CITY BULLETIN.
Judge Schenck dispatches business.
The rubbish of the September fire on Trade street, is being cleaned up.
A discourse on Christianity and Government, with delivered to-morrow morning in the First Presbyterian Church, by the pastor.
We are requested to say that "The Little Workers" will serve a nice and cheap lunch to-day from 11 A. M. till 3 P. M., at the room where they gave a festival last evening.
Gen. W. L. T. Prince, at present of Wadesboro, formerly of South Carolina, will shortly take up his residence in Charlotte, and enter upon the practice of law. He has purchased the house and lot recently occupied, and until lately owned by Rev. N. Aldrich.
The Holman-British Opera Company, a troupe with a fine reputation, will play at the Charlotte Opera House on the evening of the 3rd prox. The business agent, Mr. A. Holman, arrived at the Central Hotel last evening.
For the Wilmington Fair.
By posters signed by the General Superintendent and General Freight and Passenger Agent, of the Carolina Central Railway Company, we observe that visitors to the Wilmington Fair, which begins on the 15th inst., will be carried both ways over this road for $2.50, and that articles for exhibition will be carried both ways free if returned to the original shipper.
A Public Evil.
Passengers who arrived over the North Carolina Railroad yesterday morning and took the Air Line, did some loud and long and deep and just cursing, over the fact that they had to enter coal cars—cars in which no fires had been made, and in which none were made until after the passengers had sat and shivered some time. This is an evil the correction of which the public have a right to demand.

The Festival Last Night.
Our enterprising little fair ones, "The Little Workers," gave a festival last evening for the benefit of the Oxford Orphan Asylum. It was a pleasant gathering, and we are glad to know that the spirit which prompted the workers in the matter, was far enough appreciated to draw out a good sized and liberally disposed crowd. God bless the little girls! (Ye! also, and the larger ones, too!)
Charlotte City Mills.
Of the many houses erected in our growing city during the present year, one of the handsomest is the Charlotte City Mills building. From the advertisement which appears in another column, it will be seen that, besides the ginning of cotton which has been going on briskly since the opening of the season, the proprietor is now ready to fill orders for both meal and corn, in large or small quantities. We understand that a first class article of flour will be manufactured next month.
Counterfeit Bill.
A very ingenious counterfeit $5 bill, purporting to be the issue of the First National Bank of Chicago, has been detected. The text and signature of the bills are complete imitations of the $5 bills of the Trader's National Bank of Chicago, with the words, "First National" substituted. The general appearance of the counterfeit is rather darker than the genuine and the vignettes not so well finished. The Treasury seal is, to all appearances, perfect.

Painful Accident Last Evening.
About 8 o'clock, the clerks in Brem, Brown & Co's hardware store, heard groans proceeding from the cellar of S P Smith's new store, just adjoining, and going out found a white man wedged down in there, head foremost. The fall is ten or twelve feet from the surface of the pavement, and at first it was apprehended that the unfortunate man had received perhaps fatal injuries. He was taken out, carried into the hardware store, and a physician sent for. Mr. J. P. McCombs shortly arrived and discovered injuries to the man's head, side, and also that he had been hurt internally. Not seriously, so, however. He was taken to Lockhart's boarding house, near by. It was here learned of a companion of his that his name is Billy McDonald, and that he is an itinerant razor sharpener. He was under the influence of liquor.
The place into which McDonald fell, is just on the outside of the pavement. Yet this place was left uncovered and unguarded, on one of the principal streets of the city, and so dark a night as the last, inviting each person by to fall in and break his neck. Suppose this man or some other, had done so, would there not have been a pretty little bill of damages for somebody else to pay.

The Knight Templars.
The annual convocation of the Grand Lodge of this order in the United States, begins on Monday at New Orleans, and this afternoon at 5 o'clock, two hundred of the members will arrive in this city en route to the place of meeting. They will come in eight Pullman Palace Cars over the North Carolina Railroad, stop at the intersection of that road with Trade street, dine at the Central Hotel, where arrangements have already been made to entertain them, and from there proceed across the city to the Air Line Depot from which they will depart down that road about dark.
Officers of the Good Templars.
At the meeting on Thursday night of Hesperian Lodge of Good Templars of this city, the following officers were installed:
W. C. T. - R. M. Crawford,
W. V. - Miss Emma Eagle,
R. H. - Mrs. R. M. Crawford,
L. H. - Miss Rose White,
B. S. - E. S. Williams,
F. S. - T. M. Pittman,
Treas. - Capt. R. A. Shotwell,
Chap. - J. E. Butt,
W. M. - O. R. Rigler,
W. D. M. - Miss Mattie Motley,
I. G. - Miss Ella Franklin,
O. G. - Mr. George Hales,
P. W. C. T. - Mr. G. B. Hanna.

Thanksgiving Day in Charlotte.
Thanksgiving day was not observed in any general public manner in this city. The banks suspended business and the observance was respectful enough to Grant and Brogden to step in its daily course. Court went on, though, and there was church services only at St. Peter's Episcopal. The merchants kept their stores open, and people went on buying goods, just the same as if this glorious Republic had no President and this State no Governor—just the same, to all intents and purposes, as if they wouldn't honor Ulysses and Curt, by stopping in the pursuit of their business, if there were.

The Case of Jo Elliott.
We are surprised to find so much interest manifested in this case of Jos. D. Elliott. This is to be accounted for, we suppose, by the peculiar nature of the crime, the youth of the prisoner, and the distinguished array of talent in the prosecution and defence. We regret that our report of the testimony, is so late in being published, but Wilkesboro is a town into which a mail rider stumbles only occasionally, and we had no opportunity of sending a letter by hand after our last one was sent. There is considerable diversity of opinion here, as to the sentence upon the young man; with a due sense of justice to the dead, and of sorrow for his living friends, and after listening closely to the evidence, the punishment seems to us to be rather severe. It was a grievous crime, and grievously will Elliott atone for it.
Sudden Death.
Mr. Charles M. Koons, a native of Pennsylvania, but for several years a resident of this city, and also formerly a resident of Charlotte, died suddenly at Monroe on Tuesday night, where he had recently been employed at his trade. It seems that about 26 minutes after the arrival of the mail train he was in conversation with some of his friends, at his boarding house, when he complained of dizziness, accompanied by other unpleasant feelings, whereupon he was advised to go to bed. He started to do so, and had partly disrobed himself, when he suddenly fell backwards, gasping for breath and expired almost instantly. Subsequently a Coroner's inquest was held over the body, and a post mortem examination, under the direction of Dr. Blair, was had. The verdict of the jury was to the effect that the deceased came to his death from heart disease.—Wilmington Star.

Contributions for the Graded School.
The Patrons of the School will be called upon within the next week for their contributions. We stated through the paper that an average contribution of five dollars per pupil would be necessary to run the school ten months. Some have failed to give any subscription, and many have fallen below the average. All will be called upon, those who have fallen below the average can have an opportunity of paying now. And those who have not subscribed can pay without it.
We must have these contributions now, while there is no public funds to draw from. Two months pay is already due to the teachers, and they cannot afford to wait, and besides wood bills and furniture bills have to be met.
Respectfully,
J. B. BOONE,
Superintendent.

The Case of State vs. James Moore.
The whole time of the Superior Court yesterday, was consumed in the trial of this case, which was brought to this county from Gaston. The indictment is against Moore and his daughter, Ella McGinnis, for the murder of Benjamin McGinnis, the son-in-law of Moore and the husband of the woman. The circumstances of the killing were published in detail in this paper at the time; therefore we need not dwell on them now. The case is exciting a good deal of interest in the city and a large crowd was present in the Court House nearly all day yesterday, when the trial was fairly begun. The jury was empanelled just before dinner, and (as composed of the following named gentlemen:
S. M. Gallant, Wm. Todd, J. R. Hutchison, Eugene Asbury, W. A. Knowles, T. T. McCord, J. F. Little, R. D. Whitley, W. E. Lee, T. W. Squires, M. A. Barrett, P. S. Whisman.
There are 8 or 10 witnesses in the case on behalf of the State, and 15 or 20 on the part of the defence. The counsel in the case: The Solicitor, Maj. W. J. Montgomery and Col. J. F. Hoke for the State, and Messrs. Vance & Burwell, Col. H. C. Jones, Hon. W. M. Shipp, B. C. Cobb, R. W. Sandifer and R. McBrar for the defence. The State concluded its testimony for the present, last evening, and one witness (Ella McGinnis) was examined by the defence. The woman who is co-defendant in the action, is out on bail. A short time after dark last evening Court adjourned, to meet this morning at 9 o'clock, when the case will be resumed. It will consume all of to-day, it is thought.

THE ELLIOTT CASE.
Conclusion of the Testimony—The Arguments of Counsel—The Verdict, &c.
It is now so long after the conclusion of the trial of Jo Elliott, that it seems rather odd to go on with the testimony where we left off in our last report, dated Wilkesboro, Friday night of last week; yet in order to give a thorough understanding of the testimony we think it best to go on and give at least an outline of the most important of it.
So we conclude with Monday morning last, when the State here resumed its evidence in rebuttal, by the introduction of Walter L. Harbin: Lived in Statesville. Knew Neal. Saw him once with a bowie knife. It was in a tin shop, and he was showing how he could draw it out without bringing the sheath, and asked if that would do to kill a man? This was about the middle of January.
J. B. Shields: Was staying at the hotel at the time of the homicide, but didn't see it. I have seen Neal with a bowie knife, which he called a tooth pick. Said he wasn't afraid of anybody getting the advantage of him while he had that. Jo Elliott's character is good. So is that of H. C. Elliott.
Willis Jenkins: I live near four miles from Statesville, and know Chas. T. Neal. I have seen him with a bowie knife. I had the knife in my hand. It had a white handle.
A. M. Vannoy: I was living in Statesville at this time. Have seen Neal with a pistol and a pair of brass knuckles. It was perhaps two weeks before the homicide, that I saw the pistol. In the hall of the hotel, one day, he said some one had slandered I asked him if it was me? Said no, but some one there, and looked at Jo Elliott. I made no arrangements for the flight of the prisoner.
W. M. Walker recalled: Neal said to me on Tuesday or Wednesday, that some d—d scoundrel had said that he had run away and wasn't coming back. I understood him to make a threat against the Elliotts. Thos. Allison told me he knew nothing about the case—that he didn't know what they wanted so prove by him.
Court adjourned for dinner.
P. C. Carlton testified to the good characters of Jo Elliott and his father, John C. Barkley, Otho Barkley, John Culbreth, Milten Walker, James Anderson and Col. McLaughlin. Don't know the general character of J. H. Allison.
R. M. Allison: I got to the hotel after Neal died; and stood guard over the body with Mr. Barkley. I saw no arms on the body, and saw no one take any off. No arms found on the body when it was disrobed. I stayed there for the Coroner's inquest, and helped to undress deceased.
Cross examined: Young Mr. Barkley was in the room with the body, and others. I went to the fire 2 or 3 times between 8 o'clock and 1. I saw no arms that night nor any the next day. There were no weapons on his body—no metallic substance except a bunch of keys. Mr. McCorkle was associate counsel, and I had a consultation at the Richmond House on the day of the habeas corpus trial, but I don't recollect that I told him anything about "their not being able to prove anything about that pistol, for it had been picked up." I never heard anything about this pistol until I came here.
J. L. P. Roneche: Live in Statesville. I am an engineer. Was at home when Neal was killed. Came up from Charlotte that evening. Went in, sat down by the fire, and Neal came in, and told me he was going to leave the house that night or next day but was going to whip Jo and the old man, too, if he bothered him. As I walked out of the back door, I met Jo and his father; Jo said "Pa, if you don't take Charlie Neal out, I'll kill him." The door that led from the hall to the entry was closed. The father went into the room quickly—immediately after Jo went in. Then I heard the pistol. When I went in Neal was standing; in front of the fire; he stepped towards the door and began to sink, saying, "How cowardly!"
Cross examination: Jo saw that Charlie was angry. Neal put his fist to my nose and said he was going to whip Jo. Neal said, as Jo came in, "there comes the lucky boy." Neal was drinking, was talking louder than usual, and was noisy. Jo went out soon after Neal's remark. I went out after him, and Jo and his father went just outside the door. When Jo came in, Neal was talking about him. I was sworn before Squire Freedland, and said nothing then about this remark of Jo to his father. Before the shooting, Jo seemed to be in a better humor than usual. I told several people that night of this remark of Jo's. I told it to Capt. Jones and others.
J. A. Glarke: Was in Statesville in the hotel when Neal was shot. Come out from supper, found Neal, Dr. Mott and another man sitting in front of the fire. Jo was knocking around as usual. Hiram Elliott came in walking rapidly, put his hand on Neal's shoulder, said, "You must go out of the house—go up yonder." Neal got up with his face to Elliott and his back to the fire he said "I reckon not." Neal had his hands behind him. Elliott pulled him. Neal put both hands on E's shoulder, braced himself, and was twisted around. Jo came in then, and shot. I don't think that Neal could have reached around to his hip pocket without my seeing him. I was not more than 10 feet distant. Neal's character as a peaceable man was good. Was present at both examinations, and heard Mr. H. C. Elliott's testimony. Mr. E. said nothing about deceased kicking one of his children. Didn't say anything about Neal reaching for his hip pocket.

Cross examined: I was then a clerk in Dr. Mott's Revenue office. I went to the hotel before the train came in. Heard none of this conversation. Roneche couldn't have followed Jo out without my seeing him, if I had noticed. There were two lamps and a big fire in the room. I heard Neal say that day that he was going to whip Jo, if he didn't mind. Said Jo had ordered him away, but the old man said for him not to go, as he wanted the boys to live peacefully. I have borrowed pistols from Neal on three or four occasions. I knew Neal from the time he came to Statesville. He had the butt end of a whip with lead in it, and loaned it to N. W. Lillington, to attack Chas. R. Jones with. When Jo came into the hall, he passed between Neal and myself.
We find here that it is unnecessary to publish more of the testimony. There is little new in it, the remaining witnesses having just about gone over the same grounds which have been traversed by the preceding. Both the State and defence introduced other testimony, but it was principally as to character. The witnesses were Moses A. White, Jr., M. W. Jewett, Thos. A. Gill, J. F. Van Pelt, J. H. Houston, R. H. Poard, R. P. Simonton, W. A. Ramsey, J. L. McKee, J. H. McElwee, Jas. McLeland, Dr. C. L. Cook, W. L. Westmoreland, R. H. Rickert, J. W. Wright and J. P. Caldwell.
Col. J. M. McCorkle opened the argument for the State, and spoke for an hour and a half. He was followed by Col. G. N. Folk, for the defence. D. M. Furches, Esq., continued the argument for the prosecution, and was followed by Col. R. F. Armfield. Gov. Vance spoke next for the prisoner, and W. H. Bailey, Esq., concluded the case.

The last speech had just been made, and His Honor was delivering his charge when we turned our face toward Charlotte, or rather Statesville, for this was our first stopping place. We arrived there at 2 o'clock on Thursday morning, having left Wilkesboro at 3 o'clock on the afternoon previous.
We received reliable information yesterday morning, that the jury rendered a verdict of guilty of manslaughter, on Wednesday night or Thursday morning, and that the Judge passed sentence upon the young man, of five years imprisonment in the State Penitentiary.
We have never known a case, conducted with so much ability as this one was. Both the defence and the prosecution was managed with the utmost ingenuity. We could not, if we would, discriminate in the matter; we could not decide which was the ablest speech. Every attorney showed in his remarks, how thorough his study of the case had been, and each one added to the laurels which he had previously worn. We have already, however, strung this report out to too great a length, and will, for the present at least, cut it off.

WHITE GOODS AND NOTIONS.
Straw, Velvet and Felt Hats, from the modest Cottage Bonnet to the most delicate diadem. A great feature of the season is the LONG OSTRICH FEATHERS and TIPS, of which we keep on hand so many different shades that it would puzzle a very acute ornithologist to say from whence came all the many colored plumages for which, apparently, the world has been ransacked to furnish a new garniture for our fair ones.
A large stock of Artificial Flowers,
imitating nearly every FLORAL CREATION IN THE WORLD, and the most daring counterfeits of Nature.

Gros Grain and Fancy Ribbons.
All widths and shades imaginable.
Turquoise, Florence Silk and Velour.
Black and White Crapes
Scarfs, Laces,
Collars and Cuffs
Jacketed Edging and Inserting, Veiling,
A large stock of Kid Gloves.
In WHITE GOODS we keep on hand Table Cloths, Towels, Jaconet, Cambric, Lawn, Linen, Swiss, Nanook, and other goods belonging to that line.
We have engaged the services of several experienced Ladies to trim Ostrich Crests, and are now prepared to have Hats and Bonnets trimmed as short notice.
Attentive and competent salesmen are always ready to wait on customers, and aid them in making selections.
