

That day of wrath, that dreadful day,
When heaven and earth shall pass away,
What power shall be the sinners' stay?
How shall he more that dreadful day,
When, shivering like a parched clay,
The flaming heavens together roll;
When louder yet, and yet more dreadful,
Swells the high trump that wakes the dead,
On that day of woe and of dismay,
When man to judgment wakes from clay,
Thou trembling sinner stay!
Though heaven and earth shall pass away,
Thou shalt be more that dreadful day.

RELIGIOUS READING.

Missions Pay.
In asking and pleading, as we do, for the means of carrying on foreign missionary operations, we are seeking the surest and most effectual recommendation and well being of all nations from these missionary labors are performed and the word of God is brought in any way to operate.

A very striking illustration is just given in the Honolulu Friend, a paper published in the Sandwich Islands. For many years before 1855 the Islands of Micronesia, in the Southern Ocean, were terribly proverbial for the degradation and savage character of their inhabitants. Time and again the unfortunate crews of ships that fell into their hands were massacred, and every thing showed how fearful and the dark places of the earth are of the habitations of cruelty. But a change has taken place. In 1855 a Micronesian Mission, it was founded, with an undertaking. Devoted Christians from the Sandwich Islands and elsewhere, bore the Bible to those islands, and began faithful and earnest Christian work. Time has passed on and now, in the twenty years that have elapsed, never has a single case of the treachery, bloodshed and cruelty that had marked the long past occurred on any of these islands. In the single exception of one case in the whole group, where no missionary has yet set one, and where the Bible and the Holy Spirit accompanying it, have never been sent.

What a call there is in a fact like this to have the Gospel sent abroad and read and taught and preached as the true reformer of the world and as the great means of elevating and making happy the race. Will not Christians manifest their love for their fellow men, all who have the real meaning of mankind, give their prayers and their means for the missionary cause, that has this great object so largely in view. —Christian Instructor.

TRUTH.—It will be acknowledged, even by those who practise it not, that clear and round dealing is the honor of man's nature, and that mixture of falsehood is like alloy in a coin of gold and silver, which may make the metal work the better, but it embases it. For these winding and crooked acquisitions are the going to the serpent; and he goeth based upon the belly, and not upon the feet. There is no vice that doth so cover a man with shame, as to be found false and perfidious; and therefore Montaigne saith prettily, when he inquired the reason why the word of the lie should be such a disgrace, and such an odious charge; saith, "If it be well weighed, to say that a man lieth, is as much as to say that he is brutish and a coward toward men; for he lies like God, and shrinks from man."
