Let's Talk Turkey!
 By Victoria Flemming
 Our family has come up with a frugal, yet healthful, system for meal planning. We buy whatever the supermarket has on sale that can be stretched out over several meals and then cook it on Monday. We buy on sale turkeys, large roaster chickens, smoked hams, or two main meals, lunch sandwiches and casseroles. We try out new recipes and, by alternating with pasta, vegetable dishes and seafood, don't eat meat every day. So I was pleased with a sale on large white-meat turkey breasts for 99 cents a pound. When I got to the store, another shopper asked me where the sale birds were. All we could find in the bin were breasts priced at $1.99 a pound — double our expectation! We confronted the head butcher and showed him the store flyer. He took our packages and re-priced them, but I wonder about the other couple of dozen still in the bin and others already sold. My buddy shopper said she would never have dared to challenge the store. Indeed! Mistakes can happen and part of good shopping is checking the sales. Oh, I also had a 75-cent coupon for the turkey!
 Then a young woman wandered by clutching a huge smoked ham and mumbling that she was unsure of how to prepare it for an upcoming birthday party. I told her even I couldn't ruin an already cooked ham and explained how to bake and garnish it. She was delighted, but my husband later reminded me at home that I had forgotten to warn her about the almost-invisible double plastic wrapping on that brand of ham. Oops!

Super Salad Sandwich
 By Deanna Gugel
 1 loaf French bread
 2 cups diced chicken meat
 2 cups ground ham
 1 pound sliced American cheese
 32 oz. cream cheese
 2 cups mayonnaise-style salad dressing
 1/4 cup diced celery
 1/4 cup diced onions
 1/4 cup sweet relish
 1/8 cup diced pimientos
 1 tsp. sea salt
 Pineapple juice to taste
 In one bowl mix together the diced chicken meat, a half cup of mayonnaise-style salad dressing, the diced celery and diced onions. Season with 1 tsp. of sea salt. You can add up to another half cup of the salad dressing, according to your own tastes. The ingredients should just be coated with the salad dressing, not smothered in the salad dressing. In another bowl combine the ground ham, a half cup of the salad dressing, sweet relish and the diced pimientos. Once again you may add up to a half cup more salad dressing. Slice a loaf of fresh French bread at least 24 inches long lengthwise in thirds. On the bottom strip of the French bread, spread the chicken salad evenly over the top of the slice. Lay the middle strip of the French bread loaf over the chicken salad. Spread the ham salad over the top of the middle strip of the bread. Then break the American cheese slices into strips that will cover the layer of ham salad. Top with the final layer of the bread loaf. In a third bowl whip the cream cheese and 1/4 cup of the pineapple juice with a hand mixer until smooth. (You may add more juice, if you desire, but do not allow this mixture to get runny.) Spread over the outside of the loaf until the loaf is covered with cream cheese. When sliced, the sandwich will resemble a layer cake. Note: If you want the sandwich to resemble a football, add red and green food coloring to the cream cheese to create a brown color before spreading it on the bread. You also could decorate with the Super Bowl team colors, if desired.
