

Convention

Testimonial will be a "Salute to Theodore M. Berry", veteran Civil Rights freedom fighter, a past Deputy Director of O.E.O. and former Mayor of the City of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Opening Session of the Convention and the Official Seating of the Delegates will take place on Thursday evening at the Cincinnati Convention Center. Among those who have been invited to participate in the Opening Session are: Lerone Bennett, Author-Lecturer and Senior Editor of Ebony Magazine; Congressman Ronald V. Dellums of California; and former D. C. School Superintendent and long time community activist, Barbara Sizemore. A broad cross-section of National Black Leaders and representatives of African nations have also been invited to be present at Opening Session as Official Platform Guests.

Convention activities on March 19, will consist of a series of 14 information and Issue Oriented Open Forums with panels of experts from the National Black Community dealing with a wide range of topics from the Concerns of Black Women, Youth and Senior Citizens to issues in Economic Development, Politics and Education. The Open Forums will be followed by a series of concurrent Skill Development Workshops which will be designed to provide information and skills in the areas of Voter Registration, Campaign Organization and Building Black Assemblies. A day long Political and Organizational Development Chairperson, Mtangulizi Sanyika (formerly Haywood Henry) will discuss the National Black Assembly's 1976 Political Strategy; National Co-Chairperson, Mashariki Kurudisha will present the 1976 Black Political Platform; and National Chairperson, Ron D. Daniels will outline the Goals and Future Direction of the National Black Assembly.

The highlight and most historic moment of the Convention will come on

Wilmington 10

(Continued From Page One) The group has generated considerable national support by the Reverend Ben Chavis, one of the ten, and who is regarded as a leader of the group, "may have resulted in highly questionable testimony of paid informers, and that the government's interest in prosecuting him may have been politically motivated."

Attorneys for the Wilmington Ten have documented over 2,000 errors in the State's presentation. Among other "serious questions" that the defense attorneys raise in the case are:

- rights have been infringed by not having a fair and impartial jury;

- excessive bail, totalling 400,000 dollars;

- withholding of evidence from the defense;

- Attorney Ferguson says, "the evidence documenting racist prejudice on the part of the state authorities in this case is overwhelming."

LETTER OF THANKS

Marvin S. Gooch, director of the Casual Employment Center of the Durham County Department of Social Services wishes to acknowledge and thank the public for its contributions in making Christmas dinner possible for 200 or more victims of alcohol.

On December 23, St. Joseph's A.M.E. Church sponsored dinner for 150 of these victims. Faith Tabernacle Church located on Troy Street served 35 or 40 men on Christmas Day. This meal was made available to several of the men, who were unemployed.
