NEW FAIR OF THE CAROLINAS.

PROGRAMME FOR FOURTH DAY.

Friday, November 6, 1874. Grand Trotting and Running Races Addresses by GOVERNOR VANCE.

and by General A. H. COLQUITT The third day of the New Fair of the Carolinas has closed, with one of the largest crowds visiting the grounds ever before at any Fair held in this city. Encouraged by this liberal patronage, the Directory present to the public, for the fourth days programme, the most brilliant line of enjoyment yet presented. The Gates will be open for the re.

ception of visitors at 8 o'clock. A. M., at 9 o'clock, A. M., the Directors will meet at the Secretary's office, where blanks will be handed Superintendents of Departments and chairmen of committees to complete their examinations, that awards may be promptly made on Saturday morning at 91 o'clock A. M. The Charlotte Silver Cornet Band will proceed to the Fair Grounds at 10 o'clock. The plowing match under the supervision of the Committee appointed will take place on the grounds.

At 11 o'clock an address will be delivered by Governor Vance, followed by one from Gen. A. H. Colquitt of of time, and the evolutions of the young men Georgia, in front of the Grand Stand.

Tickets of admission to the Grand stand will be sold at the usual price, which will be good for the races after the addresses.

WALTER BREM, Chief Marshal. The Opera House.

Harry Watkins had a crowded house last night, and when we say that the acting was par excellence, we hardly do 75 a 1 00 the subject justice. Go and see him to-night in "Led Astray," one of his grandest pieces, of which the Norfolk Virginian speaks in the following complimentary terms:
A more exquisit dramatic picture has not been exhibited before a Norfolk audience for a very long time, and the manager deserves our thanks for the superb manner in which it was placed upon the stage. Of course in a city where the most successful play cannot expect to receive more than three or four representations, it is unreasonable to anticipate a tout essemble equal to, that of a New York theatre, where plays can be given for hundreds of nights in succession .-The most we have a right to exact is that the management shall do all in its power not to mar the author's design, and this end, in the present instance, has been fully accomplished. Rose Watkins, as the deeply wronged wife, completely won the sympathies of her audience by a portrayal as consummate in detail and finish, as one of those pictoral gems, which the great masters of art bequeath to the world, so life like in form and features that one gazes upon them with feelings of admiration akin to awe, wondering how mere art can so assimilate nature as to make us forget, for a moment, which is nature and which is art. Of the company, perhaps we can pay no higher compliment than to state that each and all acted like the ladies and gentlemen they were supposed to represent. With perhaps one exception, the members of the company are all strangers here, and as this was the first time that they had acted together, and in characters that were new to them, their efforts were truly wonderful,-Everything worked as smoothly as a machine guided by a master hand.

Mr. Bart Johnston.

His host of friends in North Carolina would never know him as. "Boston," but that is what the types made us call our friend Bart Johnston, innior member of the firm of Manly & Johnston of Baltimore. Merchants and business men in the city, report trade as being very good at present, and state that there is a good improvement in collections. We hope that there will be greater prosperity to the men of business, a more active circulation of money, a greater demand for goods, and busier times in our workshops.

THE FAIR!

Third Day's Proceedings. Display of Fire Companies and Cadets THE BACES.

Yesterday opened the third days exhibition of the New Fair of the Carolinas. As on the previous days, the weather was delightful. Early in the morning the streets were crowded with people. Some came from the country by private conveyance, but the majority of the new arrivals were by the different railroads. The Air Line, the North Carolina, the Statesville, and the Lincolu trains, all came in well loaded, and the extra train on the Charlotte, Columbia & Augusta Railroad, from Chester to this city, came in with a goodly crowd aboard.

The streets were thronged by 9 o'clock A. M. The crowds swayed hither and thither, and persons who had business on hand, found it better to take to the middle of the streets.

Each train and other public conveyance which left the city for the grounds, was crowded down until 12 M., and at this time there was a crowd in the field which was variously estimated at from 9,000 to 11,000.

The first and most attractive event on the grounds, was the parade of a battalionthree companies-of the cadets of the Carolina Military Institute. The companies were under the command of Lieutenant Lynes, Prof. Cain, and Lieutenant J. P. Thomas. Jr. The exercise continued for some period showed how thorough their drilling had been. The skirmish drill with the bugle that it was a success. The visitors were was peculiarly attractive, and induced ex- pleased; the exhibition was good; the ractravagant encomiums from many of even the "old soldiers" who were on the grounds. At 1 o'clock P. M., the races will Many eyes, and some bright, tender eyes, watched closely the movements of these stakes race, two entries, followed by a young cadets, and the universal verdict was that they acquitted themselves most handsomely. We never look at the cadets in a could not, for lack of arms, go to the State Fair and contend for the premium offered

> The three white fire companies appeared on the grounds, in accordance with the programme. The representation from each company was quite full, and the firemen, in their uniforms, presented a splendid appear ance. They are a fine looking body of men, for to the alarm of fire they always respond and their looks only speak what they are promptly, and the bravery and perseverance which they exercise, are too well-known to all who have ever seen them at work, to need any words of praise from us. Owing to the lack of water, there were no tests of skill on the part of the members of the steamer companies, and the only display which the companies made was in their pa-

All during the forenoon the various hall were crowded with visitors, and locomotion was accomplished with difficulty. The rules of the association forbade entries yesterday and we have nothing to note especially, save a very few articles. And right here, "speaking of omissions," we note the fact that that the "cutest" entry is that of a cage of white mice by little Mary Osborne, of this city. They are interesting little objects. and excited yesterday no little observation. A cage of Guinea pigs, entered by Master Willie Maxwell, was by no means the least interesting entry. Alongside the mice the two attracted many of the sight-seers, who lingered around looking at and commenting upon them. In the departments, whatever articles we have failed to notice especially, have been and will be enumerated in the list of entries. One article in machinery hall, an article which we have hitherto inadvertently overlooked. demanded a notice at our hands; it is the turbine water water wheel which was designed and made by Dr. C. J. Fox, of our city. It is unsurpassed for simplicity of construction, and is perfect in its adaptability to all the purposes for which such an invention is intended. It is very cheap, too, and its durability is unquestionable. Dr. Fox received a handsome medal on this wheel at the Fair in Augusta, Ga., a year or two ago. It has attracted a good deal of attention since the Fair opened from gentlemen interested in things of this kind.

While wandering around looking at persons and things, and being looked at in return, the crowd whired away the time pleasantly enough until the races began, which was at 12 o'clock, M. Toward this Crowds had assembled, too, around the railing, and it was an anxious and interested gathering which waited the starting of the

The first race of the day was a trotting match, mile heat, two best in three, and the entries were Russell, Washington and Sandhill. This race was for horses which have never beaten 2:40, and the premiums were $120 for the first, $50 for the second, and $30 for the third In drawing for positions Washington got the inside track, Russell the middle, and Sandhill went to the outside. Sandhill came out ahead in the first heat, time 2:482, but the judges declared the race a dead heat, an account of the frequent breaks made up the winner, Sandhill, instead of losing by these breaks, rather gains.

according as they came in before. Sandhill took and kept the lead, and came to the pole in 2.43, the best time he over made. This was a beautiful race, and yery exciting, the horses running almost evenly for a considerable distance.

The second race was a sweepstakes, running a half mile dash, $100 to the first horse, and $50 added by the association, and the entries were: Ressurrection, Ino, First Chance, Charlie and Quitts. The horses got positions in the order in which they are enumerated above, to wit: Ressurrection, pole, Ino, second, &c. First Chance, won this race in 521. Quits came in second, Resurrection third, Ino fourth, and Charlie fifth This was declared by several gentlemen whe have seen hundreds of contests on the turf, to be the most beautiful race they had ever witnessed. The bearing of First Chance was particularly admired, as they turned upon the home stretch Quitts was ahead, but First Chance seemed to renew his strength and began to gain, in the last twenty feet, he must have gained five, and as he passed the pole about half a neck ahead, the enthusiasm of the crowd found vent in prolonged cheers.

The third and last race of the day was a running match, two in three, mile heats, first premium $200, second $75, third horse to save his entrance. The entries for this race were: Flower Girl, Mollie Darling, and Van Buren. They had positions as their names appear. Mollie took the lead and kept it throughout, and though Flower Girl tried hard to close the gap, she had to rest content with coming in second, half a length behind. In the second heat, Van Buren took the lead and came in ahead on the first half mile, but Mollie grined on and passed him, coming in ahead, time 1.46%. Mollie was accordingly declared the winner.

This concluded the racing and the Fair, for the day. We can say in all conscience ing spl-ndid, and the crowd was large. It is seen plainly now that, financially the exday; the citizens turned out tolerably well, applying at this office. and there were hundreds of strangers in the halls and on the grounds.

To-day will be emphatically the day of the Fair, the addresses of our distinguished Vance, and of Gen. Colquitt, of Georgia, day) night, at 7½ e'clock sharp. Visiting will, of themselves, secure a crowd. Those THOMAS SYMONS, Secretary. to regret. We are glad to say the major part of the strangers on the grounds yesterday, remained in the city over night, and with these, and those who will arrive to-day, we may expect that the crowd will be larger than yesterday. We are pleased and gratified at the success of our Fair so far, and expect to have yet further cause to congratulate the managers of the Association. Many of the people of Charlotte have not yet been to the Fair, and many of these will go to-day. The racing will be better than on any previous day since the exhibition opened, and the addresses will add another feature of

A Ruffianly Attack.

Mr. McArledge, of this city was beaten in a brutal manner, yesterday afternoon by one of the scoundrels who are holding forth at the Fair Grounds. The fellow is the proprietor of a side show of some discription or other, and his wife is travelling with him. M. Arledge went to the show, and while there made some playful remark to the woman, which offended her husband. He went off, and returning in a few moments, crept up behind Mr. A. and struck him a powerful blow on the right side of his head with a bludgeon, knocking him down and rendering him senseless. When some of his friends arrived he was lying on the ground, literally covered with blood. He was put in a conveyance and carried home. The wound is a very serious one, but whether it is likely to prove fatal or not we do not know. His skull was fractured. The man who inflicted the wound secreted himself, and has not yet been apprehended.

Prof. Hutson's Lecture.

On Wednesday evening an appreciative audience assembled in the Chapel of the Carolina Military Institute to hear the lecture of Prof. Hutson on the life, works and genius of Shakespeare. The Lecturer, who is professor of ancient languages in the Insti tute, discharged his duty well. The lecture was learned, able and eloquent. It was original in character and elegant in style. The life of Shakespeare was minutely given, and his works passed in review. At the close, Prof. Hutson gave an analysis of the genius of Shakespeare that was very time the persons on the grounds began to striking. Upon the whole, Prof. Hutson assemble in and around the grand stand, and showed conclusively that he is a ripe scholar by the time the first start was made by the and a deep and earnest thinker. We learn that these lectures are to be continued at the Institute. It will be an instructive thing for both the cadets and the public.
