

Durham Savoyards Limited to Present Sing-fest on Sunday

"The Mikado", Gilbert and Sullivan's most popular Operetta, has been picked by the Durham Savoyards, Ltd. as their next show. Though the production is still months away, in April, the ground work has already begun. The first sing-through for "The Mikado" will be held on Sunday, November 21, 1971, at Allied Arts, 810 Proctor Street Durham, at 3:00 p.m.

UNC Drama Professor Patricia Barnett will direct the show and Dr. Allan Bone, of the Duke Music Department, will conduct. Barnett is well known as a staff director with the Carolina Playmakers. The record audiences for her recent show, "The Birds," in the teeth of the September hurricane are an indication of her directing talents. Bone is known locally for his work with area church choirs and the Durham Civic Choral Society. Walter Johnson is the producer.

The Savoyards, who do only Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, are always on the lookout for new voices for their productions. Membership is open to anyone, young or old, living in area who enjoys singing and good company. The Savoyard shows are theater for theaters sake. The auditions, which are set for February '72, are completely open. Recent shows, like "Patience" and "Pinafore", have drawn people from all walks of life, all races and religions, and from every community in the Triangle area. Over 100 people take in each show. The sing-throughs are informal and are an opportunity to become familiar with the music, and to meet the directors and the rest of the group. Scores will be provided.

"The Mikado" thought to be G & S's finest show, is a satire, thinly veiled in Oriental Trappings, on English society of the 1880's. The music and typically entangled plot are perhaps the best example of why the magic of Gilbert and Sullivan has stayed alive for close to 100 years.

FROM BLACK

By JOHN HUDGINS

The road of life seems for the most part to be a railroad. Its tracks are firmly set as the world hammers away at you to get you to go the way others before you have gone. Perhaps this is most painfully real when the curves and side tracks of youth are getting farther apart, where the long winding stretch begins to show itself. It is this long stretch that beckons to take us to life's end.

For it is in youth that all ideas are new and all ideas bear testing. It is in youth that the hunger of change presents itself through the pangs of rebellion. It is here that we hope that life is more than a cold trail of unyielding steel from beginning to end. It is in youth that we dream that the world is a beautiful forest and life is our romping and wandering in it.

In our youth we look upon the world, and upon others in it with an idealism of beauty, of perfection, of truly, of purity, of joy, of love. We look at hunger, at pain, at hate, at war, at deprivation, as colossal mistakes, which we are willing to give gladly of self to change, to correct, to restore that proverbial garden of Eden that we are told 'once existed.

But the world wants no part of this, it cries out, leave me alone, I'm happy as I am, others are not my concern, why don't you worry about yourself? And slowly our dreams die, cause we are told they are impossible, we are called crazy, we are called troublemakers, idealists, blind children. We are told that the way it has always been, you can't change it. We learn to leave better than nothing alone. We build castles in the sky and in the suburbs and we try to forget the world that we once saw in dream. The spark of change is drowned and the waters of disillusion, of indifference, of fear, begin to pool.

And we stay on that track, cause that track is the easiest track, that track does not take us through reality again, but it

Get Ready for Winter Now! TIRE SALE

Is Tire Safety Important to You? Do You Know the Full Story?

If you're like most drivers, you've read about your tires being your only contact with the road... your last line of defense against road hazards. Considering this, and being safety conscious, perhaps you believe extra strength tires assure you against any tire failure. Not necessarily. Strength is only a small part of the tire safety story.

All the tires we sell have the strength to be safe—we wouldn't carry them otherwise—but not all of them are extra strength, and not all would be equally safe for your particular kind of driving.

We agree with a well known tire expert who said that when it comes to safety "the real essential is whether the tire will allow the driver to do what he wants to do and when he wants to and in the measure that he wants to." SAFETY! simply, is tire response under a given set of conditions.

If you're a sporty driver who drives hard and fast with little regard for rubber, you'll need a tougher tire to be safe than will a more easy-going driver. If you often carry heavy loads it would be safer and more economical to buy oversized tires. And if you frequent rough roads, you'll need above average rupture resistance to keep the same margin of safety. Many drivers don't need any extra strength.

Safety is more than a super-strong tire—it's a matter of having the right tire for your car matched to your driving needs and to your particular style of driving.

Tires are our only business. We have years of successful tire experience and we can insure that you'll always buy the right tire here. The safest tire for you. If you'll deal with us frankly and answer a few questions. Come in today. Ask about our excellent professional service and our easy-to-understand guarantees... also compare our low prices. You don't have to pay more to get the maximum in tire benefits at Rigsbee Tire Sales. Here are two examples that Rigsbee Tire offers you in Quality Tires.
