

New-Hampshire Legislature.

GOVERNOR GILMAN'S SPEECH

The following is the Speech of the Hon. Governor of New Hampshire, delivered at the opening of the session.

Gentlemen of the Senate, and Gentlemen of the H. of Representatives.

My fellow citizens having elected me to the office of Chief Executive Magistrate, for the ensuing year, I return them my sincere thanks for this mark of their confidence; and, while I assure them that such powers as I have, shall be fully exerted in promoting the public welfare, I am sensible, that in times difficult as the present, and with my limited abilities, I shall stand in need of their candid and indulgent consideration of my conduct.

The circumstances under which I meet you at this time prevent my making such particular statements respecting our public affairs, as might be desirable, not having opportunity, since the notice of my appointment, to examine the public papers. Happily this deficiency will be more than supplied by the knowledge of the members of the Legislature.

The consequences of the war in which our country is engaged, cannot be foreseen: and there are diverse opinions respecting the necessity of the war, as well as the causes which induced our government to make the declaration. Under such circumstances, it may be considered not only a right, but the duty of the representatives of the people, to enquire into the causes which have brought so great a calamity upon our country. We are bound to support our system of National Government, and the laws emanating therefrom; but this by no means hinders the right of free enquiry or the full expression of sentiments upon measures of government. It is such enquiry may be a duty, not only as we are a member of the Union, but as it respects rights exclusively appertaining to the state. It is not doubted, but we have had great cause of complaint against both Great Britain and France; and, perhaps at some former periods, much greater against one, or both those governments, than existed against the British at the time of the declaration of war. If the reasons which have been given, or were made the pretext for some of the ancient and modern wars, are resorted to in order to justify the present, no doubt, causes as sufficient might have been found long since; for it is well known that wars have been made by Royal and Imperial governments, merely to gratify the pride of men, and for other causes of little consequence. But it is hoped such things will never take place under our system of republican government.

While we demand redress for injuries received from others, we should suitably regard their just expectations from us. And may we not, without being liable to the charge of justifying the conduct of Great Britain, enquire whether they have not just cause of complaint against our government; whether our professions of strict and impartial neutrality in the important contest between Great Britain and France, had been constantly maintained; and whether there had not been a manifest difference in our resentments, and in the language and manner of seeking redress for wrongs, exhibiting an unwarrantable partiality for France?—Whatever enquiries may be made, or opinions given, let us exercise candor and moderation; and constantly bear in mind, that those who differ from us in opinion, possess equal rights. The great importance of our Judiciary system will claim your attention.

The ill health of one of the Justices of the supreme Judicial Court, has prevented his attendance upon the duties of the office, a great part of the time, for two or three years past. If one of the Justices should be prevented from attending, justice would be delayed. Whatever arrangements you may think proper to make, respecting the Judiciary system will meet my ready attention.

The great importance of our militia at all times, and more especially in time of war, will also claim your attention; and you will judge what further may be done, to place them in a state of preparation for such events as may happen. The state of the treasury will be laid before you, by which you will be able to form an opinion what further directions respecting the pecuniary concerns of the state are necessary. Whatever further may appear proper to be laid before you, will be communicated by a separate message; and it will be a pleasing duty to me to unite with you in measures calculated to promote the public welfare.

JOHN TAYLOR GILMAN,

Concord, June 5, 1813.

Hillsboro' Manufacturing Company.

A number of the inhabitants of the county of Orange and town of Hillsborough, at the Court House, in Hillsborough, on the 28th day of May, 1813, in pursuance of public notice, for the purpose of establishing a COTTON and WOOL FACTORY, in the town of Hillsborough, or its vicinity; Doctor JOHN UMSTEAD was called to the Chair, and JOHN TAYLOR, then appointed Secretary. Whereupon the following Resolutions were adopted:

- 1. That the Association be known and distinguished by the name of 'The Hillsborough Manufacturing Company'
2. That the Capital Stock of said Company be divided into shares of twenty-five dollars each.
3. That whenever four hundred shares shall be subscribed, the Secretary of this meeting shall convene the Stockholders at the Court House in Hillsborough, first giving one month's previous notice thereof in the public prints.
4. That the business of said Company shall be transacted by a President and five directors, and such other officers as the Stockholders at their first general meeting shall determine.
5. That each of such officers shall be Stockholders in said Company.
6. That in order to constitute said General Meeting, a majority of Stockholders shall be present, by themselves or proxy.
7. That each Stockholder shall pay to such person or persons as the General Meeting shall appoint, five dollars on each and every share by them subscribed whenever called upon for that purpose, and the balance of their share or shares, in four equal payments, at the expiration of three months from each preceding payment.
8. That as these Resolutions are adopted for the purpose of commencing said Factory, they are therefore temporary, and may be so altered by the Stockholders, at their first General Meeting, as to them may seem fit and proper.
9. That in the election of officers and transacting the Business of the Association in General Meeting, the following Rules and Regulations shall be observed. The votes to which each stockholder shall be entitled shall be according to the number of shares he shall hold, in the proportions following, viz. For one share, and not more than two shares, one vote; for every two shares above two, and not exceeding ten shares, one vote; for every four shares above ten, and not exceeding thirty, one vote; for every six shares above thirty, and not exceeding sixty, one vote; for every eight shares above sixty and not exceeding one hundred, one vote; and for every ten shares above one hundred, one vote. But no person or copartnership shall be entitled to a greater number than thirty votes.
