Jackson State Participates In PSC Program

JACKSON, MISS.—Jackson State College has recently been welcomed as a participant in the Public Service Careers Program of Mississippi (PSC). Conceived not only to employ the 21 years, and has been cited by the Alabama Press Association and the Mobile Chapter of the Sigma Delta Chi journalism fraternity. He will receive the Distinguished Publishers' Award.

disadvantaged but also as a partial solution to the manpower shortage in the expanding public sector, PSC focuses on the unemployed and underemployed who could be prepared for public service jobs or upgraded from dead-end entry-level positions.

overlooked if they reassess their requirements for entry jobs and subprofessional positions. Some PSC jobs are basically on-the-job training programs in the public sector while others actually engineer new jobs and lines of progression for disadvantaged persons.

independent special districts. On a "hire first, train later" basis, Plan A provides entry-level, on-the-job training for unemployed persons with a high school education or less, and upgrading for present agency employees who hold low-skilled jobs. Plan A also offers participating agencies federal PSC funds to cover extraordinary costs of training and upgrading the disadvantaged.

The assumption underlying PSC is that public agencies can effectively employ disadvantaged persons they formerly

God, who rules above and in earth.

We, Americans or so-called Americans have so greatly reduced by anger until there is little or no common sense applied to the Christian religion, the church, other religions of the world, educational institutions, businesses, and lesser training agencies. Anger will turn one upside down, but the love of God will turn one down side up.

He who hath ears let him hear.

cause people are out of balance. Finally, depressions and other emotional disturbances can cause people to do notorious things, or form some bad habits, which forces their minds to seek relief through different methods to bring satisfaction afterwards. But we should remember that knowing enough about our own mind and how it functions to be able to discover and correct our own faults and weaknesses, which can keep our emotions under control, and also bring peace, happiness, and self-satisfaction.

"YOUTH FOR CHRIST CRUSADE"

The New Hope Missionary Baptist Association will sponsor its Annual "Crusade For Christ," June 19-23, at Mt. Zion Baptist Church, 2315 Fayetteville Street. Nightly at 7:30 p.m.
