The Usury Bill Case.

We mentioned in Saturday's paper, that, on that day an attorney would argue that the usury law of the last Legislature is unconstitutional as far as it was applicable to National Banks. Col T C Jones introduced the proposition, but made no elaborate argument on the subject. Judge Schenck reserved his decision in the case, promising to ren der it this week.

A Disclaimer, We beg to disclaim having inserted any-thing in this paper intended as a fling at the Charlotte Observes, and what the deuce our friends there are driving at when they shoot off a volcano of bile we can't understand. The writer was treated with every courtes; by his confreres there, and will ever recall his visit, with all its hard work, to that good-ly city, as something pleasant to remember. We didn't do it—you fellows have got some-

We simply misinterterpreted the meaning of the article in the Constitutionalist, and mistook for something worse what the writer intended only JB Franklin, for facetiousness. The following sentiment in the Democrat of yesterday, meets our hearty endorsement: "If the people of Charlotte want to build up the city and increase its proportions and business operations, they must pull together as one man, laying aside every personal feeling, and unite with those who have an interest in the welfare of the city and its business, and work together for the common good of all citizens. Who will re

Changes of Schedules, The schedule of the Air Line Railroad was changed on Sunday. The mail train now leaves Charlotte at 8:11 P. M., and arrives at 5:25 A. M.; the accommodation train

A change was also made vesterday in the schedule of the Western Division of the Carolina Central. The mail train leaves at A. M., and arrives at 3:20 P. M.

Baby Carriages.

There is certainly a conspiracy among the nurses in this city, to take all the skin off the legs of the natives, or else drive them into the streets. The manner in which these nurses assemble on the principal streets with the baby carriages, form three abreast and march over the pavement, chatting so pleasantly and having just the best sort of a time (while pedestrians step into of $5. the gutter till they pass, or else allow themselves to be run over and trod upon), is exasperating beyond all expression, and even as we write about it we grow red hot with righteous indignation.

We hope no one will construe this into an assault upon the babies; we have a feeling of "true inwardness" for the little things; and when they come along single file it is real pleasant to see them kick up their heels and cock up one eye at you, as much as to say, "stand aside till I pass;" but what we want to know is, have we no rights which nurses are bound to respect? If we haven't, then we'll walk in the middle of the streets all the balance of our life : if we have, and can find it out, then we intend to kill somebody. That is all. The jury may take the case.

W. C. Maffitt and Lady.

The esteem in which a man is held at his own home, where he was born and raised, is always the best criterion by which to judge his character. This is our only comment upon the following, which is from the Atlanta Herald, of Saturday :

The Charlotte OBSERVER says that "as the Air-Line train, carrying Mr. W. C. Maffitt and his bride, moved out from the depot yesterday morning, the whistles of all the engines in the yard were blown right lustily, in their honor, and continued blowing until the noise was lost by distance to the retiring train. As the train reached Garihaldi Station, where it meets and passes an incoming train, the whistles there were blown until the woods rang for miles and miles around. While the noise was rather calculated to deafen nervous people, the compliment of the salute was very graceful, showing as it did the esteem in which Mr Maffitt is held by the employes of the road, whose book-keeper he is in this city." The OBSERVER might have added that all the steam gongs of Charlotte, were they turned loose at one time, could not have complimented a nicer boy than Walter. He is an

Atlanta pet, and well known in this city. Both of the Atlanta dailies, the Constitution and the Herald, copy the OBSERVER'S acenterprise of that growing city, is now a count of the marriage of our young friends, welcome guest to our sanctum. The Junior | and the Constitution adds : "He and his fair had the pleasure of meeting the Editor and bride are in the city, the guests of B. B. Proprietor, Chas. R. Jones, on his recent Crew, Esq. We heartily endorse all said visit, and was indebted to him for various about the happy couple by the Charlotte
