NATIONAL BARRISTERS' WIVES AWARDS THREE LEGAL EDUCATION SCHOLARSHIPS

Organization Celebrates 20th Yr. While In Sessions In Atlanta, Ga.

The National Barristers' Wives, Inc. under the leadership of Mrs. LeMarquis DeJarmon, Durham, National President, in their closing sessions have awarded three Dorothy P. Atkinson Legal Education Scholarships to students enrolled in the study of law to North Carolina Central University, Durham. St. Louis University, St. Louis, Mo.; and Texas Southern University, Houston, Texas.

In addition, continuing scholarships were provided for Miss Sheila Parrish, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, enrolled in the School of Law at North Carolina Central University School of Law, and Philander Scott Neville, Chicago, Illinois, who is enrolled in the St. Louis University School of Law, St. Louis, Missouri. Miss Parrish is attending law school in London, England this summer and Philander Neville is working as a legal interne in city offices in St. Louis.

The National Barristers' Wives, Inc. celebrated their 20th anniversary while in sessions in Atlanta, Ga.

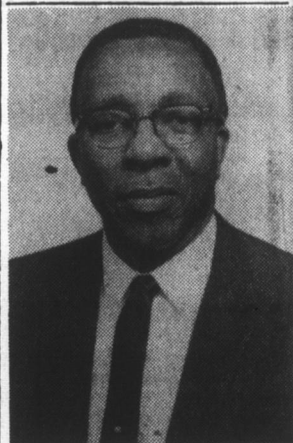

HUD Official Sees Wider Horizons For Today's Black Att'ys

ATLANTA, Ga. — "Involvement in government activity at national, State, and local levels offers the black lawyer an unusual opportunity to be of practical service to his people," an official of the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development said last week.

In a speech to the annual convention of the National Bar Foundation in Atlanta, HUD General Assistant Secretary Samuel C. Jackson emphasized the wide range of legal problems now available to the black lawyer.

"Heretofore," he said, "the black attorney was confined largely to challenging State and local entities which engaged in discriminatory practices. However, as our cities become increasingly black, you will be called upon to deal with a myriad of new problems which are part and parcel of the body politic. These include, to mention a few tax regulations, financial and

Accused Raymond Norris Slayer Surrenders to Authorities in Ga.

REV. BRODIE

Joe Louis Lea, 34, the alleged suspect sought on the July 18 slaying of Raymond E. Norris, of Durham, surrendered in a magistrate's office in Pembroke, Ga.

Lea, an honor grade prisoner and felon who escaped July 21 by leaping from a Guess Road Prison Camp truck, was apprehended in a small town near Savannah, Ga.

Durham Detectives H. L. Hayes and H. H. Cameron have gone to Pembroke to place Lea in custody. Another man, charged with the murder, Clites Person 20, is being held in jail without bond.

Much controversy centers around the incidents relating to the alleged slayer and his release from the prison as an honor prisoner. Guess Road Camp officials have conceded that a .38 pistol had been stolen from a cabinet at the camp sometime before Lea escaped, but said they were told that this gun was not used in the slaying.

Lee, who had staged two previous camps, was on community leave the day of the slaying. He had obtained a Sunday pass through a sponsor, Frank Gunter, a State Department of Corrections official, said Lea's sponsor is no longer in good standing with the prisons system.

Norris, 19, of 604 N. Buchanan Blvd. was shot in the head with a .38 revolver and his watch and wallet was taken.

Federal Officials in Gate City Friday to Offer Advice, Counsel

ATLANTA, Ga. — Robert L. Kunzig, head of General Services Administration, the multi-billion dollar procurement arm of the Federal Government and Chairman of President Nixon's Federal Procurement Task Force on Minority Business Enterprise, announced recently that representatives from the buying offices of all Federal agencies will be in Greensboro, on Friday, August 13, to offer advice and counseling to interested minority businessmen of the opportunities available for doing business with the Government.

This advice and counseling, which will be made on an individual basis, will be part of a day-long Seminar scheduled as one of the many efforts of the President's Task Force. The Seminar will begin at 9 a.m. and continue through 8 p.m. at the Holiday Inn Four Seasons, 3121 High Point Road.

He said that Greensboro's Representative, J. N. Vaughn, Buildings Manager, is located at the Federal Building, Room 336, 320 Federal Place, and that interested minority businessmen may contact him by calling 275-9497 or by personal visit if they wish.

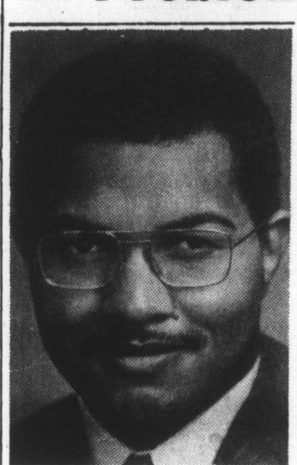

Do you know what is more hard to bear than the reverses of fortune? It is the baseness, the hideous ingratitude of man.

DISCUSS PROBLEMS AND PROGRESS — Black problems and progress was one of the chief areas of discussion when two Gulf Oil officials met with NAACP Executive Director Roy Wilkins in New York recently. The occasion of the meeting was the presentation of the annual contribution to the Association.

Presenting the check to Mr. Wilkins are Brenda Joyce of the Advertising and Public Relations Department in Pittsburgh, and E. L. Hawthorne, SRales Manager in New York City. The trio is standing in front of the roster of life members of the NAACP.

Durham's School Age Hungry Kids — A Problem That Can Be Solved

Named Counsel

HARTFORD, Conn. — Richard M. Brown has been named counsel at Aetna Life & Casualty.

Brown was graduated from the University of San Francisco in 1962 and received his law degree from the Harvard University Law School in 1968. He joined Aetna in 1968 as a legal assistant and later that year was advanced to attorney in the law department. He is a member of the American Bar Association. Brown lives at 24 Colebrook Street, Hartford.

Expensive Tickets

BOSTON — A Revere, Mass., man was fined $1,605 in Boston Municipal Court last week for parking tickets in 1970 and 1971, reportedly the largest fine ever handed out in the court for parking violations.

There are approximately 15,000 school age youngsters in Durham. Between 5,000 and 8,000 are from poverty level backgrounds, according to Edward W. Ramsey, Jr., nutrition consultant in North Carolina Central University's department of home economics.

And of more than 400 youngsters from the poverty pockets served by Pearson and Burton Elementary Schools and by Whitted Junior High, nearly half — 49 per cent — are suffering — visibly — from malnutrition.

"They show evidence of malnutrition. I'm talking about positive evidence — not borderline cases," Ramsey said.

"Malnutrition is a kind of subtle thing. In the hospital you have to take blood and run biochemical tests for assessment. But when you can look at a kid and see that he is suffering from malnutrition — he has pellagra, scurvy and rickets — it's something else. See, there are borderline cases of malnutrition and there are advanced cases, where you have primary and secondary infections and lesions and stuff.

"It's pretty hairy when you load up a station wagon with about 14 youngsters in it and you can just smell pus, and the

More Than Thousand Attending Bapt. Women's Convention Here

Wilkins Strongly Supports Busing For Desegregation

AMARILLO, Texas — Busing of school children for the purpose of integration was strongly supported by Roy Wilkins, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, at a Freedom Fund dinner celebrating the 26th anniversary of the Association's Amarillo Branch.

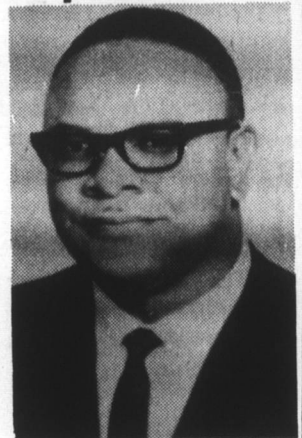

"The concept of busing is strictly American," he told some 300 NAACP members and friends attending the dinner here, August 3. "It was not invented strictly for the benefit of blacks or whites. It has served many purposes besides correction of racial imbalance."

Negro parents who object to busing "forget that neighborhood schools were created by segregation . . . and perpetuation of neighborhood schools is perpetuation of a wrong," the NAACP leader said.

More than 1,600 delegates from throughout North Carolina have been in attendance at St. Mark's A.M.E. Zion and Mt. Vernon Baptist Church during the week, for sessions of the Women's Baptist Home and Foreign Missionary Convention.

The theme of the meeting was "New Paths in These Significant Seventies." All workshops, speeches and worship services have revolved around that theme. Highlights of the convention have included greetings and welcomes from the Honorable Mayor James Hawkins, representatives from business, government, educational and religious institutions, including Yates Baptist Church Association, Durham Committee on Negro Affairs, NAACP, and Durham Business and Professional Chain. A special welcome was extended to all by Mrs. W. L. Bradsher for the St. Mark's A.M.E. Zion Church Family, and by Mrs. Annie L. Filmore for the Mt. (See BAPTISTS 10A) ject (VEP), their efforts were an attempt to encourage the registration of almost 200,000 unregistered blacks in the State of Louisiana. (Photo by Archie E. Allen).

Spaulding's Leadership Lecture Receives Favorable Comments

The 1971 Annual Business Leadership Lecture by Asa T. Spaulding, retired president of the North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company, given at the University of Michigan Graduate School of Business Administration has received widespread favorable comment.

Dean Floyd A. Bond of the Graduate School has informed Spaulding that more than 12,000 copies of the printed speech have been distributed by the University.

The July 13, Wall Street Journal carried an excerpt from the speech on its editorial page under the caption "Notable & Quotable", Typical comments received by Spaulding follow:

Harold D. Brayman, former director of the Public Relations Department of the Du-Pont Company.

That was a very good and pertinent "Notable & Quotable" comment of yours in the Wall Street Journal today. I always felt . . . that the most important contribution I made . . . was inside the company, by having the courage to argue for what I thought policy should be. It is amazing how many times corporate leadership will CHECKING NUTRITIONAL STATUS—Edward W. Ramsey, Jr., checks the nutritional status of this youngster participating in the UOCI Free Breakfast program. Various body measurements are taken. The ratio of measurement to measurement indicates whether the child is malnourished. A similar system was used to test millions of youngsters and adults in Biafra. Assisting with Ramsey's measurement is another participant in the UOCI breakfasts.
