"God's Wrath On Man"

By DONALD LOVE

We suffer the wrath of God because of not doing the things He wants us to and doing the things He warns us against. By doing things counter-clockwise, we sin and our sins cause Him to pour out His Wrath on us. Sin is the only thing God dislikes.

We, as human beings, let our intellectual status lead us into temptation and our way of thinking figures our ways for us, to the extent that it is perfectly alright.

To shed light on our way of thinking and God's way can be perfectly illustrated by what God wants and the way He expects us to conduct ourselves by reading the 24th Chapter of Matthew beginning with verse 3 and reading through the entire chapter of the 25th Chapter.

These two chapters relate to the apostles of Christ saying pertaining to the end of time, and what brought it about. Christ is prophesying what to expect due to certain things that are to happen.

Christ was able to see far into the future because He knew man was going to lean over backwards into sin. The more man sins, the farther away he get from God, and the further he gets away from God, the more hardships he encounters.

Those of us who live and those of us who try to live just as close to God as possible can and do see and understand the prediction of Christ concerning our social frustrations.

In the event that man puts forth as much effort turning to God by doing what He requires as we do rebelling against His ways, we now receive His curses instead of His blessings.

We have always had disturbances to acquit us with them and how destructive they can be. Christ predicted they would increase and they have.

A few days ago, a movie star stated on television that he and his family were in bed the morning of the earthquake and how afraid they were. Not only he prayed but all of California did and if anyone said that he did not, he wouldn't believe them. The first thing that came to his mind was - is this the end of time?

What happened in California will not be a drop in the bucket compared to the real thing. California is only a small segment to feel and realize the power of God. What will be the reaction of the world as a whole when the real thing does come and the world will see and experience the Creator's powerful hand.

We do much reading, newspapers, novels, poems, but we pass up opportunities reading the Bible. If most of us would take time out and do just a little more Bible reading, it would be amazing how much information we could pick up about things we didn't know. It is imperative for us to learn and know what God demands of us and how we should feel toward each other with regard to our relationship toward all mankind.

Christ mentioned his second coming. The times will be similar to the days of Noah. It will be to our surprise when the time will be at hand. In these two chapters, just a few of the things that will happen are mentioned. As we read about the few things, it should be enough to make us see ourselves and make a sudden turn to God.

Palmer Comments on Supreme Court Ruling

In 1965, the North Carolina Teachers Association instituted together with black students and parents, the school desegregation suit against the Charlotte-Mecklenburg School System seeking to complete desegregation of both students and staff. The recent decision of the Supreme Court requires the integration of segregated schools caused by school board action and by the segregated housing pattern in Charlotte and across the South. It is rendered in the best interest of education in North Carolina and the nation.

The time has come when citizens of North Carolina need to stop burying their heads in the sands of the sea coast; hiding behind the hills and in the valleys of the Piedmont and attempting to barricade themselves behind the Jetties of the Western Mountain range of our State when it comes to desegregating the schools of North Carolina.

The Supreme Court has ruled as we had both expected and predicted! The leaders of our educational and governmental agencies can now best serve the interest of the citizens of North Carolina by complying in good faith with the law of the land without further foolish mis-use of the tax payers funds in attempting to deceive the public into believing that they can find another "loop hole."

School boards which have been sued by and/or cases backed by the North Carolina Teachers Association in Durham County, Durham City, Raleigh, Winston-Salem,

Lenoir County, Beaufort County, the recent ones won in Alexander and Pitt Counties and some 30 other systems in North Carolina are going to have to eventually comply with the "Law of the Land."

No effort was ever made by the NCTA to inconvenience the educational systems in North Carolina; we always sought to aid the educational progress of the State for all citizens.

The question of "what children are to be assigned?" is an academic one. In my opinion, the law clearly applies to all children in the public schools. The threat of more white children going to "Fly-by-Night," "Instant Private Schools," will be short lived. The white citizens of our State will not foolishly pay taxes to support public schools and turn them over to black students by sending their children to private inferior schools forever. Whether or not the citizens of our State continue to believe in public education hinges on their continued belief in Democracy. If the United States has been birthed on the very foundation of Democracy "which has as its basic-public education for the masses), one must decide whether or not one wants the alternative - private education with its out-comes of a limited intelligent citizenry, increased poverty, a suppressed and oppressed people and loss of world leadership and technological advancement. The black community will be on the look-out for attempts by private academies to obtain public tax funds for support.

To comply with the "Law of our Land" in the implementation of the recent Supreme Court Decision, is to lead the South into becoming the real "Cradle of Democracy" which the South is destined to become. Failure to comply will only add to the frustration, expense and educational deprivation of the children of our State with no relief for those who would attempt to maintain segregation.

North Carolina Young Men In The Armed Forces

Union Baptist Church to Hold Celebration 74th Anniversary

Although 1972 will be Diamond Jubilee Anniversary Year for Union Baptist Church, it was agreed by the church to celebrate its 74th year here and now. As often as we, as a church family, do this, we show our deep appreciation for the great work of those who have passed into eternity; and we have the opportunity to give thanks to God for those yet struggling to make Union Baptist a greater church in the field of Christian endeavors.

It was just 16 years ago that the late Dr. A. S. Croom and the officials of Union Baptist lead the congregation from its Glendale Avenue homeplace to the present estate, 904 N. Roxboro Street. This was a "happy and unforgettable" occasion for all, especially the late pastor, Reverend Croom who had worked hard to make this dream a reality.

Union Baptist is still moving "Forward." With its "upward reach to God, and its outward reach to man," we have come to realize fully "That Everybody is Somebody." A motto brought to us by our present pastor, Dr. Grady D. Davis, when he became the shepherd of Union Baptist flock in 1962.

As time goes by, we are learning more fully the church's motto: "We enter to worship, and depart to serve."

During the interim, between 1962 and '71, Union Baptist has steadily grown numerically, financially, and spiritually. We are a friendly, happy people. Thanks to God and our leadership.

We are happy, indeed, to have as our guest speaker for the 74th Anniversary celebration, during the 11 o'clock worship service, the illustrious Dr. Raymond Gavins.

Our Anniversary speaker attended the public schools of Atlanta, Georgia; graduated from George Washington Carver High, class Valedictorian, in 1960. Received his B. A. Degree, Magna Cum Laude, from Virginia University, Richmond, Virginia, 1964; M. A. in history, 1967; thesis: "The Founding and Early History of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, 1910-1920; received his Ph. D. in history, 1970.

Music for the morning worship service will be rendered by The Male Chorus of Union Baptist.

To further highlight our 74th Anniversary celebration The Rev. L. A. Miller, choir and congregation of the St. Mark, A.M.E. Zion Church will be "the icing on the cake," or better still, "just what the doctor ordered" to conclude a memorable evening and happy

BLAKELY
Airman Tony A. Blakely, son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Blakely Jr. of 1116 Drew St., Durham, has completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. He has been assigned to Chanute AFB, Ill., for training in fuel services. Airman Blakely is a 1969 graduate of Hillside High School.

Anniversary celebration. A ten minute "In Memoriam" service will precede the evening service.

The Young Adult Missionary Department and the entire Union Baptist Church Family extends to the public and to its many friends a special invitation to share with us in this joyous occasion.

Israelis Reject Canal Offer Rogers Seeks Final Solution

Israeli officials said Sunday "no deal is possible" on reopening the Suez Canal under the conditions laid down Saturday by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

The reaction to Sadat's May Day speech in Cairo came as U. S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers arrived in Jordan on the second leg of his peace-seeking mission to the Middle East. Strict security precautions were in effect in Amman where Arabs had threatened massive anti-American demonstrations during Rogers' stay.

In Jerusalem, Israeli officials commenting on Sadat's speech said "if Sadat insists there are his final negotiating conditions, then no deal is possible."

Israeli newspapers charged Sadat has virtually scuttled the main objective of Rogers' mission.

Permit Crossing
Speaking at a May Day Rally Saturday, Sadat insisted that Egyptian troops must be allowed to cross the Suez Canal if Israeli forces pull back from the east bank under an agreement to reopen the waterway, blocked since the 1967 war.

The Egyptian president also reiterated that an accord on the canal opening must be part of a comprehensive solution leading to a total Israeli troop withdrawal from all occupied Egyptian territory.

Israel has rejected these demands and has refused to back down despite pressure from the United States which views an agreement on the canal as the possible first step toward an overall peace settlement in the Middle East.

Met 90 Minutes
The Israeli cabinet met in Jerusalem for 90 minutes to discuss Rogers' visit, the effect Sadat's speech could have on it, and relations between the United States and Israel.

Deputy Premier Yigal Allon reported on his recent talks in Washington with Rogers and Foreign Minister Abba Eban briefed the cabinet on the latest developments, an official communique said.

Rogers is scheduled to arrive in Jerusalem on Thursday after a two-day visit to Cairo. He met with Saudi Arabian King Faisal and top government officials in Riyadh Saturday and again Sunday before flying to Amman. He will visit Lebanon on Monday.

Support Egypt
"We support Egypt in everything that would support Egypt's return to territories occupied by Israel," Faisal's foreign minister, Omar Sakhaf, told newsmen after a two-hour meeting between Rogers and the monarch at Riyadh, the Saudi capital.

New Program May Help Children With Problems

SWANNANOVA
— A small corps of professional counselors has undertaken a pilot project designed to keep delinquency-prone children on the streets and out of training schools.

"We are here to fill up any of the cracks, any needs, we can for the kids," is the way Sally Pierce explains the task of the North Carolina Youth Services Center.

Miss Pierce is director of the 10-member staff at the Swannanoa center, a fledgling unit of the North Carolina Department of Juvenile Correction. The center opens officially Monday, but has been counseling youngsters on an emergency basis since last fall.

In an interview, Miss Pierce described the center's work as a "pilot project in prevention of delinquency, community oriented, family oriented, using any means available to human beings."

Much of the counseling will be psychological, but Miss Pierce said the staff has been given no limitations. "Our creativity is our only limitation," she said. "Youngsters under the age of 16 may seek the center's services voluntarily or be referred to it by courts, schools, attorneys or law enforcement agencies."

"It has to be a voluntary thing," Miss Pierce said. "We have no legal authority over the kids and they are not committed."

In Raleigh Blaine M. Madison, commission of juvenile correction, said the center was designed as an "innovative effort to concentrate services at the community level to keep young people with behavioral problems out of the juvenile justice system."

The Swannanoa center is the first such facility in North Carolina, Madison said, but "if it proves to be effective, then we hope to offer such efforts all over the state."

Miss Pierce said the center's initial cost was relatively high—$190,000 in federal funds and $140,000 from the state—but "we hope the expense will go down" as parallel community
