Twelve NCCU Faculty Members And Employees To Be Honored Sunday

Twelve North Carolina Central University faculty members and employees will be honored by their fellow workers at a reception Sunday, April 26. The twelve are officially retiring.

Some may continue to work full-time with the university. For Dr. Charles W. Orr, the official retirement dictated by the calendar permits a welcome resumption of a heavier teaching load.

Dr. Orr has served as director of summer sessions and continuing education. That administrative position has not allowed him to carry a full teaching load as professor of education. His appointment as a professor of education next year will permit him to resume the classroom work he thrives on.

In alphabetical order, the retiring personnel are as follows:

Hodgesty V. Alston, security officer, who joined the university as a watchman in 1966.

Miss Mary Bohanon, assistant professor of English, who joined the university faculty in 1948,

Mrs. Mattie Canty, housekeeping assistant, who joined the university staff in 1955.

Mrs. Josephine Denard, secretary, who joined the university in 1956.

Mrs. Anne M. Duncan, assistant professor of law and law librarian, who joined the faculty and staff in 1952.

Latha Gray, housekeeping assistant, who joined the university staff in 1964.

Caulbert A. Jones, associate professor of history, who joined the faculty in 1947.

Dr. Orr, professor of education and director of summer sessions and continuing education, who joined the faculty in 1963.

Dr. Sylvia Render, professor of English, who joined the faculty in 1964.

Mrs. Luetta Sims, housekeeping supervisor, who joined the staff as a housekeeping assistant in 1956.

Mrs. Willie G. Sneed, housekeeping supervisor, who joined the staff as a housekeeping assistant in 1954.

Mrs. Dorothy Williams, food service assistant, who joined the staff in 1967.

Social Security

Social security payments may ultimately go "cashless." The Treasury Department is already experimenting with a direct deposit program for social security checks. Such a program would eliminate much of the paperwork currently required. By 1979, the Treasury hopes to send the deposit checks by computer tape message flashed over the Federal Reserve's wire system to all regions of the country.

Dr. Samuel D. Cook Installed As 6th Dillard President

Dr. Samuel DuBois Cook, educator and former professor of political science at Duke University, was formally installed as the sixth president of Dillard University during ceremonies that were held on the university campus April 2 and 3.

The preliminaries opened Friday with a convocation featuring the Rev. Jesse Jackson, national president of People United to Save Humanity (PUSH), and the university lecture by Dr. Kenneth B. Clark, renowned psychologist, a past president of the American Psychological Association and a distinguished professor emeritus of the City College of City University of New York. The inaugural ceremony was conducted in Lawless Memorial Chapel on Saturday with delegates and representatives of more than 100 universities, colleges, foundations and learned societies in attendance.

Dr. Myron F. Wicke, president of the Dillard Board of Trustees, installed Dr. Cook, after the summons had been announced by Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president emeritus of Morehouse College, where Dr. Cook received his baccalaureate degree during his administration as president.

Dr. Harold Howe, III, vice president for Education and Research, The Ford Foundation, delivered the inaugural address. In 1969 Dr. Cook went on a two-year leave from Duke University to the Ford Foundation as a program officer in higher education and research. He returned to Duke University in 1971 as a full professor. Dr. Howe was introduced by Dr. Elton C. Harrison, vice president for administration and planning at Dillard.
