Seek Meeting With Indian Affairs Official

RALEIGH — Some 200 Robeson County Indians and black college students marched on North Carolina's Capitol Monday to back up Indian demands for immediate help from the state in winning federal recognition of their claim to be Tuscaroras.

The march, led by black Golden Frinks, came within moments after the Negro-Indian coalition rejected Gov. Jim Holshouser's offer to meet with their representatives Tuesday afternoon.

Frinks, state field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and spokesman for the group calling themselves Tuscaroras, accused Holshouser of attempting to create a division among Robeson County's 30,000 Indians. He also criticized Holshouser's attempt to delay the meeting.

"The governor must talk to the people when the people come to him," Frinks said. Howard Brooks of Pembroke, chief of the 80 to 100 (See MARCH 9A)

Attorneys Say Many Schools in System Still Racially Identifiable

Attorneys for the NAACP Legal Defense Fund have told a federal court that a court-ordered attendance plan based on geographical zoning has failed to desegregate the Durham city school system. In a brief filed Monday with the U.S. Middle District Court in Greensboro, the defense fund attorneys argued that "desegregation of the Durham city school as a minimum step requires pairing and clusters of schools and transportation." They also told the court that desegregation of the city school system cannot be accomplished without considering the surrounding county school system. "The Durham city school

Black Students Walkout Out At Northern High

On April 3, approximately 25 black brothers and sisters requested a conference with the administration of Northern High School concerning the unfair treatment of the Blacks and the unjust policies that were made that affected the entire student body. A sit-in demonstration was performed because the administration had refused the blacks certain rights. More and more students gathered in the school lobby concerned about what they were trying to accomplish. This drew approximately 75 other black brothers and sisters. Black assistant principal, Bobby Johnson came and questioned the students concerning their reasons for the sit-in. (See NORTHERN 9A)

Local Woman Among Panelists At Bennett Medical Symposium

Four young black women in the medical field participated in a three-day Centennial Symposium held recently at Bennett College. They participated in a panel discussion entitled "Black Women in Medicine" which was held in Henry Pfeiffer Science Building. They addressed themselves to problems and prospects which women who plan medical and health careers can expect. Two of the specialists completed their undergraduate work at Bennett. Dr. Lyvonne Mackel Washington is a dentist for the Marion County

Health and Hospital Corporation in Indianapolis, Indiana. Dr. Inez Jones White is a psychiatrist in private practice in Washington, D.C. Also participating were Miss Margaret Page, assistant coordinator, Health Professions Development of the Association for the North Carolina Regional Medical Program in Durham and Mrs. Patricia Gill Turner, program director, National Urban League Allied Health of the Professions Curriculum Development Program, Atlanta, Georgia. Dr. Washington stated that there is a dire need for dentists in this country due to the population increase and growing awareness of the importance of the service. "You must not be crippled by the behavior society delegates to all women," she advised the students. She said there is one dentist per every 2,000 people in the nation; 1 black per every 12,000 black people, and about 1 female dentist to every 100 persons. Of the 11,600 dentists in the country, only 200 are black women. Dr. Washington feels that in most instances, women make better dentists because "women have an inherent gentleness with the patient," (See SYMPOSIUM 9A)

—NBNS— MARYLAND OKAYS ANTI-BUSING MEASURE

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The Maryland House of Delegates has passed a resolution seeking to end busing of public school children in order to achieve racial balance. Passed 86-45, the bill is given little chance of passage in the Senate. Earlier this year, the Senate killed another anti-busing bill after a group of black senators filibustered for weeks. The resolution, following the example of a number of other Southern states, asks that Congress convene a federal constitutional convention so that an amendment to the constitution can be written prohibiting assignment of school pupils to schools on the basis of race. —NBNS—

Angela Davis to Speak in Raleigh Memorial Auditorium Monday

The Raleigh Chapter of the North Carolina Political Prisoners Committee will sponsor a statewide rally featuring Angela Davis as speaker, Monday evening, April 16, at the Memorial Auditorium in Raleigh at 8:00 p.m. The rally is open to the public with free admission. The world renowned Miss Davis, a former UCLA Professor of Philosophy, recently acquitted from charges of conspiracy, murder, and kidnapping, was found innocent by an all white jury. The verdict was greeted with joyful exhilaration in this country and overseas. To Angela Davis, freedom meant that she would again resume her struggle against oppression. To quote her on the day of her acquittal: "This is not only the happiest day of my life," she said, "but I am sure that all of the people who struggled for me across this country and around the world are aware that it is a symbol that we are going to free all political prisoners and the oppressed." This brilliant young scholar, who helped prepare and plead her own defense, is an author, philosopher, candidate for the doctoral degree and an ardent proponent of the constancy of struggle necessary for freedom. She is the core of an ideology that she believes seeks justice for oppressed people and the hope and aspiration of millions who question the quality and validity of the present judicial system.
