EBENEZER COMES BACK — In the spring of 1989, the City of Durham experienced the most devastating tornado in its history. Ebenezer Baptist Church 2200, South Alston Ave. was in the path of the tornado. Consequently, it was almost destroyed. Since that time, the church has been in a constant struggle to restore the building to its original state.

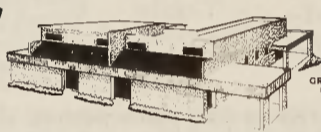

On Sunday, April 8, the congregation of Ebenezer will gather on the church site for a grand march in celebration of return to the church. This will also be Ebenezer's "annual homecoming" day. The return march and the reconstructed building will be a wonderful event for Ebenezer, and members would like to have the Durham community share in this historic celebration.

Ebenezer is most appreciative of having its community leaders, neighboring churches and people from all over the state rally to its spiritual and financial during its time of distress.
The celebration of returning to the church, by having a grand march at 10:30 a.m., regular morning worship service at 11 a.m., and the Homecoming Service at 3 p.m., all on the same day will be quite significant, historic and joyous occasion. Reverend T. W. Price, pastor of Russell Memorial CME Church and the Russell congregation will be guests for the Homecoming service.
