OF DISSIDENCE, DISORDER AND OTHER DISTURBING THINGS
by Vant Neff

Radicals say they want freedom of speech but they make every attempt to deny it to those who don't agree with them.

The loony left volunteered their services to Castro, supposedly to harvest the sugar cane crops. But the Cuban Communies were smarter than that. They used every spare moment to indoctrinate the young American rebels in the ways and means of seizing the nerve cells of a city and a country. While the quibbling young Americans cut cane—the Communies, as usual, made hay!

Now it is clear for all the world to see: Cambodia's former ruler appealed to both Red China and Russia for support in re-establishing his own leadership and ousting his successor. We all knew that unpredictable Prince "Snooky" had turned pro-Communist. But what people failed to appreciate were the constant efforts of the Communists to take over one country after another. Throughout Europe, Central America, South America and the Far East, including the Philippines, people in democracies have been the dupes of the Communies. President Marcos of the Philippines has bluntly stated that sooner or later, his island country will become a battleground between Communism and democracy. Unfortunately, those who freely fight for Communism are blinded to the fact that the Communists themselves live in abject slavery in their own countries. The adage that "lovers of freedom must hang together, or hang separately" was never more cogent than now.

Isn't it somewhat naive of us to express surprise at the disturbances and demonstrations on our university campuses? The entire emotional climate of our country has made violence quite acceptable as a bargaining gambit. Look at the examples set by the individuals who instigate and perpetrate one strike after another in every area of business, from government employees, including sacrosanct postal servants, to teachers, and from transportation workers to hospital employees, simply to gain their particular demands of the moment. (Did you realize that last year, our country suffered 5600 crippling strikes, involving two-and-a-half million workers who actually lost a total of forty-four-and-a-half million work hours and correspondingly vast sums of wages?). With this shocking pattern of behavior set before them, is it logical to be surprised that the youthful segment of our American population harbors the unrealistic illusion that all that is required to win their point is to confront "The Establishment" with violence, turbulence and dissent?

Gentle sarcasm: Next time you hear of a fiendish murder, don't judge the criminals too harshly. Remember, the poor dears may have had an underprivileged grandmother. And by today's loose and lax permissiveness, that's a lifetime excuse for all kinds of brutish behavior.

Japanese textiles are cutting into American clothing sales. The American workers resent it. Disgruntled union men have thrown up picket lines around retail stores, clamoring, shouting and badgering people into boycotting places that sell foreign-made apparel. To curtail imports would be senseless. Many nations produce textiles, and no country can remain an island in this age of —the group that incites anti-war protests—are card-carrying Communies. Not back in 1917, in Russia. Nor in 1938, in Germany. Today, here and now. At the core of many of these movements for disarmament and pacification, there is the well-financed Commie plot for world domination. Yet so many well-intentioned, loyal Americans have been duped by it. Can't we take a lesson from the past, and deal sternly and severely with those who covertly seek to undermine America?

Irony: Free the Panthers, so that they may continue the bombings and killings to which they have publicly sworn themselves.

How's this for brass! On the same day that leftist-influenced Peru seized one of our American tuna vessels in the Atlantic, the Peruvians asked the United States for more planes and helicopters. It wasn't the first time that they have gone beyond the legal 120-mile limit into international waters after one of our ships. Why do they do it? Simply to stir up more trouble? Shouldn't our government look long and carefully into the matter of handing our supplies and arms to nations that are openly hostile toward us and our interests?

The news discloses that three reputed Mafia figures were indicted on bribery and kick-back charges involving a Teamsters' Union Pension Fund. This is one more flagrant example of criminal action in the handling of workers' money. I submit for consideration that the giant unions with multi-millions of dollars are outmoded. Isn't the possible answer unions in which members actually have control, instead of vesting unchecked power in the hands of out-of-touch tyrants? That might bring the unions back to their original purpose: to benefit the working members.

Plea to Israel: Please stand still and be killed. You've done it for centuries. Why be anti-Arab?

Remember — there's always someone who opposes something — for some reason — even if it's for the sake of publicity.

Talk of gall—Howard Samuels who hopes for the governorship of New York suggests that Arthur Goldberg should be seated on the Supreme Court bench. How's that for getting rid of a rival?

NIA to Observe Golden Year In Richmond

CHICAGO — Insurance in force took an upward swing as black life insurance companies reported significant gains in sales during National Insurance Week, May 11-16.

The five-day campaign sent over 8,000 agents in 31 states into a half million homes with a message of thrift from the 43 members of the National Insurance Association.

When final results are tabulated, the association expects to exceed its $90 million goal in new business and to raise the level of insurance of black families nearer the national average of $18,400.

Posters and leaflets publicized the campaign theme, "We Always Cared - We Always Will," and special programs were conducted throughout the nation.

The 36th annual promotion was directed by A. J. Ruffin, vice president and chief underwriter of Virginia Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co. of Richmond, Va., and H. L. Fagan, assistant agency director of

HOME BUYER CLINIC

BY WM. J. McALLIFFE, JR., EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT AMERICAN LAND TITLE ASSOCIATION

Hazard Insurance Adequate? One of the details that often needs buyer attention in the purchase of a home is hazard insurance coverage—such as fire or owner's public liability protection.

When the closing of a real estate purchase takes place, the home buyer typically has the opportunity to pay the seller for the remaining unexpired term of such insurance coverage—and the policy then is endorsed over to the buyer. Payment is for the number of months of coverage left, multiplied by one-twelfth of the annual premium paid by the seller (referred to as a pro-rated adjustment).

For added protection, you may wish to consider placing a "binder" covering your interest into effect when the agreement of sale is executed. This step will protect you between the date of your purchase and the date of your closing.

It is important for you to be satisfied that the insurance to be transferred to you is sufficient to protect your interests. You or your agent should review the insurance in force as soon as possible.

Usually, the hazard insurance transferred is for fire and includes extended coverage. You may apply for additional coverage immediately if desired. If you make a pro-rated adjustment, you have the option of renewal or replacement when the existing policy expires.

Besides insuring against physical hazards, it is also wise for you to guard against financial loss from land title defects. This can best be accomplished by an up-to-date land title search and owner's title insurance.

NEW TEACHING METHOD PROVES DRAMATIC SUCCESS

"My children learned more during the past three months than during the whole school year last year."

That statement, from a New York mother, is typical of the praise of parents and educators alike pouring in from nearly 100 cities all over the United States. The object of their enthusiastic kudos is a new teaching system that really works.

Called "Project Read," the system programs learning for students from kindergarten through grade 12 but, unlike other methods tried in the past, has had excellent results wherever initiated.

In San Francisco, where class scores have been more than a year below the national averages, "Project Read" helped boost the district's kindergarten students—including those from deprived families—to national averages in reading readiness. Now, for the first time in a long time, that city can look forward to bringing an entire class—this year's first grade—up to national averages.

Although the program had its first great successes in the larger metropolitan areas, like New York City and San Francisco, students in smaller cities also show gains in every standardized reading test used today. Ravenswood (Calif.) City School District kindergarten children averaged a gain of 15 points on the Metropolitan Reading Readiness Test; Vicksburg, Miss. children in grades one through six showed a gain of over one year on the Gates-MacGinitie Test; and in Gary, Ind., sixth graders who had only been in the program for six weeks averaged a gain of almost six months on the Stanford Paragraph Meaning Subtest.

Why has "Project Read" proved so successful where other promising programs have failed? According to Dr. Allen

D. Calvin, a leading psychologist and Chairman of the Board of Behavioral Research Laboratories, the program's success is based on its being a total systems approach, providing materials, teach-supervisor training, orientation for paraprofessionals, and parent and community involvement.

Dr. Calvin and Dr. M. William Sullivan, a prominent linguist, did pioneering research on the effectiveness of programmed instruction in teaching languages under a Carnegie Foundation Grant.

Introduced by Behavioral Research Laboratories of Palo Alto, Calif., "Project Read" uses phonics rather than the "look-say" method used in most schools in the United States for the past 30 years. George Stern, President of Behavioral Research Laboratories, says that one of the principal benefits is that a child uses a single sound for each letter for a long period.

In "look-say," very early he gets four sounds for the letter "O"—those in of, off, over and Tom. This, according to Mr. Stern, leads to confusion. Educators back the idea up with the dismal statistic that, at minimum, one-quarter of America's school children don't learn to read with "look-say," which requires recognition of whole words.

People who have worked with the program claim one of its greatest assets is that the child is never confronted with failure. "Project Read" books have both questions and answers on each page and the student can immediately check the correctness of what he's done. Because the steps of increased learning are graduated very slowly, he is right most of the time.

"The child rarely is confronted with a choice that will baffle him," Mr. Stern said. "He moves at his own rate. He can go a little slow and nobody will say 'You're a dumb kid.' Or, if he's quick, he won't be held back by slower learners."

For many children in this individualized instruction program, success in reading is being experienced for the very first time. Perhaps, before too very long, parents won't have to ask that plaintive question that outdated educational systems foster—"Why can't Johnny read?"

100,000 WILL THRILL TO RISE AND FALL OF ANCIENT AMERICAN CIVILIZATION IN HILL CUMORAH PAGEANT

One of the most bizarre scenes in the Hill Cumorah Pageant is the rite of human sacrifice in the court of King Lamoni whose people turned from the teachings of the Lord, wandered into the wilderness and fell into savagery.

PALMYRA, New York—America's most colorful, most elaborate religious spectacle—the famous Hill Cumorah Pageant—will be presented for the 34th year this summer, July 27-August 1.

On 25 stages on a broad hillside in this Finger Lakes Region of Western New York, 500 young men and women will bring to life the range and intriguing drama of the rise and fall of a 1000-year-old ancient American civilization.

During the week of six evening performances, more than 100,000 tourists and others will come here from over the nation and from abroad to feast their eyes on the costumes of Greek, Roman, Hebrew, Aztec and Mayan Indian design; the play of varicolored spotlights on curtains of water; the burning of a prophet at the stake; the destruction of the City of Zarahemla, one of the most awesome scenes in the history of pagantry.
