The rambunctious natures of young toddlers may often lead them into situations where they can be easily burned or scalded. But, according to Dr. Albert H. Domm, child safety specialist and former medical director of the Prudential Insurance Co., parents can prevent many tragic childhood burns by exercising caution and educating their youngsters to the danger of fire.

Parents should make certain that matches and lighters are kept out of reach of the tot. "Parents who use matches must get in the habit of returning them to a safe place as soon as they are finished with them," says Dr. Domm. "Any forgetfulness in this regard could easily lead to tragedy."
