JUST A GIRL, YET 'BOSS OF BARIUM SPRINGS' IS MAUD PARK'S TITLE, WON THROUGH WORK

Little Lady is Station Agent, Baggagemaster, Postmistress, Proprietor of General Merchandise Store and Many Other Things, in Addition to Which She Is of Course a Suffragette, and Too Busy to Marry.

BY DAISY HENDLEY.

(Statesville Correspondent.) Statesville, Jan. 20.-Miss Maud Parks is the busiest woman in North Carolina. If it wouldn't be taking in too much territory. I would say she is the busiest woman in the South, but others might lay claim to that title and cause trouble. The little lady of whom I speak is ticket agent, station master, buggage agent, postmistress, saleslady for her father's general merchandise store and does a score of other things at Barium Springs, a little station just a few miles out of Statesville.

In addition to all those many things, she is a girl, and as such, finds time to assist anyone in need of help, do what household duties fall to her task and still stop a minute to give "Uncle Bob" the latest war news or sell him a postage stamp to send a letter to his grandson on the Mexican børder.

I had just alighted from "Captain" Tom Rowland's "Special." passenger train No. 15, at Barium Springs a little after 7 o'clock Friday evening, when I saw the busiest woman in the State. "Tip" from Charlotte.

A "tip" from The Observer office in Charlotte had sent me down looking for the girl and almost as soon as I arrived at the little station I saw her. Standing in the shadow of the depot. I saw the "Boss" of Barium Springs, clad in red sweater and cap. While I watched Miss Parks, I saw her go about the duties of directing unloading and loading of baggage. The reporter in Charlotte, who had put me "on" to the story said that window is opened. he understood Miss Parks was an old As I walked from the train into the depot with her. I found her to be no old maid, but just an ordigirl, plump and cheerful and with a refractory lock of hair peeping from beneath her red cap.

Her story is a unique one and a person could readily see that although every hour and minute of a new-pahas passed through. per correspondent's time is crowded with excitement, adventure and work, there is not a single day put in by a newspaper woman which would begin to compare with an hour lived by the agent at Barium Springs. and doubtle -

During the last five years she told me she had been identified with the usiness life of Barium. She has looked after the affairs of her father's tore, finding time to attend whool portion of the day and later, as her chool work began to be completed the began taking an even more attice sterest in the affairs of the little tation.

and just simply wanted to try a and just simply wanted to try a quarter's worth for luck. As we strolled up and down the station platform beneath the stars be-fore the Statesville train was due to arrive. I made another interesting discovery. I found that the little agent is finit a circl like all other sole is just a girl, like all other girls emotional, and even frivolous and lonely at times. She is the essence of independence, caring not a whit for men and asserting when asked why, that she didn't want to marry, simply because she didn't want to. The next time your train passes through Barium Springs and stops there for a second or two, long enough to discharge one or two passengers. look out of your window and if you see a husy little person in red aweater and cap, take off your hat to Miss Maud Parks, the busiest little woman in North Carolina and the "Boss" of Barium Springs.

EXTENSION LECTURE SUBJECTS PREPARED

Special to The Observer. Chapel Hill, Jan. 20 .- A total of 152 lecture subjects is offered this year by members of the University faculty, as shown in a recent bulletin which deals with correspondence courses and extension lictures for North Carolina communities. As many of these lectures are delivered in several places over the State, it means that the total number of extension lectures delivered will be many times 152. Last year 350 such lectures were delivered by members of the faculty throughout the State. The bulletin states that in the past more invitations have been received than could be accepted, and audiences in every part of the State have been reached." A Message to Men" with the children's service at 3:30 p. m. Sun-been reached." been reached." The lectures fall into three welldefined groups: those that are popular and of the general interest type; those that are specific or technical for study clubs, institutes, farmers' meetings, etc; and loctures and ad-
