Charles Campbell, Councilman Of Honolulu Visits Hometown

By MARCIA WILLIAMS
Charles M. Campbell, councilman for the City and County of Honolulu, Hawaii and native of Durham, returned to his hometown Sunday to speak at Saint Mark AME Zion Church.
The councilman, who is presently a Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor of Hawaii, is a graduate of Hillside High School. He received an A.B. degree from North Carolina Central University; an M.A. degree from Howard University and an M.A. degree in Sociology from Columbia University. The Ph.D. candidate at New York University has been a high school teacher of American Government at Farrington High School in Honolulu for many years.

CAMPBELL analysts, Campbell was chosen among six of 39 candidates for Honolulu City Council seats in 1968, and is considered one of the leading contenders for the position of lieutenant governor in the coming election.
Among those attending the "Get Acquainted Fellowship honoring Charles Milton Campbell" were Dr. C.E. Boulware, Durham City Councilman; J.H. Lucas of Hillside High School; Dr. C.W. Orr of NCCU; G.S. Nixon of NCCU Alumni Association and F.H. Alston, friend and classmate.

Black Cosmetics Firm Opens $Million Plant

Nat'l Leaders At Dedication Ceremony in Ga.

ATLANTA — The ability of black businessmen to succeed in the national marketplace has been demonstrated anew by the Cannole Company, manufacturer of cosmetics, with the opening of a new $1-million plant here that incorporates the most modern production technologies.
The dedication ceremony was attended by government and business leaders, including Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans, Whitney Young, executive director of the National Urban League, and H. P. Smith, vice president of F. W. Woolworth Co.

CASH BREAKS BARRIER — Rosalind Cash, after years of a professional career as singer-entertainer and a talent that won her roles on the legitimate stage, finally has made her motion picture debut, and in a big way—a plum role opposite Jon Voight in "The All American Boy," a Warner Bros. production. Miss Cash is "doing her thing" now after a long uphill struggle filled with bitterness and frustration and wants to continue in her new-found field. Charles Eastman directs "The All American Boy." Joseph T. Naar is producer and Saul John Krugman is executive producer on The Technicolor drama.

Want To See City Schools Open With Little Trouble as Possible

Four Minority Owned Firms are Awarded Government Contracts

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Four minority-owned firms have been awarded professional services contracts totaling more than $275,000 by the Post Office Department, Postmaster General Winton M. Blount announced today.
The contracts were awarded under auspices of the Small Business Administration's program to stimulate growth of minority enterprises throughout the United States.
The largest contract among the group, valued at $106,000, went to the Lawrence Johnson & Associates of Washington, D.C. The firm will perform marketing research studies for the Department and will evaluate various postal products and services.
An $85,000 contract was awarded to the Pacific Training and Technical Assistance Corporation, Washington D.C., to develop and test a customer relations training course for postal service employees.

Price & Williams Associates, Inc., also of Washington, was given a $71,500 contract to perform various systems analysis services for the development of a Post Office Department marketing information system.
A New York firm Optimum Computer Systems, Inc., was awarded a $17,000 contract to provide a computer training course for postal management and planning personnel.
"The awarding of these contracts is in keeping with the (See CONTRACTS 2A)

Old Boone Drug Store Building Site Of WIAPV Project
Women in Action for the Prevention of Violence and its Causes have opened a School Support Center in the old Boone Drug Store building on the corner of Mangum and Parrish Streets. Women in Action take no position on any specific desegregation plan. They are supporting the community in the American Way. They want to see Durham city schools open September 2, with as little confusion as possible.
The School Support Center is being operated with the complete approval of the school administration. As a result, the WIAPV volunteers will try to get factual answers to parents' specific questions regarding the latest school plan. Mrs. George Miller coordinating chairman of the project has announced its (See WOMEN 2A)

Student NEA Pres. Criticizes Elections Laws

Percy A. Peele, II, president of the North Carolina Student NEA/NCAE Monday criticized the N.C. State Board of Elections for ignoring provisions of the recently passed Voting Rights Act.
The federal law, which goes into effect Jan. 1, 1971 extends voting to 18 years old and abolishes literacy tests as requirement for voter registration.
The lowering of the voting age to 18 years was one of the national priorities set by the Student NEA the past year. And its passage by Congress and the signing by President Nixon on June 22 marked a hopeful victory.
In his first criticism since assuming office in early April, Peele stated, "It is evident that the state does not wish to (See CRITICIZES 2A)
