Durham City Council Calls for Reexamination of Businesses

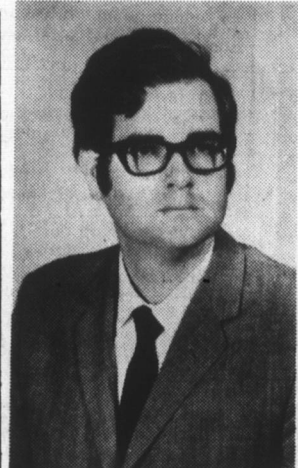

A verdict of restrained rejoicing over the recent approval of the five million dollar federal grant for Project III is probably the best way to describe the reaction of a majority of Durham's Black leaders over the final outcome of another project in the Hayti section of Durham. Another way of expressing the apparent deep concern of owners and operators of black businesses located in the project area is to come up with the two big questions now facing them. The project area covers about 70 acres of what is often referred to as the Hayti area of Durham, located in the southeast sector of the city. Those questions are when and where do we go from here? The Hayti area is bounded by Fayetteville, Umstead, (See PROJECT page 10A)

Law Firm Opens In Durham

SPAULDING

The first integrated law firm in Durham has been opened by two local attorneys, Kenneth B. Spaulding and Thomas F. Loflin III. Both are graduates of the University of North Carolina Law School. The new firm, Spaulding & Loflin, is believed to be the first integrated law partnership established solely by North Carolina natives in the history of the state. The firm occupies Suite 200 at 811 West Main Street in Durham. Spaulding said the firm will offer a variety of legal services in all areas of the law. He feels that the few integrated law firms now in existence are beginning to be stereotyped as handling only one type of legal casework—civil rights matters. He concludes, "Such a stereotype does not help to break down the vestiges of racism, but, in a more subtle way, it reinforces a much more sophisticated, subconscious racial stereotype which could lead to a racist institutionalization within the legal profession." 'Unity' Parade To Precede Black Classic

PHILADELPHIA — The cause of "unity" among people of all races will be dramatically demonstrated on Saturday morning, September 26, as the American Unity Parade, massive prelude to the First Annual National Black Unity Football Classic, swings down Broad Street in celebration of the accomplishments of the Philadelphia area's "black effort." Nearly 200 musical and marching organizations from throughout the Delaware Valley area will be represented in the parade with floats, choral groups and bands from the 26 participating cities and towns. Billed as a "show on wheels," the parade will feature integrated choirs from nearly 100 churches and religious groups. (See PARADE page 10A)

$5,000 GRANT—North Carolina Central University President Albert N. Whiting, second from left, accepts a check for $5,000 from Jack Opasser, manager of administrative employee relations for the Atlantic-Richfield Company. The check represents an unrestricted grant to the university from the Atlantic Richfield Foundation. President Whiting said the grant would become a part of the university's endowment fund, which will be used to supplement state funds for faculty salaries. Looking on are Lindsay Merritt, director of placement at the university, left, and William Malone, director of development. (See HOUSING page 10A)

Integrated Housing Group To Build $1,400,000 Apt. Complex In N. C. Mayor Proclaims World Peace Day

Sponsored Sunday by Members Of Baha'is Across the Nation

Durham Mayor R. Wense Grabarek has proclaimed Sunday, September 20 as World Peace Day. Sponsored by members of Baha'i Communities across the nation, the observance has as its purpose to spread the recognition of America's spiritual destiny to raise the standard of peace in the world. The Faith is established in more than 312 countries and territories. Locally, Baha'is will present a series of public programs in commemoration of the occasion and in promotion of the concept of the oneness of God, of the fundamental oneness of religion, and of the oneness of mankind. The Proclamation for World Peace Day, as signed by Mayor Grabarek, states:

WHEREAS: All people of good will hope and pray that the goal of World Peace may one day be achieved, and WHEREAS: Science and technology have made the world a neighborhood and yet at the same time created weapons of mass destruction;

Publishers Set Up Minority Manpower Office In New York

NEW YORK — The Association of American Publishers announced today the establishment of a Minority Manpower Office and the appointment to the staff of Edward B. King, Jr., who will be responsible for implementing and directing the Association's efforts to bring more minority personnel into the book publishing industry. King, who is 31 years old, was formerly Assistant to the President of Hofstra University, where he served as an advisor on minority employment, minority recruitment and student problems. The Minority Manpower Office, which will become operational when King joins the Association on September 15, will serve as a nationwide clearinghouse and recruitment (See PUBLISHERS page 10)

NCC Graduate Dean Is Named Member of U. N. Delegation

Dr. Helen G. Edmonds, dean of the graduate school at North Carolina Central University, will join the U. S. delegation to the United Nations, it was announced Saturday night. The appointment, made by President Nixon, was announced by NCCU president Albert N. Whiting at the annual faculty banquet ending the faculty institute. Dr. Edmonds became a professor in the faculty of North Carolina College in 1941 and was named graduate professor of history in 1948. She became chairman of the history department in 1963 and dean of the graduate school in 1964. Dr. Edmonds served as a member of the school's interim committee from 1966 through July, 1967. In 1956 she became the first Negro woman selected to the nomination of a candidate for the presidency of the United States, when she seconded the nomination of Dwight D. Eisenhower for his second term. She lectured in 1955 in Germany through Germany under the International Educational Exchange Service. Dr. Edmonds also toured Sweden, Denmark, Germany, Austria and France for the International Education Exchange Service in 1957. In that (See EDMONDS page 10A)

Construction on FHA Project To Begin Within Next 60 Days

WILMINGTON — A group of five black leaders and two whites announced this week that approval has been given by the Federal Housing Administration for the construction of a $1,400,000 multi-family housing complex in Wilmington. Approval of the project was made through the Greensboro office of the FHA and construction is expected to begin within 60 days. The 104 apartment units are being sponsored by one of the first integrated corporations in the state. Black leaders included in the project are Dr. Hubert A. Eaton, of Wilmington; Dr. George C. Simkins of Greensboro, Attorney Julius L. Chambers and Dr. Reginald A. Hawkins, both of Charlotte. Other persons in the project are Henry E. Miller, Joseph Norwood and Henry E. Miller, Jr., white businessmen of Wilmington. Dr. Eaton, spokesman for the group, said the new housing is being designed for those families who do not qualify for public housing and who (See HOUSING page 10A)
