We are under the necessity of apologizing to some of our city readers for the failure to deliver the paper. The carriers are not allowed to sell any papers, and any failure to deliver the paper should be promptly reported to this office. Newsboys only are allowed to sell papers.

Missing the Observer.

A friend called into the office yesterday to say that there was no peace in his family when the OBSERVER failed to make its accustomed daily visit. We are always anxlous to deliver the paper to subscribers, but doubly so when it is likely to produce any unpleasantness. We shall look after this case, and in the meantime captain if it should occur again let us know.

Our Consolation.

We confidently expected, with the ticket which we had, to draw the Benbow House on Tuesday, and not doing so, set ourself sure for the $30,000 prize which was to be drawn Wednesday. Insurance Matters.

There are some half dozen representatives of different insurance comthe recent fire. If the losses of the 16th inst., are paid promptly, we are sure that it will not only be a good advertisement, but do more to aid the business of insurance, and to keep up the confidence of the people in such corporations than anything which could be done.

A Patriotic Pastime.

It is not often that duty and pleasure can be combined, but it happens so some times. The latest instance comes from our sister town of Lincolnton. The noble and patriotic ladies of that place determined to raise a handsome sum for the Centennial, so they gave a magnificent Fancy Dress Ball and supper Tuesday evening of this week, and the sum of one hundred dollars was realized. We cannot too highly commend the spirit of the Lincolnton ladies, and we hope their example will be followed by the ladies of all the towns of North Carolina. We should not forget, however, that the ladies of Lincolnton deserve the credit for having originated this model plan of combining duty and diversion. We are pleased to learn everything passed off pleasantly at the ball, and all went merry as a marriage bell. We are truly sorry that Charlotte was not represented at the ball. A movement was made in that direction, but too late for our ladies to make the necessary arrangement.

A Valuable Item-A Leaky Engine-Much Delay but a Good Time Withal,

Day before yesterday the train left Charlotte for Lincolnton on time. The leakage of the flues allowed the water to get into the fire-box to such an extent as to make it almost impossible to get up and keep steam sufficient to carry the train on time. The train finally reached Lincolnton about two hours behind time,

At half past four o'clock the engine was fired up for a return trip to Charlotte when the same old difficulty of leaky flues presented itself. Every four miles the engine would be stopped and the passengers, consisting of men, women and children, would gather up such fuel, pine knots, &c., as were accessible, to be used to feed the fires, to generate steam to get to Charlotte, the point of des-Matters progressed thusly until the train

Letter from Gov. Brogden,

We extract the following from a jelter written by the Governor to the Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, asking for tents to be used on the occasion of the Celebration :

NORTH CAROLINA EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, Raleigh, April 20th, 1875. Gen. John A. Young, Chairman Ways and

Means Centennial Committee. DEAR SIR: # * * * I hope that the thousands of visitors to the 'Hornet's Nest' of the Revolutionary War will not suffer for shelter on that interesting occasion, and that the Heavens may smile over them and make them

I am pleased to learn that the prospect for an immense gathering of the people at Charlotte, at the Centennial Celebration at that place is most favorable, and that thousands of citizens of other States will join the patriotic people of this State in that grand and glorious celebration. It is an event that calls for the unrestrained exhibition of our patriotism and State pride, and as we have preserved, bright and untarnished for one hundred years, the true principles of liberty, which were proclaimed by the patriots of Mecklenburg on the 20th of May, 1775, it will be an occasion for general con-gratulation, and on which the people may indeed "rejoice and be glad."

Hoping to have the pleasure of partici-pating in that glorious jubilee of freedom, and doing honor to the memory of those who pledged "their lives, their fortunes and heir most sacred honor, to maintain it."

Very respectfully, Your obedient servant, C. H. BROGDEN.

Letter from Dr. Pritchard, RALEIGH, N. C., April 20th, 1875. Mr. Thos. W. Dewey and others.

DEAR SIR: I was born in Charlotte-my randfather, Dr. Samuel Henderson, was an ntimate friend of Col. Tom Polk and John McNitt Alexander, and besides, as a native "Tar Heel," I feel a lively interest in the Mecklenburg Centennial. I have not been able to determine whether I could attend, and therefore, have not responded to your invitation at an earlier day. If I am not providentially hindered, I expect to be there, and hope to enjoy with as keen a zest as any one present, the festivities of that extraordinary occasion.

I am very truly, Yours, &c., T. B. PRITCHARD.

If the imperative, confining nature of my official duties did not prevent, nothing would afford me greater pleasure, than to assist you in the celebration on that day. As it is, I hope North Carolina will have such representatives from her sister States as to make the occasion not only National ism and virtue of our ancestors, but also as fraternal in its evidences of a common senti-

(COMMUNICATED.) LEXINGTON, N. C., April 21st, 1875.

Editors Dailg Observer, DEAR SIR: We came very near having a general jail delivery in our town this morning, about three o'clock A. M. The facts, as far as I have been able to learn, are as fol-

It seems that there were three negro prisoners confined in one room or cell, in the county jail, which cell is attached to the outer wall. All three of the parties were tried last week before His Honor Judge Cloud, and two of the number, Jo Mock and Sam Clark, were sentenced to the peniten-Mr. S. G. Johnson the traveling ag't tiary for five years each, and the other inmate, Alf Smith, was sent to the county jail for ninety days. The presumption is that they thought His Honor was a little too hard on them, and they determined to escape before the sentence of the Court could be carried into effect. Acting upon this idea, they, by some means, secured a small piece of iron-hoop from a wooden bucket, and with this small instrument, succeeded in removing brick enough from the main wall of the jail to make an opening, large enough for the smallest one of their number to escape through, but, unfortunately for the two who go to the State prison, the small man was Alf Smith, and, by means of his blankets for a rope, he succeeded in reaching "terra firma," but not so with the other two. They found the apperture too small to admit of their egress, but emboldened by the escape of their companion, they set to work with a will removing brick and mortar, thereby making considerable noise. This aroused one of the family who occupies the lower rooms of the jail. The alarm was speedily given, when the Sheriff and Jailor soon appeared upon the scene, thereby putting an end to their hopes of liberty for the present at least, by placing them in irons, and as soon as the next train passes, I have no doubt they will in the future reside in or near the "City of Oaks," thereby increasing the population of that already thriving in-
