LOCAL DOGS.

It's at it again. The rain began about dark, and now for more trouble.
Rev. R. H. Whitaker, editor of the Friend of Temperance, Raleigh, was registered at the Charlotte Hotel yesterday.
The lady who wrote us a postal card, requesting that certain publication be made, is informed that it was made in advance of her request.
The Executive Committee have prepared a programme for the Centennial celebration, and will submit it to the general meeting of committee on Thursday next.
The mail which arrived at the post office here on Thursday evening and yesterday morning, was not all distributed until 1 P. M. yesterday. It was a job.

Stamps on Notes.

The commissioner of internal revenue has decided that "notes payable at bank are subject to stamp tax if there is any understanding between the maker thereof and the bank that such notes shall be paid by the bank and charged on makers account like ordinary checks."

Death of an Old Citizen.

Yesterday morning Mr. John Egler, of this city, breathed his last. He was one of the old citizens of the place, being 59 years of age at the time of his death, and having been a resident of the place since early manhood. He came here as an attache of the Mint, about the time it was established, and has been living here ever since. He died, possessing the respect and confidence of the community, as an honest, straightforward, good citizen.
Funeral notice in another column.

"Big Eyed Rabbit" Box!

Yesterday morning while some plowing was being done in the garden of Mr. J. N.
Gray, of this city, the plow turned up a nest containing four curious little specimens of the animal creation. One of these was presented to us. It is shaped, as to its head, body and tail, just like a rabbit. Its hair, however, is black, and in other respects it is unlike a rabbit. It has not yet attained sufficient antiquity to open its eyes, else we could tell with more certainty, what manner of "beast" it is.

The Mexican Show.

This "circus" gave two more performances yesterday. There are those who go to circuses and every other sort of show, determined to "let off some steam," and these had a glorious time. The performances yesterday and last night were about as on the day before, and our remarks of yesterday will apply again this morning. The music last night was much improved by the addition of a hand organ. A circular saw gives out much more melodious sounds than that "Mexican brass band." The singing of the clowns was poorer than the music of the band, and their wit (?) poorer than either one. "Mexican Sensation Show," etc.

Victimized Again.

We published, yesterday, what purported to have been a rebuke administered by a minister to a railroad conductor, on account of profane language used on the train by the latter. We were told yesterday by our informant that the story was a "put up job" on the conductor; and that he (our informant) got us to publish it as a "good joke" on the conductor, who had already been much teased by it. Had we known, as we do now, that the story was manufactured, we should not have published it, but, in the innocence of our nature we did not suspect this. Let it should militate against the young man, in some way or other, we make this explanation, taking occasion to observe that such "jokes" are not palatable.

Railroad Accident.

Yesterday an accident occurred on the Carolina Central Railroad, four miles from this city, which is likely to result fatally, we learn, to one person. An engine of the old North Carolina Railroad gauge, had got caught at this end of the line, and had to take the Wilmington road to get back to the Shops, going from Wilmington via the Wilmington & Weldon Railroad. The engine and two cars got safely over a bad place in the road, but the third car jumped the track, causing the rear cars to jam up against it.
A negro brakeman, just at this time was going up the ladder of one rear car, to get to his brakes when the two cars which he was between, ran close together, the bumpers not meeting. He was mashed between them and his legs, legs and body badly crushed; we understand that his chances of life are very slim. Two other negroes were hurt, but less seriously. We could not ascertain the name of the injured man. Nine cars were thrown from the track.

Vance's Reception in Virginia.

The following article concerning our distinguished townsman, is from the Norfolk, (Va.) Landmark:
"Everything which tends to promote the mutual good feeling and regard which North Carolina and Virginia should cherish for each other, is hailed by us with un-faded pleasure; for, as the States were bound together in war, so in peace are they identified in many of their interests. And hence it is that we have observed the impression made by Vance during his recent visit with great satisfaction. He began his career as a 'platform orator' in this city last Spring, and within the past week made his appearance in Richmond and Petersburg. In the Capitol he was received with great cordiality, and became the object of universal attention, while in the Cockade City they had to take the Carolina orator to a larger hall than that originally selected; in order to find room for the people who flocked to hear. We repeat, that we are glad Vance has made this second visit to Virginia, for it has enabled him to show, in part, at least, that he is not only full of the most charming humor and a great 'stump speaker,' but that he has a lofty range of thought and a wider range of cultivation than those who do not know his powers and attainments have been disposed to attribute to him."

The North Road.

Although it will take this road some time yet to recover from the effects of the change of gauge, as regards freight, &c., trains have already begun to run with some regularity.
The mail train came in yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, only an hour and a half behind its schedule time. The express train reached this city at 11:30, and will leave this morning as usual. We have no doubt that, in a day or two more, trains will run as regularly as they did before the change.
The track is in very good order; a Richmond & Danville Railroad conductor says it is quite as good now as that track is.

The Cemetery.

This consecrated spot is now clothed in the beautiful habiliments of Spring. Many of the flowers are blooming beautifully, and new ones are being set out, on the borders of the walks. The green house, standing on the summit of the eminence, is charming indeed, and will present a scene of still greater attractiveness, when the Spring, with its warm and frothy sun shine and gentle showers, shall have given a little further advanced, and cast its genial influence over the earth. The walks have been cleared of the grass and weeds, and sand has been placed on them and rolled smooth.
The Cemetery is the loveliest spot about our city, and Mr. Zoake does himself credit in the care which he exercises in beautifying and rendering so attractive, this "silent city of the dead."

A Returned Carolinian.

We had the great pleasure of meeting in the city, yesterday, our friend, Dr. J. E.
Douthitt, who is at present in Charlotte on a tour of inspection. Dr. Douthitt is a native of Davidson county; after the war he removed to Statesville, where he engaged in the mercantile and drug business with H. P.
Eckles, Esq., the great proprietor of the Central Hotel. From Statesville he emigrated to Missouri, where he pursued the practice of his profession, with great success.
After four or five years there, he went to Pennsylvania, and is again in the Old North State, with an idea of making Charlotte his future home. Dr. Douthitt speaks in high terms of the fertility of the soil of Missouri, and the rapid progress of the country, but the climate was too rigorous for his constitution and he was compelled to leave it on that account.
We trust that he will fully determine to locate among us. He would be a valuable acquisition. He is a talented and accomplished gentleman, a learned and successful physician, and we would cordially welcome him as a citizen of Charlotte.

The Carolina Central.

We are requested to say in reply to a "phunny" article in the Charlotte Ossava of the 12th, that the passenger trains of this company have but in a single instance failed to leave Charlotte on about schedule time and never failed to reach that city either direct or by transfer, except in a few cases where slides had covered the track, before the hour for leaving of the next train in this we consider reflects credit upon the officers and employees and especially upon the conductors, engineers and track men and masters.
Those of our readers who are acquainted with the character of the soil between in Monroe and Charlotte will appreciate the trouble in maintaining these connections so well in the face of difficulties that would have deterred less energetic men.—Wilmington Journal.

The Mecklenburg Declaration.

W. H. Bailey, Esq., has done us the kindness to place the following correspondence in our hands. It is self-explanatory. Mr.
Bailey has reference in his letter, as Col.
Cantwell supposes, to certain passages in the Memoirs of Josiah Quincy. We would feel under obligations to Col. C., if he would furnish us the extracts bearing upon the Mecklenburg Declaration, as we have no copy of the Memoirs in our possession. The following are the letters: CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 13, 1875.
HON. EDWARD CANTWELL—DEAR SIR: I understand that you are in possession of some information bearing upon the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence. Will you be so kind as to furnish the same to me, as you know that, "sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish, I am for"—the Declaration.
With high regard, I am,
Your friend,
W. H. BAILEY.

SENATE CHAMBER,
RALEIGH, N. C., March 18, 1875.
W. H. BAILEY, Esq.—DEAR SIR: I have but a moment to acknowledge the honor you do me in supposing that I have any of the South, and do not already possess on the subject of the Mecklenburg Declaration; and to guess that you refer to the passage in Quincy's Memoirs, Mr. Quincy went out from Boston in 1773 as far as Charleston sounding the colonists, but got no encouragement until he met Oronides Harnett, whom he styles "The Samuel Adams of the South," and Robert Howe, at Hilton, New Hanover county, N. C. He says that the triumvirate agreed on a plan in that interview, resolutions, correspondence, &c. It was to this I had reference in my address to Hon. Henry Wilson, at Wilmington, when I told him he had, it is true, come to us from the "cradle of liberty," but we would like him that day to Hilton, when under the inspiring presence of another son of Massachusetts, liberty itself was born.
The Declaration of Mecklenburg was probably arranged in that interview, and considered in that light assumes its proper place and sequence as a historical event, and was not a mere accident.
Your friend,
EDWARD CANTWELL.

Concert Last Night.

J. H. Mills, Esq., the Superintendent of the Oxford Orphan Asylum, arrived in Charlotte yesterday morning, bringing with him eleven of the little orphans. These children have been giving concerts at several places in the State, and last evening they gave one, on brief notice, at the Baptist church here. The church was quite well filled, notwithstanding the rain, and the verdict of approval was general. The children all have excellent voices, which have been well trained, and their singing was commented on in highly favorable terms by all present. We are sure that the heart of every humane person in the house must have warmed toward these little children of the world, and offered up a silent petition to the Father of the fatherless, for the success and increased usefulness of the institution in the interest of which these representatives are now traveling. We hope each one of our citizens will constitute his or her mit to the support which the Asylum now stands so much in need of.

A Ladies Committee Suggested.

We commend the following to the consideration of our fair readers, who, we feel sure, are willing, indeed anxious, to render any assistance in their power for the furtherance of the Centennial celebration:
Messes EDITORS:
Were not the women of 1775 equally as patriotic and liberty-loving as their fathers, husbands and brothers? Judging by what we know of woman's part in the late war, it is safe to say they surpassed the sterner sex in patriot ardor. And are not the ladies of 1875 equally as desirous of commemorating the bold Declaration of their forefathers as we who talk so much and do so little? Ladies usually appreciate a Declaration as an event of life. (N. B. This is a pun.) Joking aside, I think we shall err if we do not call the better half to our assistance in arranging for the approaching Centennial.
Let a Ladies' Auxiliary Committee be organized to take charge of all matters connected with the Centennial celebration, that properly come in the province of the gentler sex. No one can doubt that if a number of our noble townswomen, Mrs.
Osborne, Mrs. Vance, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Dewey, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Johnston, Mrs.
Young, I and might name a hundred that would associate themselves to obtain the advantage of organized action, their assistance would be found invaluable. What say the ladies? Will they be foremost in this as in every other good work?
[COMMUNICATED.]
Municipal Affairs.

Messes EDITORS.

The nearness of the time for the municipal election, warns the citizens of a duty of the utmost importance, namely: the selection of good men to govern the affairs of our city during the year ensuing. One man has been added to the many gone before, without our being able to record the least important act or improvement on the part of our city government to which we can refer with pride or satisfaction. Vain have been the efforts of the few who of late have urged upon the city fathers, improvements of the most absolute necessity. It is possible that this state of things is to exist always, and that we must continue to suffer from this neglect of our affairs, and have the continued mortification of being known as the filthiest and muddiest city in the State?
It is true we have some good and faithful men as Aldermen, who really comprehend the situation and would act to our advantage were it not for others who, having occupations or business dependent upon popular favor, shrink from their duties.
Messrs. Editors, I believe in no man neglecting his own interests; but, when he takes an oath as a city officer to guard the best interests of the city, he should do it or resign.
Sirs, this matter is fraught with too much importance to allow further delay. But few persons know the amount of money charged to public improvements. It is far greater than any one dreams of, and yet where the visible results? We hope and trust you will lend your influential aid in exposing this and other abuses and neglects, on the part of the present administration, believing that it will call forth from enlightened sources such information and experience as may guide us safely in the future.

SINCERITY.

DIED.

At his residence in this city, on yesterday at 2:30 a. m., Mr. JOHN RIGLER, aged 59 years.
The funeral services will be conducted at Tyrone Street M. E. Church, at 8 o'clock this afternoon. The friends and acquaintances are respectfully invited.
