The English walnut really isn't English at all. It came from Persia and is just one of 21 walnut species -- six of which thrive in North America.

Music Reveals Message Of Current Generation

By JANICE CHRISTENSEN

Music has helped bridge part of the generation gap in Cleveland County. Recently members of the county's Extension Homemakers Clubs listened to the songs of today and analyzed what youth was trying to say, reports Jessie Ann Wingo, home economics extension agent.

There were almost as many responses as there were people listening, the agent notes.

One woman said, "The songs have more meaning now that I try to hear the words."

Another said she felt "They're trying to tell us to live the way we tell them to live and not the way we live ourselves."

Most of the women agreed that today's youth are asking for love rather than material things, the agent concluded.

CONVERSATION PIECE
You can convert the seat part of an old school desk into a conversation piece by covering it with fabric.

Dorothy Mobley, associate home economics extension agent, Richmond County, says you'll need about three yards of 45 inch heavy cotton fabric to do the job. Clean the chair, seal cracks and sand rough spots, she advises. Then measure the chair by sections and make paper patterns to fit, allowing for overlap. Cut fabric according to pattern.

Brush a thin layer of white glue on one section of the seat at a time and smooth fabric into place. It will make a beautiful chair for a child's room.

FLOWER BASKETS
Recycling seems to be the name of the game.

and even if one can't recycle an entire worn out washing machine, enterprising Johnston County homemakers have figured out a way to use the basket part. They fill the baskets with soil and grow flowers in them, explains

THE CAROLINA TIMES—7A

Mrs. Patricia Brown, associate home economics extension agent.

Some women have hung the baskets; others use them as yard flower pots. Either way the painted washing machine baskets are most attractive, the agent verifies.

MULCH HELPS
Mulch gives an orderly look to the garden areas around your home. When you mulch, use such materials as coarse peat moss, pine bark, pine needles or coarsely ground leaves. North Carolina State University horticulturists suggest that you select an organic material that decomposes slowly, allows water to penetrate to the soil below and adds a neutral color to the soil.

EDIBLE CANS
Before long you may see beverages sold in edible cans and candy bars in wrappers you can eat. But there are some problems that still need to be overcome. First sanitation: the edible container must be able to withstand touching and handling in addition to being strong enough to hold the product. Also cost: edible containers must be protected from contamination by dust and bacteria, adding to marketing costs.
