The OBSERVER greets its patrons this morning in an enlarged form. Both on their account and ours it gives us pleasure to do this. To them it presages a larger amount reading matter and a greater variety in conequence, while it shows the prosperous condition of the OBSERVER and is flattering to its proprietor and editorial staff, being an evidence of its growing popularity.

We hope that the OBSERVER will, hence forth, be a better paper than it has ever been before. The enlargement and the recent ac cession to its corps, encourages the belief that it will. Whatever industry and a hear ty desire to please can do, will be done, and as the paper improves we look for its patronage to grow correspondingly.

We shall all do our best, and our constant effort will be to bring the paper up to the rank of a lively, wide-awake journal

The Prayer Meeting Yesterday. Yesterday was the sixth day of the week of prayer, and the prayer meeting was right well attended. Services were held by Mr. Harding, of the Second Presbyterian Church. According to the programme of the Eyangelical Alliance, there will be a meeting this afternoon of all the congregations and clergy of the city, for prayer. In accordance with this arrangement, the christian people of Charlotte will meet at 4. P. M. at Tryon Street M. E. Church, when it is sup-posed that addresses will be delivered by the different clergymen of the city.

Littel's Living Age. The second weekly number of the new volume of The Living Age, bearing date Jah. 9th, contains an important article by Prof. T. H. Huxley, on the Hypothesis that Animals are Antomata, and its History, from the Fortnightly Review. The same number also has part II of Saxon Studies, by Julian Hawthorne; "Alice Lorraine," by R. G. Blackmore, author of that remarkable story "The Maid of Sker;" the conclusion of Thos Hardy's "Far from the Madding Crowd," and other instructive and entertaining reading. It is a valuable number, and the present is a good time to subscribe, beginning with the new year. With fifty-two num bers, of sixty-four large pages each, (aggregrating over 3000 pages a year) the subscrip-ion price ($8) is low; or still better, for $10.50 any one of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies is cent with The Living Age for a year, both post-paid. The Charlotte Observer says cotton sold in his market last week for 8 cents. This is not true, cotton sells for as much in Salisbury as in Charlotte. Our merchants and buyers are better able to pay good prices, yet they are not continually blowing about what they give or buy.—Salisbury Watshman.

Well, there ain't any use in getting mad about it. If it is "not true" as you say it isn't, you have to blame one of your own citizens, for one of them communicated the information to us. By-the-by, if Balisbury merchants are able to pay better prices for cotton than those in Charlotte, why is it that cotton comes, not only from Cabarrus, Iredell, Rowan, but from Davidson, to the Charlotte market:

Our Paper. We take city subscriptions at our office merely through courtesy, to our subscribers. All such should be paid to H. C. Capps, who is alone responsible to us. We take this occasion to say that he is in no wise responsible for the increase in the price of subscription. This has been done to meet the actual xpenses of publication, which could not e done before with the very closest economy. No daily paper has ever been successful in Charlette, but when the present propri-eter took charge in April last, he took his Webster's unabridged and marked the word failure" out. To day, we believe we have the brightest prospect of any paper in North Carolina, and while we do not expect to make any money for a year or two, we intend to expend the income of the office, to the building up of a first-class journal, and we ask all our friends to help us.

The Opera House Last Night:

Tennyson has been made rather ridiculous

by the critics; but there are some of his poems which have run the gauntlet of criticism and passed the eye of a critical public with the greatest credit to the author, Among these is "Dora,"-it is one of the most perfect poems of our language, and all that the author conceived was brought out in the act last evening. It is not ours to speak of all the different scenes in the play, nor to give any synopsis of it. It is known to all those who will take any interest in this notice, clars Wildman's personation of Dorg was dmost perfect; there were some imperfections in her acting which might be noted. but her general bearing was so good that we prefer to overlook these. Ella Bailey as Mary Morrison went shead of her acting on the preceding evenings, and elicited favor-Thompson as Bloomfield did splendidly, and beyond these wa will not speak specially. In "Cu ba," that highly ridiculous farce Clara appeared again to decided advantage as "Miralda, the Cigar Girl." Wildman himself, as Selk Swap, beat a "down aust" Yankee to death, and Thompson as Pedro fairly surpassed himself. Round after round of applause greeted this glorious comedy, and its closing was witnessed with reget. Glam is indeed the "Pearl of Song.' She ang "The Brook" beautifully, and one or two other things, particularly "Down in a Coal Mine," quite won her listeners.
