Mitchell was knocked down and bled profusely, a deep gash having been cut in the side of his head. Policeman Blackwelder was informed of the difficulty and reported at once on the scene, but the assailant had fled, and could nowhere be found. Last evening, a short time after dark, two negroes went into the clothing store of J A Young & Son, on Trade street, and asked of Mr R F Stokes, who appeared to wait on them, to see some pants. After looking at several pairs, one of the negroes folded up a pair, and, putting it under his coat, started deliberately out. Mr Stokes spoke to him, just as he got to the door, and catching up a hatchet which laid on the floor, conveniently near, bade him halt. The negro spread both arms out wide, dropping the pants in doing so, and started to run. Mr Stokes hurled the hatchet at him and struck him airly in the back, knocking him down' Before he could reach him, however, the negro got on his feet and put off at a rapid rate toward the corner of Trade and Tryon streats. Mr S gave chase but failed to overtake the scoundrel. As he gave up the chase he turned and caught the other negro and gave him over to policeman Orr, who escorted him to the lock-up. He gave his name as Josh Williams; that of the escaped bird as Ed - . The pants were recovered. The affair created some excitement.

The Latest on the Centennial.

Hanover county. It appears that the inhabi-tants of the yillage the day before the 20th were preparing to have a slice of the Centennial served up on the following day. The rooster saw how things were going and sharpened up his spurs, flappped his wings, gave a crow, and took the train for Charlotte. The identical hen that laid the egg in question, was noticed strutting around the yard as if listening attentively to several spread-eagle speeches, with a decided disposition to hurrah for the Centennial The egg was laid shortly afterwards. The Manufacture of Cigars in Charlotte. while Messrs. J. M. Mendel &Co. are the pioneers in Charlotte, they now have the establishment of W. R. Cochrane in lively competition. Mr. Cochrane commenced his manufactory about two months ago, and by putting up good brands of cigars and selling them a little cheaper than they can be sold anywhere else outside of Charlotte, has succeeded in building up a good business. All the stock used is Connecticut seed leaf. pure imported Hayana, or Duck Island tobacco. From this stock he manufactures the "Indian Princess" cigar, which for flayor and quality is not equalled on this market. The "Charlotte Favorite" is another of his popular brands, and is much sought after by smokers. In addition to these Mr Cochrane is manufacturing a little Partaga Shades lighter and darker. Combings also cigar, and a brand known as "Planatilla,"

In this establishment ten skilled operatives are worked, and 2,000 cigars are turned out daily. Mr Cochrane's success, since embarking in this enterprise, has been very gratifying-almost remarkable; and this is because his goods are first-class, both as reumns. H Allen, was taken up by the police for having robbed the money drawer in the bar room of Mr J W McWhitter, on College room to get something or other for him, and while the negro was gone, heard something in there drop to the floor. He ran in and found the money drawer lying on the floor and the servant standing near to it. He was searched and it was found that he had stolen $2.50 in silver and a small but unknown amount in greenbacks. He was taken before Justice W F Davidson, who committed him to jail.

It has been stated in these columns that during the past week an encampment of Knights Templars was organized in this city.
