OBSERVATIONS

By the Junior Observer.

A Rare Pleasure. Did you ever know of a person for months and months, and wonder what manner of individual he or she really is?

Did you ever paint a picture of some one you have dealings with by mail or otherwise, and in never come in contact with and loo't forward to the time when you may meet them face to face?

Have you read of men of prominence and pictured in your mind the appearance of the man, and wondered if in reality the man is like the shadow-creature you seem to know?

For months passed I have been blessed with a telephone acquaintance which I believe I am justified in calling a friendship with a well known resident of Charlotte. I have been unfortunate enough to never come in contact with her, but from time to time I have been favored with a telephone call, and in each instance it has been to my interest to pay strict attention to what my caller had to say, because each time she has given me a subject well worth my while, and in every such case I have heard commendation for the thought expressed by my friend, unknown by face, but for whom I have formed a high regard for the soundness of her opinions and for the unusually clear manner in which she presents those ideas.

One day this week I visited the office of a professional friend where I was compelled to wait a few moments to see him. Sitting opposite me was a little woman who attracted my immediate attention by reason of the straightforward way in which she looked you in the eye, and for the generally attractive ensemble. I wondered where I had known her, feeling that former acquaintance had existed. However, within a short time our mutual friend appeared, then I learned that she who had attracted my favorable mental comment was none other than my telephone friend who has so often given me a meaty subject for discussion in this column.

Often, after one of these telephone visits I have sat at my desk and visualized her, pictured her as I imagined her to be, knowing her altogether delightful family, and wondering when fate would throw me in her path. I shall not here set down her facial and other characteristics, by reason of the fact that were I to do so many of her friends would know immediately to whom I refer.

But I want to say that I had been an artist to have had in living colors the face I had pictured. It would have been a most perfect likeness of the woman I met and came to know by sight as I have known her by telephone for all these months passed.

I have dreaded the time when I should thus come to know her, for fear that the personality I heard over the telephone would be very different in the flesh. It has been my misfortune to be terribly disappointed in people I have heard of for years, and to find the being precisely the opposite of what my preconceived idea of the individual in question was a pleasure which comes to me but rarely.

And now I fear that in the future I am to be penalized by the fact that I have met her face to face, and further because of the things I have thus set down in print. I sincerely trust such will not be the case. First, I hope to maintain that friendship which has developed through the months, and again I feel sure that many of my readers would miss her timely, snappy, and altogether sound opinions upon affairs of the city, state and nation, that really matter.

A bright, attractive, sensible little body.

DAVID OVENS IMPRESSED WITH CHARLESTON'S SPIRIT

Local Business Man Returns After Addressing Merchants' Association Members There.

David C. Owens, director of the Charlotte chamber of commerce, arrived home from Charleston, S. C., last night, where he had been the guest of the Merchants' association and chamber of commerce of that city. On Tuesday night Mr. Owens addressed the business men of the city at a dinner.

Mr. Owens stated he was deeply impressed with the spirit and enthusiasm shown by the business men of Charleston in regard to the future of their city. Charleston now claims a population of approximately 100,000 people and is steadily growing.

The Owens new government wharf and warehouses recently completed in Charleston, S. C., are the largest of their kind in America. The wharf is one mile in length with a frontage of water 40 feet deep.

On this monster wharf are built eight massive warehouses, each of which is over a quarter mile in length and 100 feet wide. These buildings are of the permanent fireproof variety built of hollow tile on concrete foundations.

The business men of Charleston believe, according to Mr. Owens, that when the war work is over and the government will no longer need the wharf and warehouses for war purposes that they will be used to further the trade between the United States and the American continent.

They argue that Charleston, through its geographical situation is better adapted for South American business than are the more congested ports of the north.

Mr. Owens was also particularly impressed with the splendid organizations of the business men. There are five separate business associations with offices all in the same building, which is owned by them. All these organizations work under the guidance of the chamber of commerce.

The people of north Charleston are especially proud of their battery district, Mr. Owens stated. This land was all recently reclaimed by the government through the use of suction dredges.

The land is adjacent to the warehouses and has already been sold in small lots for an amount which exceeds the total money spent in reclaiming the land and building the sea wall along its front.

Mr. Owens believes that the awakening of Charleston will be a great help to the commerce of the south and will aid materially in bringing about a larger amount of business dealings between this country and the South American republics.

Whether the wharf and warehouses will continue under government control or be turned over to private corporations will not be known until Congress decides on the future ownership of railroads and shipping interests 21 months hence, he said.

HOW TO FIGHT SPANISH INFLUENZA

BY DR. L. W. BOWERS.

Avoid crowds, coughs and cowers, but fear neither germs nor Germans! Keep the system in good order, take plenty of exercise in the fresh air and practice cleanliness. Remember a clean mouth, a clean skin, and clean bowels are a protecting armour against disease. To keep the liver and bowels regular and to carry away the poisons within, it is best to take a vegetable pill every other day, made up of May-apple, aloes, jalap, and sugar-coated, to be had at most drug stores, known as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. If there is a sudden onset of what appears to be a hard cold, one should go to bed, wrap warm, take a hot mustard foot-bath and drink copiously of hot lemonade. If pain develops in head or back, ask the druggist for Anuric (anti-uric) tablets. These will flush the bladder and kidneys and carry off poisonous germs. To control the pains and aches take one Anuric tablet every two hours, with frequent drinks of lemonade. The pneumonia appears in a most treacherous way when the influenza victim is apparently recovering and anxious to leave his bed. In recovering from a bad attack of influenza or pneumonia the system should be built up with a good herbal tonic, such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, made without alcohol from the roots and barks of American forest trees, or his Iron-Tonic (Iron Tonic) tablets, which can be obtained at most drug stores, or send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package. Adv.
