

Nashville To Host Nation's Largest Aviation Maintenance Seminar

NASHVILLE - On March 30, the Tenth Annual Tennessee Mid-South General Aviation Maintenance Seminar - the largest and best known seminar in the nation's aviation industry - will convene for three days (March 30-April 1) in the State of Tennessee's hangar on the Nashville Metropolitan Airport.

Last year's seminar attracted more than 450 aviation maintenance specialists and 30 major general aviation manufacturers and distributors who provided exhibits, a variety of literature, and participated actively in the meetings and classroom presentations. This annual event is designed to provide the very latest in aviation maintenance information and techniques. Attendance this year is expected to be the largest in the seminar's 30-year history.

A unique feature of the Mid-South Seminar is that no commercialism is allowed, and there is no charge to participants or manufacturers. All costs are borne solely by Tennessee's Department of Transportation, Bureau of Aeronautics. Also participating in the three-day program will be General Aviation Maintenance Specialists from the Federal Aviation Administration's Washington, Southern Region and local Flight Standards Offices.

Persons desiring to register for the seminar can obtain full details by writing to the Tennessee Bureau of Aeronautics, P. O. Box 17326, Nashville, Tenn. 37217; or by calling (615) 741-3208.

BITS AND PIECES

Among the recommendations resulting from a two-day National Conference on Human Experimentation, held in Reston, Va., was the barring of all biomedical research in prisons, on children and the mentally infirmed and that a national body be set up to see that justice is done to research subjects such as minority groups, ethnic, the poor and the mentally infirmed. The conference was sponsored by the National Urban Coalition. "We don't want to kill science," said M. Carl Holman, NUC president, "but we don't want science to kill, mangle and abuse us."

Coleman, a graduate of Southern Illinois University and formerly an assistant treasurer in the Management Recruitment Dept. of Bankers Trust Company, NYC, has joined Interspace Personnel Agency, Inc. as manager consultant to President William Ellis. History Quiz? Why did Black Nationalists disrupt a UN Session in 1961? Patrice E. Lumumba (1925-1961) was the first prime minister of the Republic of the Congo (Zaire). In 1960, with independence, came civil war; a UN peacekeeping force went in, as did British and Rhodesian mercenaries. Eventually Lumumba was captured and murdered. He became a hero to nationalists all over the world. Academies were established in some Communist nations to honor him as a martyr in the fight against neo-colonialism; nationalists in the U.S. showed their protest by disrupting a UN session. In Montgomery, Ala., Solomon Seay Jr., a black lawyer who grew up with the civil right movement has gone to federal court to prevent discrimination against whites in rural Alabama county. Seay, acting on behalf of the NEA, accused the Lowndes County board of education of violating a 1973 district court offer to hire on a non-racial basis. All three top jobs were filled by blacks this year.

The New York State Legislature's Black and Puerto Rican Caucus has re-elected Assembly Arthur O'Vee, (D.-Buffalo) as chairman of the 20-member group.

Disease

Rogers pointed out that because the manner of infection has yet to be firmly established, there is no known prevention of the disease. The present epidemic began in November of 1975, when three children were diagnosed. There have since been two more cases, both adult women. Two more women and one child have recently been hospitalized with suspicion of the disease.

"We are not sure if we are just beginning, in the middle, or at the end of the epidemic," Rogers cautioned. "These patients may represent the tip of the iceberg. There could be others who are infected, but are not now (or will never be) clinically ill."

EVERY BOY OR GIRL CAN BE A WINNER!

RALEIGH - Every eligible boy or girl who enters the 4-H traffic safety poster contest will be a winner.

A safety belt game will be given to everyone who submits a poster, according to Linda H. Washburn, 4-H Agent. County winners receive bicycle maintenance and safety kits, and the state winner receives a bicycle.

The purposes of the contest, which is open to youngsters between 9 and 12 years of age, are to provide boys and girls an opportunity to learn about and to promote traffic safety and to make them more safety conscious.

Posters must be made about one of these topics: bicycle safety, pedestrian safety, automotive safety, safety belt usage, motorcycle safety or school bus safety.

Posters should be made on 8½ x 11 inch paper, and youngsters should write their name, address, age, parent's name and count on the back of the poster.

The deadline for entries is March 10. Posters should be mailed to: 4-H Poster Contest, LinWashburn, 721 Foster St., Durham 27701.

Winners will be announced in early April.

The Agent says judging will be based on creativeness, attractiveness and educational value.

The contest is sponsored by the North Carolina Association of Insurance Agents, Inc., and the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Yes, We All Talk

By Marcus H. Boulware

GETTING STARTED IN CONVERSATION

Often when in the presence of other persons, the burden falls upon you getting the conversation started. Each of the following instincts provides you with the means for arousing interest in other people to the extent they want to talk. Four of them can always be used as keys to open up a conversation:

1. Attraction
2. Self-assertion.
3. Pugnacity.
4. Curiosity.

The following three instincts kill interest and should never be used:

1. Repulsion.
2. Self-abasement.
3. Flight.

One of the most famous of distinguished French women, who conducted brilliant salons where witty conversation sparkled, was Madame Recamier. She could make each guest feel that she like him particularly and had a special interest in him.
