BACK TO SCHOOL

Once again school doors are open to admit little folk and big folk, who bring with them mixed emotions. Little ones with tears from leaving mother and entering a new situation for the first time: big ones with curiosity, anxiety and great expectations. Young or old they have one thing in common, an education. Each in his own way preparing for the next step in life.

Teachers in every field are facing a challenge as never before. May we think on this scripture for strength - "Let the words of Christ dwell in you richly, as you teach and admonish one another.' Colossians 3:16.

I wish for you a pleasant and successful school year.

DETROIT, Mich. - Even superstars can get stagefright, and last Saturday afternoon a properly nervous Stevie Wonder kept wedding guest and his intended waiting at the church for almost 40 minutes, explaining when he arrived that he had developed a sudden nose-bleed while dressing for his wedding. Stevie was promptly rushed through a gathering crowd and into the side door of Detroit's Burnette Baptist Church, where his bride-to-be, Miss Syreeta Wright waited anxiously. Syreeta, a Motown songwriter and singer, was stunning in a white satin gown of elegant simplicity with a cowllike satin veil.

The bride's and groom's parents had arrived earlier for the candle lighting that signified the start of the ceremony, officiated by the Rev. J. 'A. Caldwell, pastor of Burnette Church. Stevie's valent and cousin. John Harris, acted as best man, with his wife, Darlene, as matron of honor for the Motown couple. Stevie and Syreeta had both stood in the wedding party when John and Darlene were wed last year in Detroit.

Invitations announcing the wedding of Syreeta Annette Wright and Steveland Morris, Stevie Wonder's legal name, had gone out to a host of their fellow employees and artists at Motown, as well as other friends and family.

Motown President Berry Gordy Jr. flew into Detroit from his offices in Los Angeles especially for the wedding, joining his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Berry Gordy Sr. his brother Fuller Gordy, and sisters, Mrs. Gwen Gordy Fuqua and Mrs. Esther Edwards senior vice president of the film, attending with her husband, State Rep. George H.

Following the brief cerenony, the newly-weds were wisked through a dense crowd of admirers to a limousine that waited to spirit them off to a gala cock, 1 2 Decroit's posh Mauna Loa Restaurant. There, some three hundred guests gathered in the ballroom to extend best wishes to the happy couple and witness the cutting of the elegant, multitiered wedding cake.

A special spirit of warmth and congeniality filled the Mauna Loa's spacious ballroom and a sea of smiling faces constantly surrounded Stevie Wonder and his beautiful bride, all anxious to share in the couple's special moment of happiness.

The spectacular shower of wedding gifts the newly-weds received attested to their enormous popularity as persons, as well as performers, and seemed to verify the notion that marriages are made in | ccoking later.

Leaving the reception early, Stevie and Syreeta rushed to Detroit's Metropolitan airport to board a jet bound for Bermuda, where they will spend their honeymoon, tak-

TODAY'S SCENE AT HILLSIDE

By MICHELLE DEJARMON

Improvement is striking Hillside High School in great numbers. This week, students are being elected to new offices. These offices include the Student Council along with many others. For the past few days, we have been getting together our ideas for qualified leaders. We feel that one must possess both good mental and physical qualities. What would be considered good qualities? One must be persistent; he must have endurance, courage and enthusiasm. These are the physical characteristics. Mental characteristics would be logical thinking, the ability to plan, the ability to judge and the ability to observe and analyze. One must possess a good personality. He or she must be honest, fair, have a sense of humor. One must always be willing to listen to suggestions and avoid giving orders. One must always have or show self-control, this includes keeping one's temper at

A good leader needs to always be interested in people as well as being a good follower. These are qualities, good qualities, the ones we are going to se out choice of leaders on. Another important thing

ppening at HHS is happening with the HHS Hornets. Although the game was lost, our cheerleaders, along with the football team put on a fine exhibition on Friday night. DHS and HHS' marching bands combined in several numbers. Later, Hillside's Band went to modern music and played Signed, Sealed and Delivered, a song that was made popular by Stevie Wonder. Mr. Nathaniel Purefoy also performed rope tricks during the halftime to add to the highlights.

This is the way things shape up this week. So until next week, "Stay cool, don't be no fool, that's why you go to
