enemy dead, represented a definite upsurge in the level of fighting.

U.S. military analysts said the battles were not considered significant enough, however, to represent a break in the summer lull. They pointed out that while the combat might be rising, most of the engagements involved small units of less than battalion strength.

The Bobo Canal battle began at 9 a.m. when a reconnaissance unit of South Vietnamese civilian irregulars and their U.S. advisers came upon enemy bunkers.

They reported killing 15 North Vietnamese in a methodical bunker-by-bunker assault, but when they continued to draw heavy fire some 300 infantrymen of the U.S. 25th Division were flown in by helicopter to provide flank security.

Helicopter gunships and artillery blasted a path for the advancing irregulars. After the fighting subsided, the Americans and South Vietnamese were lifted out by helicopters.

The two fights Monday near the DMZ cost North Vietnamese army units 13 men killed, while U.S. Marines lost 3 killed and 10 wounded, a U.S. spokesman said.

Westinghouse, Hospital Sued

GREENSBORO—A $750,000 damage suit was filed here Tuesday in U. S. Middle District Court against Westinghouse Electric Corp. and trustees of Watts Hospital in Durham by a woman who says she was burned by an X-ray machine.

The suit was filed by Mrs. Frances N. Mirabella of St. Petersburg, Fla. She stated that in August 1967 she received X-ray radiation therapy at Watts Hospital. The X-ray machine became inoperative and the hospital called upon Westinghouse to repair and service the machine, she said.

After the repair work Mrs. Mirabella stated, a series of X-ray radiation treatments was administered to her.

"Tribute To The Clergy"

Because our contacts with the clergymen of our community are frequent and varied, we must admit that we have sometimes been guilty of taking their selfless devotion for granted. May we at the Scarborough and Hargett Funeral Home at this time express our appreciation for the many gracious services they render without complaint and often with little or no reward.

Invite the neighbors in for coffee and Peach Brunch Cake. The light, tender cake is made with Velvitized evaporated milk to keep it moist and delicious. Use it for creaming your coffee, too. You will like what it does for your cooking.

PEACH BRUNCH CAKE (Makes 6 to 8 servings)

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 1/4 cups 1/4-inch thick fresh peach slices*
- 2 tablespoons orange marmalade
- Maraschino cherry halves
- Walnut or pecan halves
- 2 1/2 cups biscuit mix
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup soft butter
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk

Melt butter in bottom of 9-inch round cake pan. Add brown sugar. Stir until well blended. Smooth out to cover bottom of pan. Arrange peach slices in pinwheel pattern on top of sugar. Dot with marmalade. Arrange cherry and nut halves upside down in pan as desired. Combine biscuit mix and sugar in bowl. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Beat egg, vanilla and Carnation Evaporated Milk together. Add to biscuit mix. Stir until well blended. (Batter will be slightly lumpy.) Pour over peach slices. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 40-45 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Remove from oven and let stand 5 minutes. Turn out on serving plate and serve immediately.

* 1 1/4 cups (1 pound can) well-drained sliced peaches may be substituted for fresh peaches.
