'Camp Logan'

contingent of men left camp planning to kill the policeman who had beaten their comrades. In the confusion that followed, the soldiers left 17 white people dead, including five policemen.

On Dec. 11, 1917, 13 members of the regiment were hanged, followed by six more within a year. Their only request was that they be shot like soldiers in the event a guilty verdict had been denied.

In writing their story, Houston playwright Celeste Walker spared no effort to put the audience in the shoes of the troubled soldiers. "It was as if those men had said to me, 'Tell our story this way, so that people will listen and remember,'" she says.

One Life To Live: When Cassie vowed to let Dorian help her do anything in order to keep Beth's baby, Andrew agreed to go ahead with the adoption. ## JILL JACKSON'S HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD — Almost a month into the new year, and like Ole Man River the movie industry keeps rollin' along. Academy voters are still pondering '93 releases while a flood of new ones are ready and running. ... During the coming year we'll be seeing Nick Nolte starring as a character actor who suddenly must take charge of his little terror of a 6-year-old daughter in "I'll Do Anything." ... The Next Karate Kid once again stars Nuriyuki, Pat Morita, and this time the new kid will be a girl. ... Anthony Hopkins cum-closed-crooked hair and a Van Dyke beard coats stars with Matthew Broderick (also cum Van Dyke Beard) and Bridget Fonda (sans beard) in "The Road to Wellville," and Damon Wayans becomes "Blankman" in a "superhero adventure comedy" sure to titillate younger blood. Ann: Chumsky returns in "My Girl II" sans Macaulay Culkin. She's older in this one, so the theme is one of self-discovery. ... Sparks should really ignite between Michelle Pfeiffer and Jack Nicholson as they co-star in "Wolf" (I won't tell you what this one's about). Bet on "The Shawshank Redemption" starring Morgan Freeman and Tim Robbins as prison inmates to be a good one. ... And wait till you see Bruce Willis dressed as a buddy giving advice to 11-year-old Elijah Wood in "North." ... Laura Velez and Jon Seda star in "Blackout" with the Bronx as a setting. ... And last, but certainly not least, those four wacky urban cowpokes, Billy Crystal, Jack Palance and Daniel Stern return in "City Slickers II" which I'm told is even hootier than "Slickers." All these are Columbia Pics releases.

For me "The Pelican Brief" as a movie didn't measure up to the book, but who's to knock success. It's raking in big bucks due to Julia Roberts' and Denzel Washington's box-office draw. Coming from New Orleans, I hated the way the city was shown as just one big honky-tonky Bourbon St. When there is so much beauty elsewhere. And not one shot of Tulane University, one of the prettiest in the country, where Roberts was supposed to be studying law. But hey!

While we're on the subject of New Orleans, how about that Harry Connick Jr.? What a bundle of talent that one is, and other Orleansians currently in the national spotlight are Richard Simmons, who was a hoot from Vegas with Jay Leno on New Year's Eve. Branson Marsalis making music each night on that same show, and the Nevilles all over everybody's airwaves.

If "Schindler's List" and Steven Spielberg don't win this year's Oscar (even with all those other good movies out there) there's something wrong somewhere. And speaking of Spielberg, I see where he'll make the movie version of "The Bridges of Madison County." Interesting switch from his epics. This is a quiet, lovely love story with John Williams doing the musical scoring.

BITS'N'PIECES: You can own Scott Bakula singing "Somewhere in the Night" from "Quantum Leap" on a soon-to-be-released single, or maybe it's already out. ... Aside to Kitty G. of Dayton, Ohio: Yup, Tommy Lee Jones is married. Her name is Kimberlea. ... Come May, John Grisham's "The Chamber" hits the bookshelves and already Universal has bought the film rights for an astronomical sum. ... Looking back; even if vindicated by law, we'll never really know about Woody, Michael, or the Menendez brothers. ... Sam Elliott has some good work under his holster in "Gettysburg" and "Tomestone," but now he's looking for something slick and modern. ... Liam Neeson's very first screen role was as Sir Gawain in "Excalibur" back in 1981. Anything but memorable performance, but "Schindler's List" puts him right there at the top with a good go at Oscar.
