HIGHLIGHTS OF PARENTING CONFAB I

The Parenting concept, as viewed by the PTA, is any and all functions and activities having to do with the conception, birth, care and protection, education, and/or rearing of a child.

A conference, Parenting I, "Motivation: Responsibility and Commitment", was held on Dec. 6 at Holloway Street School in Durham. It was sponsored by the Durham City Council of the Parent-Teacher Association.

Jack Jewel, manager of Management Development,

IBM, Research Triangle Park, was the speaker. He told the audience that once we accept the responsibility for all of our environment, then we are able to move forward. Without committing ourselves to being responsible human beings, we easily become stagnant, with no hopes of achieving progress or solving our problems.

The discussion that followed the presentation indicated that the audience gained a great deal from the speaker's message.
