TBS Evening News Premieres

ATLANTA, GA — The TBS Evening News, an hour of national and international news, premieres Monday, July 21 at 10 p.m. on WTBS, the Super Station from Atlanta. Seven nights a week, The TBS Evening News will give an overview of the events of the day.

It will be co-anchored Monday through Friday by Ann Butler and David Allen Jensen.

The weekend hosts will be announced in the near future. Kevin Christopher will be on sports.

The Super Station's newscast will draw on the resources of the Cable News Network (Turner Broadcasting System's new 24-hour news channel), the AP and UPI wire services and the resources of a greatly enlarged WTBS news staff. In addition to the day's top stories, The TBS Evening News includes sports coverage, entertainment, business and financial reports, and special segments on health, the environment and energy. A special feature of the broadcast is "The Larger Issue," an overview of the top story or most interesting story of the day.

Co-anchor David Allen Jensen began his broadcasting career in 1966 as a radio announcer in his native Canada. In 1970, Jensen moved to western Europe, where he became an immediate leading personality on radio Luxembourg. His work there led to several guest appearances and then to permanent status on the BBC in 1976. Since then, Jensen has hosted numerous public affiars programs, musical broadcasts and talk shows, and has guested on dozens of television specials throughout Europe. His immense continental popularity led to his being voted London's leading radio personality by Variety earlier this year.

Ann Butler comes to WTBS from Hartford, Conn., where she hosted that city's edition of P.M. Magazine. She began her career in a training program at the Post-Newsweek television outlet in Washington, D. C. Butler has worked in Baltimore as a television news director, and her on-air work has earned her several Emmy Awards.

Before joining The TBS Evening News, sports anchor Kevin Christopher pursued his career as an actor-announcer in New York. With literrally dozens of televisio commercials and voice-overs to his credit, Christopher has also appeared in the national tours of Broadway shows such as "The Fantastics," and in summer stock productions including "Camelot," "Skin of Our Teeth," and "Little Murders." His extensive sports background goes back to his high school days, when he lettered in football, baseball and soccer. His continued enthusiasm for and understanding of athletics, together with his performing background, make him a natural in the field of sports commentary.

Carol Kline Joins Channel 8

HIGH POINT — WGHP-TV Executive News Director Jim Bennett announced the hiring of Carol Kline as a reporter for TV 8 Eyewitness News, effective June 2.

Ms. Kline is a graduate of the University of Southern California where she received her Bachelor of Arts degree magna cum laude. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and received her masters in Japanese Thought from Columbia University.

She pursued additional studies at USC in broadcast reporting and writing and news production. Her most recent assignment on the West Coast was in producing documentaries for KNXT (CBS) in Los Angeles. She has been a news anchor, producer and editor both in California and for five years with the Japan Cable Television, Tokyo. Ms. Kline is also the author of two books.

"We are pleased to have Carol Kline join our news team," commented Bennett. "Her expertise and depth will contribute to the strength of our fine department and all of us consider her a valuable addition to our news efforts."

Her first series "O Promise Me" aired on TV Eyewitness News June 11-13 and was a three-part look at marriage in the North Carolina Piedmont region. Ms. Kline joins the TV Eyewitness News team weeknights at six and eleven on WGHP-TV 8.

The Lathe Of Heaven

If by some quirk our dreams could make changes in the world around us, could we create a Utopia? Public television's first made-for-television movie, The Lathe of Heaven, an adaptation of Ursula K. le Guin's 1971 bestselling, science fiction novel, dramatizes the possibilities of such a "blessing." The film returns to UNC-TV on Monday, July 21 at 8 p.m. on Channel 4.

George Orr, portrayed by Bruce Davison, is a man plagued by his dreams. Whenever he has an "effective dream," it actually comes true. Reality — the past, present and future — has been directly affected when he awakens. In an attempt to rid himself of this terrifying affliction, Orr begins therapy with a dream analyst, Dr. William Haber, played by Kevin Conway.

Instead of seeking a cure for his patient's unique problem, Dr. Haber sees an opportunity to rid society of the "evils" that have brought it and the world to the brink of self-destruction. Placing Orr under hypnosis, Haber forces him to dream up a world that is free of war, disease, racism and over-population. However, there are terrible, unpredictable side-effects. Requested by Haber to dream away racism, Orr literally equalizes everyone, changing skin, hair and eyes to a ghastly and depressing shade of grey. Unsatisfied, the doctor gradually becomes obsessed with his power over Orr's dreams and the search of Utopia. He forces Orr to dream and dream again, forever seeking the perfect world. Finally, the fabric of society begins to fall apart.

A series of eye-boggling special effects utilizing lasers and computer graphic enhances the sequence of dreams created inside Orr's mind. The dreams, which account for most of the action in the film, are shot as if they were actual happenings and not figments of imagination.

Haber's decisions are the same that face our society today. According to the author, The Lathe Of Heaven shows what can happen if the American Dream becomes an American Nightmare. "Both the book and the movie make [illegible] point, but it's not easy to boil down into one sentence. You have to figure it out."
