I assure you I have been restrained," Young said.

Young has come under fire several times from all corners of the administration when he spoke out on social issues concerning African nations and the role of Cuba on the African continent.

President Carter praised Young in a letter of acceptance that was read by Press Secretary Jody Powell.

Carter said that Young earned the United States the respect of many nations that were skeptical and suspect of the United States.

Young said he did not want the Carter Administration or Secretary of State Cyrus Vance to be held responsible for some of the decisions that he has made and feels that he should make, all, in his opinion, were very much in the interest of the nation. Young said that he will pursue his interest in foreign and domestic policy as a private citizen.

wants freedom to do some things he wants to. Young said there was no pressure from Secretary Vance or President Carter, but made his decision after talking with Carter.

Young said he welcomed the opportunity to leave the Administration and that he did not agree with the U.S. policy not to recognize the PLO.

Young acknowledged the growing political and potential economic strength of the PLO.
