

U.S. Air Force Officer To Visit City

U.S. AIR FORCE ACADEMY, COLO. — Second Lieutenant Willie Gunn, a 1980 graduate of the academy, will be speaking to minority and other high school students throughout the Durham area who are interested in the academy.

Why should a minority high school student be interested in attending the academy? Primarily because he or she can get an education at a school which is recognized for its outstanding academic program and also for its outstanding career opportunities following graduation. The academy pays for each student's tuition, room, meals, school equipment and medical care, and allows an additional $400 per month to help cover necessary personal expenses.

The average class at the academy consists of fifteen to twenty students which permits personal discussion between the cadet and the instructor. Basic courses in the sciences, social sciences and humanities are required during the first two years. This allows each cadet to attain a basic knowledge of many subjects.

During the final two years, cadets develop their own potential and tailor their program to suit their individual talents and interests. After graduation, the Air Force guarantees the student a job as a second lieutenant.

The basic eligibility requirements are as follows:

- Be at least seventeen and not have reached 22nd birthday by July 1 of the year of entry.
- Unmarried.
- A United States citizen by the date of entry.

Any student who can meet these requirements and is interested in top quality education and a guaranteed job as an officer in the regular Air Force (a position similar to a junior executive in most large companies) should plan to speak with Lt. Gunn between October 8, 1980 to October 9, 1980. Please call Major William Burnette, the academy liaison officer coordinator, at (919) 876-7081 for the actual times and places.

Everything but the Kitchen Sink

The big news in kitchens these days is wood, earth tones, and an abundance of plants. Beautiful hardwoods are everywhere, from floor to ceiling covering everything but the top of the stove and kitchen sink. It's a wonderful lived-in look.

It's all part of the back-to-nature theme that has been dominating the fashion and home furnishings world for almost ten years now. And, why the idea had to simmer so long before it took over in the kitchen is anyone's guess.

Fortunately, hardwood cabinets are available in an infinite variety of styles, finishes and sizes. If it's the new rustic look that appeals to you, you'll find simple, straightforward designs in such richly marked hardwoods as knotty oak, wormy chestnut, to name a few. And, if you prefer traditional or early American, you will find a variety of handsome designs in maple, walnut, oak and ash. Whatever style you choose, you'll be right in style and the warm natural tones of wood will make your kitchen as inviting and refreshing as a breath of fresh air.
