

Four Lumbee Indians At N. C. Central University

DURHAM - North Carolina Central University has four members of the Lumbee Indian group among its faculty of 330 this year.

The Lumbee teachers are Dr. Waltz Maynor, Mrs. Louise Maynor, Mrs. Cherry Beasley, and Dr. Mary Hardin.

Dr. Maynor is assistant dean of the undergraduate school at North Carolina Central University, where he has taught since 1971.

He was born in Pembroke, N.C., and graduated from Pembroke State College with a B. S. degree in mathematics. He taught high school in Oxon Hill, Md., and Fairmont, N.C., before entering graduate school at Appalachian State University, where he earned the M. A. degree in mathematics.

He holds the Ed. D. degree from Duke University.

Dr. Maynor has been a member of the Faculties of Sandhills Community College, Pembroke State University, and Appalachian State University and has served as a Research Intern at the North Carolina Advancement School.

Mrs. Louise Cummings Maynor, also a native of Pembroke, is a visiting lecturer in NCCU's Department of English. She holds a bachelor of arts degree from Pembroke State University and a master of arts degree from Appalachian State University. She has taught in public schools in North Carolina and on the college level in Tennessee, Georgia, and North Carolina.

Mrs. Cherry Maynor Beasley, a visiting lecturer in NCCU's department of nursing, is a native of Laurinburg, N.C. She holds a bachelor of science degree in nursing from the University of Michigan. She has worked at the Santa Ana Psychiatric Center in Santa Ana, California, and as a school nurse in Robeson County schools.

Dr. Mary Juanita Pate Hardin is a visiting lecturer in home economics at NCCU. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Pate of Pembroke.

Dr. Hardin is a cum laude graduate of Pembroke State University, holds a master of education degree from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, and earned her Ph. D. degree in child development and psychology at UNC-G.

Dr. Hardin has taught at Sandhills Community College, and at UNC-G, and has been employed by the Scotland County Board of Education.

WSSU HAS LARGEST GRADUATING CLASS

WINSTON-SALEM - Among the seventy-eight members of the largest class of sophomore nursing students at Winston-Salem State University who received their caps in formal ceremonies held on campus in late September, was Ms. Agretta D. Holloway.

The capping ceremony marked the beginning of the students' clinical practices in health care.

In her address to the students, Mrs. Mary Ison - Dean of the School of Nursing, urged "respect for the tradition of excellent Health Services that is the vital history of the WSSU School of Nursing."

DURHAM BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL CHAIN NEWS

by Clarence F. Bonnette

The term "franchise" is used to describe widely differing types of agreements at all stages of the distribution cycle: manufacturer/distributor, wholesaler/retailer. The form the franchise agreement takes varies from industry to industry and from company to company within an industry. The franchise may merely be a contract or license to sell a certain product or service within a given territory with only nominal payments involved. Current definitions of the term, however, stress a continuing relationship between the parent company or franchisor and the individual outlet owner or franchisee. It is believed by many that franchising, properly applied, can help in creating viable business opportunities for minority businessmen. With little or no previous experience required and continuing management assistance offered, franchising may present a possible solution to some of the problems involved in this area. The Department of Commerce's Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE) has shown enthusiasm for the idea of opening up more franchising opportunities for minorities with the financial support of the Small Business Administration which would make, or guarantee, loans to minority franchisees. (Since 1966, the Small Business Administration has considered franchisees to be small businessmen eligible for financial assistance.)

OMBE has been staging meetings in Washington for groups of interested franchisors and attempting to obtain "pledges" or "commitments" from them to open up more territories to minorities. However, only a few franchisors have established special programs providing training and financing geared to the special needs of minority applicants. Currently some 1.3% of franchised outlets are owned by minority franchisees; there are only a handful of minority franchisors.

For more information on Minority Franchisees; contact the Durham Business and Professional Chain - 511 Grant Street, Durham, N. C. or telephone 688-7356.
