Dear Sir: I am much indebted to the Executive Committee for their courtesy in appointing me one of their Assistant Marshals of the Centennial Celebration.

If I can possibly make the arrangement, I will come up to the Centennial, for I have enough of North Carolina blood in me to make me feel proud of the event, and anxious to unite in its celebration.

Pray express to the Committee my appreciation of their kindness and believe me.

AMES ALEXANDER,

HILLSBORO, N. C., April 1st, 1875 W. Detroy, Key , Secretary Executive Committee.

Dear Sir: I have had the honor to receive your polite invitation to be present at the selebration of the 100th Anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, by the Committee of the people of Makenburg county, North Carolina, on the 20th day of May next; and will take great pleasure in attending.

I am, with high respect, your obedient servant, W. A. GRAHAM.

AN ADDRESS To the Citizens of Charlotte.

No eyent has transpired in the history of Charlotte, within the present century of so much importance, as the proper celebration of the Centennial Anniversary, which occurs on the 20th proximo. The committees appointed some time ago to prepare for the celebration, have been zealously at work. They have at the point where, the Committee of Ways and Means especially, must have substantial aid, as well as the encouragement of their fellow-citizens, and to that end, the city of Charlotte will be thoroughly canvassed at once, for subscriptions to that noble and patriotic It is useless to say now that the 20th of May, A. D. 1875, will witness the largest gathering that has ever taken place in North Carolina, because that is already apparent. It is useless to say that, upon the citizens of Charlotte will fall the burden of the expense in taking care of, and accommodating the vast multitude. We expect the county of Mecklenburg to come up to her fuul duty, (when did she ever do otherwise?) but Charlotte must have more of the expense in proportion, than any other community. It is perhaps right and proper that she should do so, but right or wrong, she must expect to do so. The outside world is waiting the action of Charlotte in this important matter, for upon her action, in a large degree, will depend the corresponding cooperation of the country at large.

Besides entertaining largely, the visitors on the occasion, it is expected that you will contribute liberally towards making the celebration a success, if for no other reason than the fact that whatever honor belongs to the event which we propose to celebrate, belongs first to the city of Charlotte. Then let every one, drawing the inspiration of patriotism from the soil upon which he treads, contribute as liberally as his means will allow to this worthy object. The signers of the original Declaration of Independence, proclaimed on the 20th May, 1775, were the representatives of the true sentiments of the people of old Mecklenburg, on that occasion. Every citizen of the whole community then was an equa participator in the glories of that great occa. sion. Then let every citizen of Charlotte act in this matter as if he felt, whether he was one of the descendants or not, that a certain amount of responsibility rested upon Disraeli says in Tancred that the people are not subdued or dead, who celebrate their festivals of the olden time.

Let us then in that spirit come up to the full measure of our duty. We feel great confidence and reliance on the liberality of the citizens of Charlotte. They have nobly done their duty in the past. Let there be no lagging now. The reputation of Charlotte is at stake in this matter. One thing is certain, if Charlotte does not come up to public expectation on this point, her reputation for liberality will not only suffer for it, but her justly earned reputation as a business centre, will not come off unscathed, Fellow-citizens, we summon you to your duty. Bp order of the Committee of Ways and CHAS. R. JONES.

COMMUNICATED. Word for the Present City Officers MESSES EDITORS: The approaching election has, as usual, called forth numerous communications mainly directed to the abuse of the present incumbents. It appears to me that much of this twaddle is uncalled for. Your correspondents seem to have one great hobby: Why are the streets so muddy? Why have not the present Mayor and Board of Aldermen had them macadamized?

Permit the writer to inquire why have not former boards had it done? I do not propose answering for them, but ! propose to say a word in regard to the pres ent board. On coming into office, they found no money in the Treasury, they also found a small bonded debt of about twenty five thousand dollars, and a floating debt of about the same amount, a considerable part of the latter debt drawing 11 per cent, in terest per month, and the city credit at zero. The writer is informed that the Chairman of the City Finance Committee had frequent conferences with numbers of the business men and bankers of the city, in regard to

of the city and its wants. The unanimous opinion of these gentlemen was that to restore the city credit was the first step to be taken, and that after this was done, improvements of the city the city finances, and the general condition

could then commence. I do not propose in this article to enter into details as to what has been done, but would simply state that a large part of the floating debt has been paid by the present board. Hereby stopping the 11 per cent. interest, and, in addition to the current expenses of the city, the present board has paid on contracts of the former boards, four thousand dollars for a new fire engine, four thousand for hose, seven hundred dollars for hose carriage, two thousand for cotton platform-total, eight thousand seven hundred dollars. They have also enforced 26th section of the charter which requires the Board to levy a tax to meet interest on onds at maturity.

There is no reason now why our city bonds should not be at par. A word now in regard to the streets, ery citizen of Charlotte knows the peculiar nature of our soil, either very muddy or very dusty. To remedy the former, it will be necessary to have more perfect drainage, and the streets macadamized, and the side walks paved, either with brick or wood. To do this work, the city must issue bonds, Hence the first consideration of the Board was to elevate the city credit, so that the bonds, when issued, could be negotiated at par. It would be consumate folly to improve the city in any way by the issuing and selling of bonds at fifty cents on the dollar. the present macadamizing can be widened

From estimates made. I feel confident that ten feet, and extended from the Mint to the Air Line Depot, and from the N. C. Railroad, on Trade street, to East boundry street, and from J. H. Carson's to Wm. Pegram's and from W. H. H. Gregory's, to the C. C. Depet, for about twenty thousand dollars, including the permanent fixing of water drains. The macadamizing of Coilege and Church streets grading the side walk, and puting them in good order, will cost about ten thousand dollars additional, these estimates do not include cut rock curbing. Two efforts have been made wthin the past eight months,, to get a city vote on the issuing of bonds, both very properly failed. I say properly failed for the reason that the low ebb of city credit did not then justify the issuing of bonds. It can be done within the present year, with propriety and safety.

I will close this article with a few remarks to those who reflect. 1st, The present Mayor and Board of Aldermen are not responsible for the condition of the streets. They did not cut them down from their natural grade, to the present red clay one. 2nd, Ten Boards have been in office since this was done, and they did nothing. I think it but fair that they should have the odium if there be any.

3rd, Does reasonable people expect a Board in one year to work wonders, without money or credit? 4th. It takes time for municipal bodies to restore lost credit, and it takes time to execute great works of improvements. 5th, The Board now have competent engineers making estimates of the cost of these much needed improvements, including water works, provided it may be found practicathe town creeks. 6th, The Mayor has no power in the matter of street improvement. The question is one entirely for the Aldermen.
