'80 Elections

WASHINGTON—Mayor Richard Hatcher, President of the National Conference of Black Mayors, Inc. (NCBM), has announced that the organization will focus the Sixth Annual Convention program on the importance of the vote on all elections, but with particular emphasis on the presidential race. The 1980 convention will be held in Washington, D.C., April 17-19, at the Sheraton-Washington Hotel.

The theme of the convention, "Voting: A Key to Political and Economic Viability," encourages the participation of a wide variety of key service, business and educational institutions, explained Hatcher, as strategies are developed to mobilize the constituents of our member mayors for the 1980 presidential elections.

According to Michelle D. Kourouma, NCBM's executive director, the conference is expected to attract nearly 1,000 registrants from across the country, who will participate in a series of workshops to aid in the development of local municipalities. Prominent speakers, such as the Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, Dick Gregory, former Sen. Edward Brook, Mrs. Coretta Scott King, and Dr. Joseph L. Lowery will address the conferees during the three-day working session.

Conference highlights will include an Awards Luncheon on Friday, April 18 and the annual Tribute To A Black American dinner on Saturday, the 19th, featuring Ms. Freda Payne.

The National Conference of Black Mayors, Inc. is a non-profit, non-partisan service organization founded to assist the black mayors in defining their problems and identifying sources of funds to improve the social and economic conditions of their constituents.
