LOCAL DOGS.
Streets sweet and slushy now.
It was skates on Tuesday; the boats will now have to be called into requisition again.
All persons attending the masquerade ball to-morrow night, will be required to unmask before being admitted to the ball room.
The bad weather and the worst streets have driven the usual pious reflections out of the reportorial mind of the religious scribe.
The Erie City Iron Works have established their branch house here, and have their office in Sanders & Blackwood's new building, on College street.
A negro named Adolphus, one of Cruise's draymen, was arrested for "picking up some things" in the wholesale store of Wittkowsky & Rintels, and bound over to Court.
The Good Templars will meet at their new hall over the Commercial National Bank, this evening, for the transaction of business of importance.
Additions to Directory.
At the meeting of the stockholders of the Commercial National Bank, on Tuesday, Messrs. M. Melchor, of Cabarrus, and W. E. Holt, of Alamance, were added to the present Board of Directors. No changes or additions were made in any of the other banks.
Y. M. C. A.
Owing to the inclement weather, the meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association which was intended to be held night before last, was postponed until next Tuesday night, when the same programme which was prepared for the last meeting night, will be observed.
Mud in a Railroad Track.
We understand from passengers that between Charlotte and Monroe, the mud is so deep in the track of the Carolina Central Railroad, as to reach almost to the axles. In some places there are no evidences of a track, and the train just seems to be plowing its way through a sea of mud.
Two Cents Worth.
Why can't we have a circulation of copper cents, three cent pieces and the like? If you want to buy an apple or any other trifle, price five cents. There was a time when one had to pay a quarter in this city for things that sold in other cities for a nickel; finally the latter coin came into vogue, and now for a pocketful of coppers.
Lent.
Five weeks of gayety and dissipation will bring us to Lent. Then a period of fasting and prayer, extending over forty days and nights. Then another six weeks of festivity, and we have spring again. With spring come preparations for summer wanderings in the country. The winter fashionable season here is short, beginning later and culminating earlier every year.
Accident to Mr. Ed. Matthews.
We regret to learn that Mr. Edward Matthews, principal owner of the Carolina Central Railway, met with a painful accident in New York on Thursday last. He was in the act of getting out of his carriage upon the pavement, which was covered with ice, when his feet slipped and he fell, breaking his right arm. The wound, we are sorry to learn, is quite a serious one.—Wilmington Star.

Our Crowded Columns.
The message which the President sent to the Senate yesterday, appears in full in our telegraphic columns this morning, and editorial comments upon it will be made to-morrow. It only began coming about 8 o'clock last evening, and it was necessary, in order to get it in type, to put our entire force of newspaper printers upon it. This accounts for the meagre condition of our local columns to-day. The message also crowds out other telegraphic news, market &c.
Committed.
A negro by the name of Jim Barber, was before Justice A. H. Martin, yesterday, for having stolen clothing, bed clothes, &c., from Messrs. J. Sol. Reid, W. A. Knox and others, in Providence Township, some time in September last. Shortly after the stealing the negro left the neighborhood, and was only arrested a day or two ago, in Ireddell or Rowan. Some of the goods were found in his possession, and identified by the owners. The magistrate sent the negro to jail to await a further investigation of the case on Saturday.
A Serious Accident on the Ice.
What was feared for a while was a fatal accident, happened yesterday morning to Tommy Rankin, a little boy 12 or 13 years old, son of Col. J. B. Rankin, of this city. He was walking along the pavement near Wadsworth's livery stable, on Tryon street, when he slipped on the ice and fell, his head striking the ground first. He was knocked senseless, and laid there until some persons picked him up and carried him into a room in the stable. Dr. J. P. McComb was called to see him there, and, after a lapse of about fifteen minutes, he recovered consciousness. After this he underwent a severe spasm, but before a great while, was able to walk about and go home.
Dr. L. Von Meyerhoff, of Vienna.
We have received from this individual, a letter, dated "New York, January, 1875," enclosing a note which he desires us to publish. It would be highly improper in us to do so, as it relates to a matter entirely personal. It might do for publication in Germany; but not in America. The Von says as follows, which there is no propriety in publishing, and which will interest some: "Parties who have claims against me are satisfied by sending them to 317 W. 29th street, New York."
He says further: "I am going to take mortgage on my estate in Vienna, to settle claims against me." This is gratifying intelligence. If he will just mortgage his Vienna real estate, he will then have plenty of money, and both money creditors will no longer hang around his door, or bombard him by every mail with duns for filthy lucre.

Disastrous Gallantry.
The mother and sisters of the young man who attempted, as he was passing along the street on Tuesday, to bow to a young lady standing on a piazza, hadn't finished mending his pants and underclothing up to bed time last night, and they were thinking then about sending up town to get a few more feet of coat plaster to wrap him up in. He said to some friends who called on him yesterday: "I've made my last bow, boys; I've made my last bow."
Young America.
Two boys, aged respectively about 8 and 9 years, met yesterday on the streets, when one asked the other to join the Good Templars. "Are you a Good Templar?" asked he. "Yes," was the reply. "Not drinking anything now, then?" and with the air of an old toper, who did not feel himself bound to abstinance, the 9 year old boy smiled rather contemptuously as he stuck a five-cent cigar in his mouth and stroled off.
Lord, what is the world coming to?
Another Company Coming.
The proprietors of the Charlotte Opera House received a letter yesterday morning from W. T. Powell, Esq., manager of the Richmond Theatre, asking them to book Adams for the Opera House on the night of February 12th. He was booked accordingly.
We hear unofficially that the Wagoner's Minstrels are heading this way.
Good Words.
Since the recent change in the editorial corps of the Observer, the press of the State has showered many and unmerited compliments upon the paper and "all of us." These compliments have been so numerous, and seemingly so cordial, that they were sufficient to have almost turned the heads of stronger minded men than we. We assure our brethren that we appreciate their kind allusions. We are not worthy of all they have said, but their words will stimulate us to renewed exertions to be worthy. We would be glad to publish the notices of our contemporaries, but modestly forbids.

The Central Hotel.
The editor of the Hillsboro Recorder was in Charlotte last week. He speaks, in his paper of Tuesday last, of the article which appeared in a recent number of the Rockingham Spirit of the South, reflecting upon the management of the the Central Hotel, and says:
"Having been ourselves a guest of the house a very few days after the appearance of that article, we are able to offer testimony to a very different experience. We had no personal disappointments to resent; neither were we the subject of special honor or compliment. But speaking dispassionately and candidly, we can truthfully say that we know no better house any where—and our experience is somewhat large in the hotels of this State and Virginia—than the Central, and no better landlord than Mr. Eccles. The table is excellent, and could hardly be bettered, and the room struck us as fastidiously nice and clean, so much so that the observer who pronounced the furniture old and shabby must have seen it through old green spectacles."
TELEGRAPHIC FLASHES.
Ex Gov. Bramlette, the manager of the Louisville Lottery, died in that city to-day.
Nevada elects Sharon, Republican, to the United States Senate.
The Louisiana Legislature in joint session to-day, confirmed Pinchback as United States Senator.
A telegram to-night says—"The proceedings in the Beecher-Titt trial, are too indecent for the telegraphic columns."
The weather probabilities to-night say that to-morrow we will have cloudy weather and occasional coast rains.
