

5 Receive Awards At Hampton

HAMPTON, VA (NNPA) Hampton Alumnus John H. Sengstacke, president of the National Newspaper Publishers Association — the Black Press of America — and head of the Sengstacke Newspaper chain, was the principal speaker at the recent 86th annual Founder's Day observance here during which five outstanding Americans were honored.

The five who received Founder's Day Awards for outstanding service from Dr. William R. Harvey, president of Hampton Institute, are: Sengstacke, Gordon B. Cutler, retired local banker and longtime friend of the college; Mrs. Ann Kilgore, former Hampton mayor and city councilwoman; Dr. Flemmie P. Kittrel former dean of home economics here and at Howard University; and Henry "Hank" Parker, treasurer of the state of Connecticut.

Another highlight of the ceremony was the presentation of a grave-side ceremony in memory of General Samuel Chapman Armstrong, founder of the college. A wreath was placed at his grave by the ROTC.

These are: James S. Barnes, music; Mrs. Willie Male Barnes, Clothing Care Center; James A. Bell, Career Planning and Placement; Severin R. Beyma, mathematics; Mrs. R. Ileana Johnson, Early Childhood Education; Mrs. Barbee Pleasant, secretary of the college; and Dr. George B.D. Stephens, Student Health Center.

Sengstacke, in his Founder's Day address, praised General Armstrong of the Union army for establishing Hampton to "help former slaves acquire skills and functional learning to meet the exacting requirements in a workaday world."

Continuing, the publisher of the Chicago Daily Defender and a chain of nine Pines of Carolina Girl Scout camps are other newspapers said: "General Armstrong had a dream of a new Jerusalem for blacks...Nowhere in America is that dream pursued with greater intensity and faithfulness than here at Hampton."

anticipating full houses this summer. Girl Scouts and non-Scouts are welcome. Resident Camp Mary Atkinson in Johnston County will begin its sessions June 24. Varied programs include archery, pottery, canoeing, tennis, basketball, outdoor cooking, swimming, softball, creative arts and nature hikes. For complete information, contact Gay Byers, Pines of Carolina Girl Scout Council, Route 8, Box 59, Raleigh, N.C. 27612 or call 782-3021.

There are over three million such policies in force in North Carolina, and Ingram's concern is that such policies serve the customers properly.

Cross acknowledged having several members in Durham and Wilson in his employ. Bishop Carr is reported to have had other churches in Wilson and Florence, S.C.

The church was investigated last year by the Durham District Attorney who later turned the case over to the FBI.

Refugees

[Continued From Page 1] were denied military aid, Chikuse said because they were called terrorist. But Smith's racist white regime is represented by the U.S. press as "maintaining law and order". Bombing of unarmed refugee camps are reported by U.S. media as attacks on terrorist camps. The United Nations Commission for Refugees maintains the camps. "The press never talks about the genocidal war in Zimbabwe when they talk about a plane shot down with 58 whites aboard. They never talk about entire villages being wiped out," Chikuse charged. 100 Africans are killed daily in his country by Ian Smith's troops, he maintained.

POLITICAL SUPPORT NEEDED TO STOP APRIL 20 ELECTIONS Political support, Chikuse said is needed to pressure members of the U.S. Senate's Foreign Relations Committee from traveling to Zimbabwe April 20 to observe the so-called elections for majority rule.

North Carolina's Republican Senator Jesse Helms has announced that he will be a part of the delegation which will observe the elections and report back to the Senate. Many Senators contend that "free elections" of April 20 will pass rule of the government to the black african majority, thus eliminating the need for economic sanctions imposed against the Smith regime. Several U.S. corporations are anxious to get Zimbabwe's chrome, now blocked by the United Nations and U.S. trade sanctions.

Local demonstrations are planned to focus pressure on Senator Jesse Helms' African visit. Chikuse remarked that the April 20 elections "will take place over a lot of our dead bodies," also adding that he hopes Helms and the other senators are shot by revolutionaries.

"We welcome them. We hope they pass within the arch of our guns accidentally. We just hope they pass through well within the arch of our guns when they are monitoring those elections," the leader said.

"How can someone in this world ever justify that there can be free and democratic elections in a country which is at war, a country where 90 per cent of the country is under martial law; in a country where one-third of the African population is living in so-called concentration villages?" questioned Chikuse. "If there can be democratic and free elections under such conditions somewhere then someone is mad somewhere."
