FRATERNITY OF OPPORTUNITY

By E. L. KEARNEY

What is the largest national campus fraternity with more than 400 chapters? Which fraternity was founded to help young men carry on Scouting tenets in collegiate life? Which fraternity has an objective of giving assistance to Scout councils and units? You're "with it" if you answer Alpha Phi Omega. Since its founding in 1925, more than 100,000 men have enjoyed the continuing fellowship of the Scout Oath and Law through this unique fraternity.

Founded on the ideal of service, APO is known as a service fraternity rather than a social, professional, or honorary fraternity. As such its membership uniquely includes members of other Greek letter groups. Membership qualifications are simply satisfactory scholastic standing, fellowship in the principles of Scouting, and a desire to serve others. APO cooperates with many organizations to broaden its campus fund raising efforts for charity. A nationwide project is the UMOG contest—election of the Ugliest Man on Campus; the proceeds go to the campus welfare chest or other local needs. Other popular campus projects include welcoming and orienting freshmen, providing scholarships, conducting blood donating campaigns, and operating book exchanges.

Scouting, the original bond among APO brothers, continues to hold their interest and motivate much of their service program. A wide variety of assistance is given by chapters and individual members to local councils and units.

Many chapters conduct annual career days and tours of campuses for Explorers and older Scouts. Members assist councils in getting summer camps ready and by working on camp staffs. Some chapters promote recruiting of professional Scouters by conducting a Scouting career day. Assistance is also given councils with Eagle Scout courts of honor, camporees, radio and TV programs, Explorer socials, and camp promotion.

In service to units, APO men assist with units for handicapped boys. Their talents often qualify them as merit badge counselors and skill instructors in troops and technical consultants in posts. Many also have outdoor experience to serve as hike leaders and campmasters. A few chapters have sponsored and given leadership to units in inner-city areas.

APO offers present and former Scouts and Scouters a Scouting home away from home and an opportunity to carry on the mutual objectives of leadership, fellowship, and ser-
