OBSERVATIONS.

The guardian of the tomb of Napoleon I, Pierre Hendrix, died recently at the age of 76 years. He fought under the man whose ashes he guarded for many years.

The Washington Republican says that the ladies in the Treasury Department are rebelling against the inconvenience of having to hang their cloaks and hats on one peg, and they demand one peg for each female. If this is not given a number of them threaten to resign at once.

A little girl only nine years old has traveled alone from Farmington, Minn., to St. Paul, Me., her only passport being a letter from a Masonic lodge stating that her father was a Mason and she an orphan. Asked how she got along, she answered, "Everybody I met was a Mason."

It is astonishing, says a Washington correspondent, how many senators are joining the senatorial expansion to Mexico, for their health. Morton goes for the benefit of his paralytic legs; Logan for his lungs; Oglesby for his catarrh; Conkling for his digestion, and Cameron for anything he can pick up loose, from a silver mine to a Mexican senorita.

The prepared papers for country newspapers, known as "patent insides," sometimes make ridiculous blunders. Not long ago the cable announced the had news that the Pope has had "another child," and shortly afterward came from forty-seven Wisconsin newspapers with patent insides the announcement that "the Pope has had another child."

In Wisconsin, every woman of the age of twenty-one years and upward may be elected to the office of director, treasurer, and clerk of school district; director and secretary of town boards, under the township system or school government; member of a Board of Education in cities, and county superintendent of schools.

GERMANY, with a population of 42,000,000 souls, graduated 600,000 graduates last year, rejecting 108 applicants. The record of the United States, with its 10,000,000 population for the same year, is 9,000 graduates, and few if any rejections. It is strange that the medical profession is overcrowded in this country.

"Wake up, Judge, wake up; there's a burglar in the house," said Mrs. Paddy, in Brooklyn, to her husband the other night. The Judge rolled out of bed, grasped his revolver and opened the door to call for the robber. Then turning to his wife, he said: "Come, Sarah, and lead the way. It's a damned mean man that will hurt woman."

Sheridan having grown tired of discovering bandits in Louisiana has turned his attention to the Black Belt of the country. He writes Gen Sherman, that Mr. Hildes he has discovered a mountain of gold. If persons had believed in the existence of such a wonder before, they would discredit it now, as sheriff it is such a notorious liar.

Among the important notices published in Paris is one from the past of George Sand, the celebrated authoress. It is composed of striking sketches of the most noted writers, poets, and novelists of the present century, foremost among whom George Sand has placed Byron, Fenimore Cooper, Goethe, Balzac, Beranger, Mrs Beecher Stowe &c.

A Dublin founding was hurriedly christened Mary, but it subsequently appeared that an error of orthography had been made. The Board of Guardians of the Home, which is in a solemn convulsion, has decided to resolve to call the young girl Edward. He is now on the verge of matrimony, it being tacitly admitted that to drop the feminine name would be to lose his identity in the inaccessible records kept on the other side of Jordan.—Chicago Tribune.

We thank our contemporary the Spartanburg (S. C.) Herald, for the following handsome notice: "We note with pleasure the increased size and improved appearance of the Charlotte (N. C.) Daily Observer, which is rapidly advancing to the front rank of journals, and is largely edited and well filled with the latest news and general information. Charlotte may well be proud of the Observer, which is destined to be one of the leading papers of the South."

The New York Herald of Tuesday says: "The excitement attendant on the Beecher trial will rise to an unprecedented height if the report be correct that Mr Beecher is to appear upon the witness stand to-day. This step is said to have been decided on by his counsel yesterday evening, and cannot be long delayed, even if it should be reconsidered now. Yesterday the testimony was principally intended to prove an alibi, so far as a report of his doublet being concerned."

General Spitzer has at last intimated his threat to resign the office of United States Treasurer, which he has held for three years. The resignation is not to take effect until July 1, but the President has already appointed Mr John C. New, who is new to the public, in his stead, as well as in name. He is a candidate for election in Indianapolis. Senator Morton is said to have a high opinion of his financial ability; but this will not harm Mr New unless he should hold a similar opinion of Senator Morton.—New York Herald.

A "PUT UP JOB."

It is well known that Grant is desperate. His acts for six months past all go to prove this. He is a dangerous man, and the remark of the Courier-Journal, that he would never leave the White House except upon a stretcher, may turn out to be a prophecy. Grant must be conscious that he has not only forfeited the confidence of the vast majority of the American people, but the confidence of a majority of his own party. Yet, if one will observe, Grant is just as zealous for the interests of his party as though he were still his favorite and trusted leader. The President is known to be a very selfish man and he would not trouble himself about the party if he did not have some hopes of being elected for a third term. The only possible way in which this could be effected would be to get up a foreign war and divert the attention of the American people from tyranny at home. It was evidently the purpose of the administration to get up a war with Spain, but the Spanish Government met the demands of this Government in the "Virginia" case so promptly that the attempt proved a failure.

Yesterday's despatches informed us that bands of robbers from the Republic of Mexico have been committing depredations upon the Texas frontier to such an extent that, if they are not checked, the settlements along the Rio Grande will be altogether broken up as the people have already been forced to leave their homes and congregated in the towns for safety. There is something "rotten" about these raids. The whole thing looks very much like a "put up" job. It is notorious that nearly all the Indian wars of late years, which have cost the country so much blood and money, were manufactured by men who al ready had or expected to get contracts for furnishing the army with supplies. These contractors would furnish the Indians with arms, ammunition, and "fire water," and then, it is alleged, would employ reckless white men to commit outrages and exasperate the savages into open hostility. It has ever been charged that the government, since it has been in Republican hands, it has not indeed been a party to these infamous intrigues, has at least connived at them. An administration that overlooked such infamous conduct as this would not hesitate to embroil the country in a foreign war, in order to secure for itself another lease of power. With this past before us we cannot but suspect that the administration has a hand in bringing about these troubles on the frontier. It is strange that they should all occur just at this juncture. An administration that has proved so efficient in manufacturing Indian wars and Southern outrages, could easily trump up a plausible casus belli with Mexico. It would be a godsend to Grant just now.

Since writing the above we find some such suspicions expressed in a leading editorial in the New York Herald. The Herald says: "The raids of Mexican freebooters into Texas, reported in our telegraph columns, must not be permitted to pass without remark because of such raids and robberies open to President Grant an easy way for embroiling the country in a foreign war on a plausible pretext, if he thinks such a war would promote his personal objects. It has been widely suspected for the last few years that if he should find his aspirations for a third term blocked by the failure of his Southern policy he would precipitate the country into a foreign war and thereby attempt to rally popular passion to his support. Pretenses for a war with Spain have been removed by the recent settlement of the Virginia difficulty, but a war with Mexico might suit him equally as well. He understands that country, having served with General Scott in his brilliant Mexican campaign. It is well known that at the close of our civil war General Grant thought it would be a good idea to make a policy for our government to send an army to the Mexican interior and dethrone poor Maximilian. By allowing Confederate officers and soldiers to participate in the campaign and fight under our flag he thought the animosities of the civil war would be effaced, and that such an invasion inasmuch of the Monroe doctrine would do more than anything else to tranquillize our sectional difficulties. The fact that General Grant formed such a conception attests his aptitude for combining political with military objects. It is not incredible, therefore, that he may again desire a war with Mexico for political purposes.

We have no doubt that it is just as easy to get up Mexican raids as White League outrages in pursuance of party or personal aims. The President, if so inclined, could easily cultivate a great crop of troubles on the Mexican frontier, and if that failed he could be thought unendurable, he could pursue the raiders across the Rio Grande and provoke a war with Mexico." The following extract from the leading editorial in President Grant's confidential organ in this city yesterday is very suggestive: "The United States government is bound to give help and protection to all its citizens, no matter how far away and isolated may be their settlements on the soil of the Republic; and such a protection will be fully extended to our countrymen inhabiting the borders of the Rio Grande. Even at a great expense the administration will know how to protect them. Besides, Mr. Mariscal will be the first to understand that if Mexico is unable, according to its own saying, to maintain peace and tranquillity in its Rio Grande provinces, and prevent the bandits of those provinces from raiding on American territory, it will be, in the end, cheaper for Mexico to get rid of those provinces and to turn them over to the United States."

Waterston of the Courier-Journal says: "The Columbia Enquirer says that we could not resign our position as editor of the Courier-Journal to marry Queen Victoria." That's true enough. But if the lady should trot out one of her big old gold bonnets and attempt to pass inside the bar, where the Attorney-General, Rivers Johnson, and other leading lights were sitting. One of the messengers

DISCOURTEOUS INSINUATIONS.

We venture to say that the correspondent of the Wilmington Star, who, in discussing the gauge question, sees fit to make some rather discourteous insinuations in regard to this paper, is himself indebted to the Observer for the use of its columns, courteously tendered him, through which to urge measures in the interest of a corporation of which he is perhaps a representative. If this suspicion is well founded the writer should remember that the newspaper correspondents of no rival corporation made any discourteous insinuations about the Observer at that time. The Observer is a self-supporting institution and gets its opinions ready made from no railroad grandee, or any body else. We do not profess to be infallible, but whatever we believe is for the interest of our section and our patrons we have the independence to advocate it. A newspaper that hesitates to express its honest opinions, whether right or wrong, through fear of an onslaught from the "ring smelters" has about as little independence as those owned by some ring.

NORFOLK AND OUR CENTENNIAL.

The celebration of the Mecklenburg Centennial is attracting considerable attention outside of our borders. The Legislature of Tennessee, at a recent session, and a large mass meeting in Nashville, Tennessee, have taken friendly action in behalf of that great commemoration, and the press in various parts of the country has spoken words of kind encouragement. Foremost among newspaper compliments we must mention the good things warmly said and meant by our neighbors over the Northern line. Richmond, Petersburg and Norfolk have vied in sympathy with the memorial. The latest of these "god-speeds" of the press is the following from our graceful friend, James Barrow Hope, of the Norfolk Landmark: "Our friends across the border are making grand preparations for the celebration of the 'Mecklenburg Centennial,' and we feel certain that with proper organization, this grand event can be celebrated in a becoming manner. At a recent meeting in Charlotte some very sensible measures were agreed on, and we are glad to respond to the call of the Committee who ask the 'editors of North Carolina' to aid in rousing public interest in the approaching celebration. We belong to North Carolina in sympathy and by reason of a large circulation within her borders, and therefore amplify the call of the Committee to aid in this in the good and noble work which North Carolina has undertaken to discharge. Among the resolutions adopted by the Executive Committee was one calling on the ladies of each city, town, county and neighborhood to unite in raising the call of the 'Centennial,' and we feel certain that with the generosity of their sex they will at once respond. When the fair daughters and noble matrons of the Old North State engage in this pious work, the sons of Carolina will be very slow to aid them, and there is every reason to hope that the approaching celebration will be worthy the event it is to commemorate, and the people whose history it adorns. And, feeling as we do, an unaffected interest in the success of Carolina's Centennial, we beg leave to suggest to our fellow townsmen who claim Carolina as their Mother State, that if in your power you would contribute to Norfolk to make a special contribution to the occasion. We are very closely bound to North Carolina by the ties of blood, affection, and common interest, geographically we are identified with her, and in the knowledge of the good things that she has to offer we wish to ask Norfolk to show her interest in Carolina's great holiday in a substantial manner.

In thanking our friends outside for all their handsome words and actions, let us resolve that they shall not come to us as regrets, in our own hearts. Let us make the best of it, and let us hope that the event it is to commemorate, and the people whose history it adorns. And, feeling as we do, an unaffected interest in the success of Carolina's Centennial, we beg leave to suggest to our fellow townsmen who claim Carolina as their Mother State, that if in your power you would contribute to Norfolk to make a special contribution to the occasion. We are very closely bound to North Carolina by the ties of blood, affection, and common interest, geographically we are identified with her, and in the knowledge of the good things that she has to offer we wish to ask Norfolk to show her interest in Carolina's great holiday in a substantial manner.

AN ACT TO ASCERTAIN THE INDEBTEDNESS OF THE DIFFERENT COUNTIES, CITIES AND TOWNS OF THIS STATE, AND TO PRESCRIBE A STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

The General Assembly of North Carolina do enact:

SECTION 1. That all claims against the several counties, cities and towns of this State, whether by bond or otherwise, shall be presented to the chairman of the Board of County Commissioners to the chief officer of said cities and towns, as the case may be, within two years after the date of such claim or claims or the holders of such claim or claims, shall be forever barred from a recovery thereof.

Provided, That claims which have already matured, and become due shall be presented on or before the first day of January, A. D. 1877, or the holders thereof shall be forever barred of a recovery thereof.

Section 2. That it shall be the duty of the chairman of the Board of County Commissioners of the several counties and of the chief officers of the several cities and towns, to cause the nature, amount, date and time of maturity of all claims so presented to be recorded in a book to be kept for that purpose and to be called "The Book of Claims," and that the names of the holders of such claim or claims, shall be forever barred from a recovery thereof.

Section 3. That it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to publish this act for six consecutive weeks in the Daily News, Evening Post, and Journal, published in the city of Wilmington; and in the Greensboro Patriot, published in the city of Greensboro; and in the Charlotte City and Country Gazette, published in the city of Charlotte, and to cause the same to be printed in the Official Gazette, published in the city of Raleigh, March 25th, 1875.

SECTION 4. That this act shall not apply to any county whose debts are already audited, and ascertained.

SECTION 5. That this act shall take effect from and after its ratification.

In General Assembly read three times and ratified the 17th day of March, A. D. 1875.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,

OFFICE SECRETARY OF STATE,

Raleigh, March 25th, 1875.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of the original act on file in this office.

stopped her and informed her that the special constable was outside the bar. She declined to retire, said she was a lawyer, and had as much business inside as anyone else. The altercation waxed quite warm, distracting the attention of the court. Finally the Marshal had to inform Belva if she did not retire she would be put out bodily. This had the desired effect, and the irate female marched off, vowing vengeance, and muttering what the women would do when they get their rights.

Tilton Convicted—Beecher Cleared.

The case is at length made out against Tilton, and of course he will be put in for the damages, and must pay Beecher a good round sum. When a man does as Beecher did, he must look to have himself supplanted in his wife's affections. Tilton being proved a scamp, Beecher comes out a saint; this being a case of now you see it and now you don't—chiefly the latter. The public has all along erred in supposing that Mr. Beecher is on trial. He is not; it is Tilton. Bessie Turner has put a spider in Theodore's dumping, and consequently he must step down and out, leaving Henry Ward master of the situation. What else could he have expected? The bedroom scene at Winsted was enough to cook his goose. But Beecher's revelations are conclusive, and glory be to Plymouth that there was a Bessie Turner to make the pastor an honest man again!

CRAPE ON THE BOOR.—Few people give themselves the trouble of inquiring into the origin of the custom of placing crape on the door of a house where there has been a recent death, and many suppose it is a local custom of recent introduction. It has evidently had its origin in the ancient heraldic customs of the Anglo-Saxon race, and is as old as the time of Henry II. of England, who reigned from A. D. 1100 to 1135. Even at that early period hatchments or armorial ensigns were placed in front of houses when the nobility and gentry died. These hatchments were of diamond shape, and contained the family arms, quartered and colored with sable, in such a manner that the spectator at a glance could tell what branch of the family was dead, whether the deceased was young or old, married or single, widow or widower.

EVOLUTION.—Here is a good point for the disciples of Darwin:

A Calvert City correspondent of the Panama News tells of a wonderful freak of nature: "George T. Jones, one of the first settlers in the Purchase and now eighty-seven years old, is the owner of a sow that on Tuesday night gave birth to nine pigs, each of which came into existence with a swallow-fork in the right ear and a crop and undulant in the left. This sow is the descendant of a stock of hogs owned by Mr. Jones for sixty-three years, and these pigs have exactly the mark of their ancestors for that period. This mark was recorded by the clerk for old man Jones at old Wadesboro more than fifty years ago. Old man Jones lives one-half mile from here, and takes great pleasure in showing this wonderful curiosity to his neighbors and visitors. More than a hundred have been there already."
