Support Mounts For NAACP Drive

Evidence of New Activism Seen In Efforts of Key Organizations

NEW YORK — Governmental civil rights indecisiveness is serving to activate large segments of the black "silent majority." Gloster B. Current, NAACP director of branches and field administration, said here this week. Evidence of the new activism can be seen in the efforts of key individuals and organizations to strengthen the NAACP.

"Today, more than ever, in this time of repression, we need the NAACP," Percy E. Sutton, President of the Borough of Manhattan, said in a "Dear Friend" letter to be given wide circulation.

Mr. Sutton noted that "1970 is the year that President Nixon threw his Southern strategy into full gear ... in which the Federal Government stopped seriously enforcing the Voting Rights Act of 1965 ... in which the national administration allowed local school boards new techniques for violating the historic 'Brown vs. Board of Education' decision."

He said also that "1970 is the year when massive repression was intensified against militant black groups." Mr. Sutton's letter urged renewed

Record For Local School Well Above All Previous Estimates

Registrar B. T. McMillon this week released official enrollment figures showing that North Carolina Central University's enrollment for the fall semester is 3,533, a record for the school and well above all previous estimates.

Last year's enrollment was 3,290.

The figures represent an increase at all levels of the university's program, McMillon's figures show. Undergraduate enrollment this year is 3,139 and was 2,992 in the fall of 1969. Graduate enrollment is 246 and was 186 in 1969.

Law school enrollment is 127 and was 93 in 1969. The School of Library Science reported an increase of two students, from 19 to 21.

The record shows an increase of 61 per cent over the decade from the fall of 1960 in undergraduate enrollment and a 50 per cent increase enrollment for the decade in library school enrollment.

The law school showed the greatest increase. In 1960-61, the law school enrollment was 23. The 1970-71 enrollment of 127 represents an increase of

IN FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS—Michael Cousin, youngest son of Rev. Philip R. Cousin, pastor of St. Joseph's A.M.E. Church was caught Sunday morning following service taking a liking to a mighty fine book—the Bible. Little Michael showed no interest at all in our flashing camera as we took several other pictures, but continued to read perhaps from the chapter his father had just finished preaching. As the old adage goes, "Coming events cast their shadows before."
