[From the Richmond Dispatch.] "WHEN THE LAURELS BLOOM."

In his last days Commodore Maury ex pressed a wish that if his remains were carried to Fredericksburg, they should be horne through the Blue Ridge in spring, "when the laurels bloom."

Round his dying couch his dearest.

Weeping, praying, ministering stood—
Those the closest and the nearest, Of his name and kindred blood.

Sailors on the distant billow-Men of every race and land 11 14 Blessed the head upon that pillow, Blessed the tireless, patient hand.

He had seen the aurora streaming O'er the trackless waste of white-Watched the iceberg's awful gleaming Through the wond'rous Pelar night.

Tropic lands had poured before him. Wasteful wealth of life and love; Laden palm trees bending o'er him; At his feet the coral grove.

Through the night-watch on the ocean, As upon the deck he turned. Weary of the wave's wild motion-Not for these his heart had yearned.

But the Blue Ridge mountain passes Rose before him; either side Clustering thick with rosy masses-Laurel blooms-the mountain's pride.

Now, when life's long voyage was over, And the blessed port in sight. Still his heart looked back—a lover— To each blue and lessening height: "If you lay me with my kindred,

Take me not in Winter's gloom ; Bear me, dear ones, thro' my mountains-Yonder, when the laurels bloom !"

"When the laurels bloom," O sailor! Say'st thou "when the laurels bloom?" They are blooming now and ever. Fadeless, on thy honored tomb!

A Royal Marriage.

The coming marriage of the young Archduchess Gisele, daughter of the Emperor of Austria, says the London Globe, naturally makes her at present the theme of every tongue in South Germany. The accomplished Princess has only reached her seventeenth year. The "happy man"-Prince Leopold, of Bayaria-is ten years older. Princess Gisele is tall and slight, with eyes as blue as the empyrean, and the haughty expresion of face that characterizes her mother and her aunt, the Duchess d'Alencon. She has a good soprano voice, and inherits the musical talents of Francis Joseph in an eminent degree. It may be mentioned that he is a distinguished violinist, has succeeded in her task admirably. road. The trousseau and wedding presen's are at present laid out solemnly for The Grand Duchess Alice, of Tuscany, has given the bride a set of antique cameoes of great value, and the Countess of Chambord, who is related to the bride and bridegroom, has added to the collection a costly knot of pearls and diamonds. The event will be one of much eclat, and the Niennese very naturally are on the tiptoe or expection.

A Good Selection.

One of the most significant appointments yet made by President Grant is that of General LaFayette McLaws to the United States Marshalship for the district of Geor-

In making this appointment the President has risen above the level of mere partyism, and sectionalism, and raised himself in the estimation of right minded men everywhere, The Augusta Chronicle and Sentinel

SAYS: . Inc. Deire The report is published that the President has already appointed, or will appoint in a few days, General LaFayette McLaws United States We most sincerely hope that the report will prove correct, convinced, as we are, that no appointment can be made which will prove more satisfactory to the people of the State. In the first place, the appointee was a gallant soldier in the Confederate army, and in the second place, he And all kinds of Woolen Goods, together has been and is a staunch and pronounced Democrat—two qualifications not usually possessed by Federal officials. His political sentiments are well known to the Presiments dent, and his appointment, if he obtains it, will be due solely to his mer, its and the personal relations existing between himself and the President. If we recollect aright, the Confederate General and the Union leader were classmates at the military academy of West Point, and the intimacy and friendship which commenced in the school room was continued through their subsequent life in the regular army, and was strong enough to survive a conflict in which they espoused different sides. The appointment has in it no political significance whatever. It is simply a recognition of former ties and associations.

REMAINS OF A MASTODON.-Mr. REMAINS OF A MASTODON.—Mr. Napier, of Oat Hollow, in this county, discovered, fifteen feet below the part or surface, in the bed of Oat Creek, on the branch of Gable Brothers, a few days since an almost perfect lower jaw of a mastodon. It is two fiet two-and-a-half inches in length in a straight line, and two feet in width between the back part of the jaws .-Weight 92 pounds. Bones of a very large animal are frequently found on the hills in that neighborhood, but this is an unusually fine specimen .- Yolo, California, Democrat.
