Eight prisoners, one white and the others colored, left this city last evening, under guards, for the Penitentiary, to which they have been sentenced as follows: William Capps, white, 21 years; Taylor McLean, 10 years; Adam Lee, 2 years; Nathan Barnes, years; Peter McRorie, 5 years; Ben Sneed, 5 years; Lum Hart, 2 years; Abe White, 2 years. A Would-be Robber Frustrated

Mr. J. W. Duncan, of this city, lives in the house of Mr. W. I. Friday, and boards Mr. Friday and his wife. On Thursday evening Mr. Duncan left the city on the North train, and before doing so, went to Mr. Friday and gave him some money to take to his (Duncan's) wife, when he went home to supper. After supper Mr. Friday counted the money out to Mrs. Duncan on a small table, and came up street. Mrs. D. left the money ying on the table and went into another room, and, as luck would have it, an old colored woman locked the door of the room in which the money was lying. Presently the knob of the door was heard to turn, and upon the colored woman going to it she found a young white man standing there-In reply to a question he said he wanted something to eat. The woman shut the door in his face, went and got him something, and, returning gave it to him, whereupon he walked out of the yard.

An examination was made of the premises and the window blinds of the room of which we have been speaking, were found open notwithstanding the fact. Mrs. Duncan had closed them tightly but a short time before, There is no doubt the would-be thief had opened them, had seen the money counted out, and was only waiting for all the persons to leave the room, to open the door, walk in and capture the prize. Fortunately the caution of the old negro woman in locking the door, frustrated his designs, and he made nothing but a supper by the venture.

Scoundrels in Our Midst.

Three separate items which we publish in our columns this morning, show undeniably that there is a class of bad and desperate men in our city. We are loth to believe that they are residents of the place, and our belief that they are not, is strengthened by the audience drank in the result of his research fact that there are now here a number of with profound appreciation. The analysis stragglers whom nobody knows and who seem to have no business or occupation of any kind. In view of recent events it would be well, not only for the police to exercise an extra vigilance, but for our citizens to be unusually wary. It is particularly important that people close their houses so soon as dark falls, so that they may be secure against these sneak thieves, should they call. A very little care may save a considerable loss.

Knocked Down by a Brickbat.

Yesterday morning, Mr. Thos. Clayton, who works on the Carolina Central Railoff the pavement and fell into the gutter, his counsellor in the ways of truth, virtue He remembers, that, as he fell, he exclaim- and honor, she it was, who by a mad hallued "Oh Lord," and heard some one say, "Oh, h-l." King, and usurp the proud prerogatives of Mr. Clayton was considerably stunned, but the crown of Scotland. never ceased his efforts to get up, and in a who threw the brick did not advance upon than to knock him down. If the object was powers, not robbery, the man's design is explicable.

Prof. Wm. Hare, "the king of"-humongs, advertised when he came here, to perform "for three nights only," but he seems to have forgotten the other two little engagements, and, with his "troupe," left on the Charlotte, Columbia & Augusta train vesterday morning. The Professor is the most arrant fraud of the amusement season, and deserves to be exposed by the press wherever he goes. It is just such strolling dead-beats as he, that cause the public to distrust travelling entertainments of every kind, and they should meat with severe denunciation from the newspapers of every place where they exhibit he people of Charlotte. He was made to very ardnous one, and an unprecedented pay his expenses in advance, and we have no idea that he took in enough money to meet them. At least we sincerely hope that

A Ruffianly Assault. Mr. Israel Fink, who keeps the bar room adjoining the office of the Charlotte Hotel was the victim of a brutal assault, while on his way home,about 1( } o'clock Thursday night. on Trade street, he was struck by some peron, with a missile which he thinks must nave been a slung shot, and knocked perfecty senseless. When he recovered himself he was lying on the pavement below the Foundry and in front of a small wooden building which was built for a laundry. His wits were so far gone that he had to ask a boy who was just then passing, which direction he must take to get home. The blow was just below the left eye, and was evidently inflicted with some very heavy instrument The eye was, yesterday, swollen and bloodshotten, and the face was swollen and black half the length of the cheek. So sudden was the attack that Mr. Fink saw no one at all, & only knew that he had been attacked when he came to his senses, lying in the street. He thinks he must have lain there for half

He had on his person at the time, a silver watch and something over $200 in money. The money he had taken out of the bank just before the close of business hours on Thursday, to pay a debt; but the person to whom he owed it did not call for it, and he had to keep it in his pocket. If the design of the attacking party was to commit highway robbery, he had every opportnnity to do it, and if it was to gratify a personal spite. Mr. Fink cannot imagine who it was, as he is not aware of having an enemy in the city. He is certain the person, whoever he was, came up from behind, as he could have seen him had he been in front of him or on either side. Mr. Fink was in nowise under the influence of liquor. This was a performance which, for boldness and adroitness, would have done credit

The Lecture at the Institute Last Night. As had been previously announced the Rev. Mr. W. F. Campbell, Rector of the Episcopal Church at Winnsboro, S. C., lectured to an appreciative audience at the Carolina Military Institute last night. While the audience was quite a large one for Charlotte, due perhaps by the reputation of the speaker, we are sorry to say that it was not as large as it ought to have been, and we may add that such a literary treat ought to fill any hall in North Carolina to its utmost seating capacity, and we sympathize with those who denied themselves the privilege of attendance. Introduced by Col, Thomas, the Superindent, the audience was led to form a favorable opinion both of the lecturer and his subject, but the conception was far below the true standard of either. The speaker was a minister of the gospel and his subject was Shakepeare's "Macbeth," a production of the highest style of genius, known to the English with the sublimest respect, and most attentive appreciatiation. If the gifted speaker harbored a thought that "Macbeth" was of Baconian origin, he did not allude to it, and his appreciative audience were satisfied at its conclusion, that the lecturer was content to allow the honor of giving birth to the unrivalled production of the play, to rest securely upon the brow of William Shakespeare, and notwithstanding what others might say, he at least, would tear no laurel from the crown of that eminent and justly celebrated writer,

The lecturer dissected his subject and his was complete, as the speaker employed langnage alike forcible, elegant and elequent The hearer was transported in imagination to the blasted heath when amid the raging of the disturbed elements, the three witches announced to the fated " Macbeth," that he should reign upon the Scottish throne, and step by step, the mind was led through the various conditions of hope, despair, ambition and final desperation of the hero of his subject, until he fell on the plain between Birnam wood and Dunsinane, a dying giant, at the hands of him who "from his mother's womb had been untimely ripped." Dying in his gore, unwept, unhonored and road, came into Charlotte on the 2 o'clock | disgraced, the speaker deduced moral and train on the Air Line Railroad, from Green- religious truth from his character, which, to ville. Though we have read the play from the time of our earliest literary recollection : though we have stood spell bound under the unimitated delineations of Forrest in this immortal production; though we have read beauties from the magic touch of the lecture last evening, and we can extend our sympathies to those who denied themselves the pleasure of hearing it.

The Fall term of Superier Court for Mecklenburg County, concluded its session yesterday evening. The business had not all been discosed of, but the members of the bar gave their ready consent to an adjournment of Court, that Judge Shenck might go The Professor had little success in gulling home this morning. The session has been a amount of work has been done. In addition to a capital case on the criminal docket, and others on the same docket in which the defendants came clear, 15 persons, all colored save two, were sentenced to the Penitentiary for different terms. Quite a number of cases on the civil docket were also disposed of .-Business has been hurried along at a rapid rate, and the conduct of the new Judge and Just after he had passed Cook's Foundry, Solicitor, has met with unanimous approval from all law-abiding men. The Judge has, we believe, given very general satisfaction to the members of the bar. He is very prompt in forming his decisions, and very prompt in enforcing them; but he is impartial and always grants both sides a fair hearing. The LARGER, STRONGER, and BETTER, Court was so different from Judge Logan's Court, that one hardly recognized it as the same body. We can say in truth that the people of Mecklenburg were pleased, more than pleased, with the new Judge and Solicrenowned Comedian and Greatest Charac

The case of Witt- First appearance of the talented Humorist kowsky & Riptels vs. Caddell and Gatewood, was resumed upon the assembling of Court, and resulted in the jury finding for the defendants. The remainder of the day was consumed in making orders, and in other business of that kind, where no jury was needed, and where there were no regular arguments, -- in clearing up the rubbish, if we may so express it.
