FIRMNESS.

PHOEBE CARY.

Well, let him go, and let him stay-I do not mean to die; I guess he'll find that I can live Without him, if I try;

He thought to frighten me with frowns, So terrible and black— He'll stay away a thousand years Before, I ask him back!

He said that I had acted wrong,

And foolishly beside; I won't forget him after that— I wouldn't if I died. If I was wrong, what right had he To be so cross with me?

I don't pretend to be. He had another sweetheart once, And now when we fall out,

I know I'm not an angel quite-

He always says she was not cross, And that she didn't pout, It is enough to vex a saint-Its more than I can bear;

I wish that girl of his was-

Well, I don't care where. He thinks that she was pretty, too-Was beautiful as good; I wonder if she'd get him back Again, now, if she could?

I know she would, and there she is-She lives almost in sight; And now its almost nine o'clock-

Perhaps he's there to-night. I'd almost write to him to come: But then I've said I won't, . I do not care so much, but she Shan't have him if I don't. Besides, I know that I was wrong, And he was in the right: I guess I'll tell him so—and then— I wish he'd come to-night.

An Hour in the Room of General Lee-His Habits. [From the Lexington (Va.) Gazette.]

In strolling around the first spring day we stopped at the Memorial chapel and passed through the rooms with the my associated articulariy memory of General Lee. 'The u ird, my high regard." a student of the University, walked with us through the apartments.

Over the marble slab in the centre of the library-room are wreaths of flowers, crosses, and crowns of immortelles in a circle of autumn leave . The marble is inserted in the floor and over the vault.

From this room a door leads into the office once used by the secretary of the faculty. This is now bare and empty. From this apartment a door opens into a small hall, and then into the "General's Room," as it is called. It is well known that its furniture has never been changed. -It remains as left by General Lee. The round table in the centre of the room is still covered vi h his papers; all orderly arranged. The scraps of blank paper were kept in a systematic manner. A professor took a piece; for a memorandum. when the General handed him a fragment from another lot. He had intended the first sheet for another purpose. All his writing was done at this table. He used an arm-char with leather seat and on rollers. He wrote rapidly, rarely interlining or omitting words. There were no such things as rough drafts. He finished at a single heat whatever he had in

When his feelings were enlisted the pen never paused down to the last period. His "orders," or rather midresses, to the students and impo:portant correspondence were finishca with the ink wet on the first lines. He never dictated, and used the off .cial secretary sparingly.

His favorite pen was a large gold one, of a curious model. It was almost as broad as it was long. It was heart-shaped A firm in Baltimore owned the pattern. The first pen of this kind used by him was accidentally injured. The writer, at the request of General Lee, carried it to Baltimore while on a northern trip and had it repaired and another made from the original die.

The inkstand is still on the round table. The ink is raised by atmospheric pressure applied by a screw. The instructions on it directed the ink to be lowered when not in use. He never failed to turn the screw and let the ink down into the stand before leaving the office. One of his secretaries noticed his regularity in this particular. There is a lounge in the room, but he never was known to rest himself FAMILY FAVORITE for a moment on it. There never was a pair of slippers or a robe de chambre in his room. It is needless. to say no cigars or pipes were there. he wasn't friendly to tobacco. But once was he known to violate the smallest propriety of his position. MAJ. W. L. BRODIE, Agent,

During a dull routine of "Faculty Office in Baumgarten's Photograph Galmeeting," in warm weather, the President dozed for a few momenta. He sat as usual, erect, but his eyes gently yielded to the heat and humdrum. His colleagues with courtly grace let the business pause till the brief nap ended, and then started with the last words the chairman had heard. This triumph of Morpheus was not alluded to.

A country merchant went to Chicago a few days ago to purchase a bill of goods. The last that was heard of him he was in his room surrounded A. & S. McNinch. by 17 drummers, who had crawled through the transom, while an energetic reporter was below stairs pum-ping the clerk for the age of the unfortunate man and the propable cir-cumstances of his family.

An illustration of absent-mindedness is told of an excitable young drug clerk, who filled his customer's bottle with the liniment desired, and receiving therefor a nice new twenty-five cent shin-plaster, pasted it on the bottle and put the label in the rar 22 W. R. BURWELL & CO.

Dr. Beckwith's Anti-Dyspeptic Pills. USE THE PREVENTIVE. And You will NOT NEED the CURE.

Read This! You may find Something in which you are PERSON-

Of have many cares, malester and I troubles some real, some imaginary more produced by want of health than you are aware of. Of all sources of disease, the Stomach is the most fruitful—the gratithe Stomach is the most fruitful—the grati-fication of its calls are more absolutely necessary—more expensive—more pleas-ant—more painful, and more diversified than any other organ in the human sys-tem. It is more imposed upon, and more wonderfully adapts itself to its various du-ties, than any other organ—it has its legit-imate duties, against which it rarely rebels; but, for imposition, it will call you to ac-count, and its neighbor, the Liver, almost always suffers with it, and usually shares in the retribution. Have you been an inorin the retribution. Have you been an inor-dinate or imprudent enter or drinker? Then you understand all this—your Stomach and Liver have called you to an account, and you want relief. Then read carefully the fol-lowing, and like a wise man, seek the re-lief you so much desire, where, others, situated as you are, have found it.

Is Your Health Impaired in Consequence of Unhealthy Digestion of YOUR FOOD!

Hon. BEVERLY TUCKER, late Law Professor of William & Mary Gollege, says :

"Fourteen years ago I was left by a most malignant fever, with a diseased Liver, a disordered digestion, and a constitution in ruins. My physicians permitted me hope, that with care and prudence I might have a few years of precarious existence, and as ured me that the least in discretion would be fatal. Two years ago I met your Anti-Dyspeptic Pills, and confiding in the accompanying certificates of responsible gentlemen, whom I happen to know. I took them according to directions. The result is, that I now eat what I please, do what I please, sleep soundly, and enjoy life as much as any man living. For this, it gives me pleasure to say you have my thanks, and to add the assurance of tnanks, and W. R. BURWELL & CO.,
