NCCU Founder's Day Set For Friday, Nov. 7

Dr. Charles Cobb To Be Keynoter

Dr. Charles E. Cobb, executive director of the Commission for Racial Justice of the United Church of Christ, will speak at North Carolina Central University's Founder's Day exercise at 11 a.m., Friday November 7.

The program honors the memory of Dr. James E. Shepard, who founded NCCU in 1910 and served as its president until 1947. Dr. Cobb was a student during Dr. Shepard's presidency.

He also holds the Bachelor of Divinity degree from Howard University and the Master of Sacred Theology degree from Boston University.

Prior to assuming his current post with the United Church of Christ, Dr. Cobb was pastor of St. John's Congregational Church in Springfield, Massachusetts.

His honors include an honorary degree from Houston-Tillotson University, the 1980 Outstanding Alumnus citation from Howard University, and the Frederick Douglass Citation from the NAACP for outstanding achievements in the struggle for black liberation.

The Founder's Day program will also include the dedication of a campus building in memory of Harold W. Alexander and Wayne M. Dunn. The building, at one time the university cafeteria, now houses the university's Academic Skills Center, of which Dunn was a staff member and Alexander was the founder.

The university's Career Counseling and Placement Center is situated in the basement level of the Alexander-Dunn Building.

NCCU GRADS ELIGIBLE FOR INTERNSHIPS

Graduates of the Food and Nutrition Program in North Carolina Central University's Department of Home Economics may now participate in post-baccalaureate programs leading to registration by the American Dietetic Association.

Dr. Beverly A. Nichols, chairman of the department, announced this week that the NCCU program has been approved by the American Dietetic Association for student participation in the ADA's Plan IV, Clinical Dietetics and Food Service Systems Management.

Upon graduation, students may apply for a Dietetic Internship program accredited by the ADA, Dr. Nichols said.

The six-to-twelve-month internship programs provide planned instruction and assignments in a clinical setting to prepare entry-level dietitians. Many of the programs are associated with graduate schools and offer credit toward the master's degree.

Dietitians who complete the internship programs and are endorsed by the program director may then apply for active membership in the American Dietetic Association.

ERWIN TO BE SWORN IN OCTOBER 31

Richard C. Erwin, former Judge, North Carolina Court of Appeals, will be sworn in as the First Black Federal Judge since Reconstruction for the U. S. Middle District of North Carolina on Friday, October 31, 1980 at 2:00 p.m., in the Forsyth County Courthouse in Winston-Salem. Immediately the swearing in, there will be a public reception at the Benton Convention Center from 2:45 - 4:30 p.m.

Durham Market Analysis Is Released

Mrs. Betsy H. Stafford, Area Manager of the Greensboro Area Office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, has released an Analysis of the Durham Housing Market.

The Analysis presents an estimate of the demand for new, unsubsidized sales and rental housing in the Durham area during the next two years. Additionally, the study outlines the major economic, demographic, and housing factors currently influencing the Durham Housing Market. Among the major conclusions in the study is that the demand for new unsubsidized housing will average about 2,030 units annually during the next two years. Included in this total are 1,200 new single family sales units, 740 rental units, thirty mobile homes, and fifty multi-family sales units. Population of the Durham Housing Market Area (defined as Durham County) is estimated to be 147,950 as of April 1, 1980. By April 1, 1982, the County's population is expected to increase to approximately 150,800 persons.

Mrs. Stafford indicated that free copies of the analysis may be obtained by writing the director, Economic and Market Analysis Division, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, 415 North Edgeworth Street, Greensboro, 27401.

800 Black Churches Support Carter

Rev. Amos Brown, chair of the Black Caucus of the American Baptist Convention, has announced that 800 black churches of the Convention have endorsed President Carter's reelection. Rev. Amos is also pastor of the historic Third Baptist Church of San Francisco, California.

Rev. Brown says the churches have launched an all-out effort to get church members to the polls and turn out the largest possible vote for (Continued On Page 8)

Youth—The Law and the Ballot

Affairs of Black People Holds Fifth Forum of the Year

The Youth Committee of the Committee on the Affairs of Black People in its fifth forum of the year had as its theme "Youth—the Law and the Ballot". Panelists for the forum were Attorney A.J. Howard Clement, III, former member of the North Carolina House of Representatives; Officer Ralph Mack, youth investigator, Durham Department of Public Safety, and Attorney Kenneth B. Spaulding, member of the North Carolina House of Representatives.

Clement defined law as a mechanism to bring order and/or keep order in man's relationships with each other and things. In contrasting city liaison programs, he said that it is projected that in the proposed city schools program, the police will have official authority because their authority lies within the city while, in the county schools, the city police have no authority. Such projected police visibility and authority in the city schools gives parents, students, educators and concerned citizens very negative feelings toward the program, the Forum decided.

It was also recalled during the Forum that when the program (police liaison) was originally presented, it was accepted by then city schools superintendent, Dr. Ben Brooks, and then city school Board chairman, Dr. T.R. Speigner. The Forum consensus was that all present

Durham Committee To Hold Rally

The Political Subcommittee of the Durham Committee on the Affairs of Black People will hold its second rally, Saturday, October 25.

The purpose of Saturday's rally is to make potential voters aware of the crucial issues in the November 4 election as well as to stress the importance of the power of the ballot. The Committee also hopes to dispel some of the voter apathy that is being expressed during this election year.

"This is a very critical election year, and we must impress this upon the people," said Dr. E. Lavonia Allison, chairman of the Political Subcommittee.

Moreover, the Congressional Black Caucus has released a report that deals with the problem of black underrepresentation in the United States legislative branch.

The report indicates that only sixteen black Americans out of 535

Durham City Schools Board members, administrators, parents and students should have input into the decision to accept or reject the police liaison program; and that the City Schools are making rapid progress.

It was suggested that if the Police Department would expand its youth investigative program to have a speakers' bureau, then educators, community groups and other concerned citizens could request "such positive services as those rendered by officer Ralph Mack, along with all the other panelists."

Attorney Spaulding suggested that it would be a helpful follow-through to make it possible for librarians at the high schools throughout the state to climax required courses in civic responsibilities and privileges with offering voter registration to eligible students.

It was pointed out that Civics was once a required course in high schools and that successful completion of that course enabled many youth to become intelligent about laws with govern our society. It was believed that ignorance of law contributes to the large numbers of young offenders and repeated offenders.

Many other youth problems involving the law and the ballot were touched upon.

ACCESS PREDICTS SOUTH AFRICA'S EXCLUSION FROM EISENHOWER CUP

Dr. Richard E. Lapchick, National Chairman of ACCESS, predicted recently that the disruptions at last week's Eisenhower Cup Golf Tournament would end South Africa's participation in that event in the future.

According to those involved in protesting the event, the withdrawal of several nations has to hasten the permanent exclusion of South Africa from the event. The withdrawal occurred after the United States Golf Association insisted on allowing South Africa to participate.

Lapchick said that the World Amateur Golf Council, the international governing body for the tournament, would follow the pattern of other sports bodies and abandon the representatives of racism. He recalled that "International Tennis Federation, led by the U.S. Tennis Association, tried to keep South Africa as a participant in the Davis Cup for many years. However, after nations refused to compete, venues had to be changed as demonstrations increased. The USTA and the ITF suspended South Africa in 1978." Lapchick added that ACCESS "was deeply involved in that process and we based our Eisenhower Cup campaign on what we learned from tennis."

South Africa was banned from the Eisenhower Cup in 1978 when the Fiji government refused them visas. This year's cup had to be moved from Brazil where the South Africans would have also faced the denial of visas, Lapchick said.

"The U.S. Golf Association was only too happy to accommodate the racists. What they did not expect was the domestic protest against the event. ACCESS put pressure on the U.S. Golf Association, President Carter, local officials in Pinehurst, North Carolina where the event was staged, and ABC-TV, which was to televise the event."

Even now it has been announced that the site of the next cup in 1982 had been changed from Sweden, where South Africa could be denied visas, to Switzerland.

The turning point took place when ACCESS began contacting the governments of other nations. The United Nations Special Committee Against Apartheid then took action on this issue (Continued On Page 8)

Beware On Halloween

Danger may lurk in the shadows along with Halloween ghosts and goblins unless safety precautions are used in Halloween merry-making.

To assure a safe celebration on October 31, the North Carolina Insurance News Service urges parents to give special attention to costumes and treats.

"A safe costume doesn't have to be expensive," said Emerson Sharpe, regional Insurance Company manager.

Sharpe advised that costumes be a light, visible color. If you have a witch or Darth Vader in your midst, put reflective tape on all sides of the costume, he said. And you can eliminate nasty spills by making sure the costume isn't too long or baggy.

"Use make-up instead of a mask," suggested Sharpe. "It can create an equally spooky illusion and makes seeing much easier."

Chairman Sharpe said most parents realize the importance of safety procedures for trick-or-treaters, but he offered these reminders:

- On trick-or-treat night, make sure that an adult or older teenager accompanies children on their rounds. Stay in your own neighborhood, and knock only on doors where there's a welcoming light.

- Children should be instructed not to eat any treats until they are carefully examined at home. Unwrapped or home-wrapped items such as popcorn should be discarded unless they come from a close friend. Fruits should be washed well and cut into small pieces.

You can make Halloween even easier and just as much fun for the kids by attending school or recreation department activities, says Sharpe. Consideration could also be given to a stay-at-home Halloween, complete with bobbing for apples and a haunted room.

However you decide to celebrate "All Hallow's Eve" with your youngsters, the N.C. Insurance News Service says "keep it safe."
