But shooting is all the rage these evenings. The first of the agents of Howe's Circus, arrived in the city yesterday morning.

Howe's circus will be here on the 10th of October—two days after Cole's. It is a London show and is said to be just tip top.

The residents on Sixth street were serenaded on Monday night by a party of nine young ladies, one of whom played a guitar.

The Knights of Constantine (new style) will have an entertainment and supper to-night, but none except "Regulars" will be admitted.

The memory of the olden inhabitant raneth not back to the time when there was any less news in this corporation, than there was yesterday.

Yesterday was a variable day, alternating between sunshine, shadow and showers. The evening was damp and dismal, and at night the rain poured in torrents at intervals.

The stores of our Jewish fellow-citizens will be closed this evening at dusk, and remain closed until the same time Thursday evening, in observance of the Jewish new year.

Protracted Meeting. A protracted meeting is in progress at Tryon Street Methodist E Church, under the ministrations of the pastor, Rev. P. J. Carraway. Service was held yesterday afternoon, and will hereafter be held at 7 1/2 o'clock P. M.

Personal. Capt. W. H. Green arrived at the Central Hotel, last night.

J. M. Justice, member of the Convention from Rutherford, passed through the city yesterday morning, on his way home, to attend Court which is in session at Rutherfordton this week.

Second Presbyterian Church. It is understood that Rev. W. S. Plummer, D. D., of Columbia, S. C., will officiate at the dedication of the Second Presbyterian Church when that structure is ready to be occupied. Dr. P. gained the love of this congregation to a remarkable degree, while preaching to it before it secured a regular pastor.

A Question for Debate. The question now disturbing certain circles in this city, is: which will go the furthest, $2 worth of wood or $2 worth of whiskey. You don't have to have it chopped up, and don't lose anything in chips. Besides, on $2 worth of whiskey a fellow can get stone blind and never know or care whether it is warm or cold.

Meeting of Creditors. The creditors of the Bank of Mecklenburg will hold a meeting in this city on the 23d of October, to appoint a receiver for the Bank of Mecklenburg. The counsel for the creditors and for the Bank, have agreed upon Col. E. A. Osborne, of this city, as receiver, but the question can only be decided by the creditors of the institution.

The Courts. MAYOR'S COURT.—Isaac Bronson, colored for making a disturbance. Fined $5 and cost, in default of which he will do 10 days' work on the streets. There were two other cases, but nothing could be made out of either, and they were dismissed.

BEFORE JUSTICE MCNICH.—Julius Huston, colored, and Jane Pierce, white for fornication and adultery. Bound over to Court.

Cheap Boots and Shoes. Messrs Geo. R. French & Sons, who conduct an extensive boot and shoe business in Wilmington, write to us forwarding an advertisement, and in the course of their letter make use of the following language: "We have on hand the best stock of boots and shoes south of New York, all first quality goods, and we are now offering them at less prices than the same grade of goods can be bought in any Northern jobbing house. We are determined upon giving the people of our State and your section a fair trial to patronize a home market rather than send their money without the State. We mean to do just what we say, and will hand our check for $150 to any party to whom we fall to supply goods at New York prices, same quality and style of goods."

The Feast of Rosh Hashana. On this evening, September 29th, at sunset, our fellow-citizens of the Hebrew faith will, in conjunction with all Israelites scattered over the globe, repair to their respective places of worship to commence the celebration of Rosh Hashana—i. e., the civil new year 5736 of the creation of the world. An interesting feature of the service, is the blowing of Shofar in the morning of the first and second day of the seventh month of Tishri, as commanded in the Pentateuch; corresponding this year with the 30th of September and 1st of October. The solemnities of the feast are greatly enhanced on these days, by the fact that Israelites, who, though very lax and indifferent in the observance of Jewish precepts and customs through the whole year, join with their more faithful brethren in faith, in strictly abstaining from all secular labor on these days of spiritual reflection. The activity now prevailing in Jewish households, as well as by congregational officials, gives ample proof of how sincerely and zealously they try to perform their obligations to their religious duties. For the information of the public we wish also to state, that while Israelites of other countries, as well as the Holy Land, strictly observe the traditional two days, Rosh Hashana, the so-called progressive or reform congregations of this country, keep but one day.

Lecture Postponed.

In consequence of the inclemency of last evening, it was deemed best to postpone Gov. Vance's lecture on "The Demagogue," the doors at the Opera House, and were therefore not opened. Many persons who would otherwise have gone, were deterred by the weather, and the postponement was very proper. The lecture will be delivered on Thursday evening, and we beg our people to bear it in mind.

The Matter of Credit. "Sister Em(ely)n(e), sister Em(ely)n(e). Can't you dance the peavine?" Sister Em(ely)n(e) of the Columbia Register, took it up very quickly when we went for the newspapers who steal everything they publish, that is of any account, and then when we went for her, she says she never city-peavining from our columns. Well, what in the dence did you ever take it up for, if it isn't your fight? That dodge won't do though. If the sister's memory were as good as her scissors, she wouldn't have said that. If we had her files we could easily find numbers of her "original" locals which are of our getting off. Em(ely)n(e) don't help her cause much by reference to the Jewish festival item or to the advertisement or trade locals. These things are considered staple the world over, and Em(ely)n(e) has "done gone" and get clear away from the point.

What gets away with us, though worst of all, is her feeling so much aggrieved at the discharge of a shot which she says didn't fall in her vicinity at all.

The Striped Tent. The Raleigh News is mistaken if it thinks to surpass us in illustrations. We won't be surpassed, and the News mistakes our means, our enterprise, and the skill of our special artist, if it supposes for a moment that we will be second to it in this matter of representations. The last issue of that paper contained a picture of the art gallery at the Philadelphia Centennial. In order to be up to the times, we have secured an illustration of the next best thing to stop at, after the Centennial, viz: Woodson's striped tent and the Illustrated Age is hereby warned against infringement upon the copy-right. The expense of this engraving has been very great, but we are determined that our readers shall see

THE STRIPED TENT.

The Collapsed Kit Carson Troupe. The Raleigh News, speaking of Kit Carson, who was to have been here on Monday night, says: "We know sufficiently well he did not reach Raleigh, at least our advertising bill stands unrecipited, our dead-head tickets unused, and Tucker Hall was indeed a deserted mansion on Friday and Saturday nights."

That's what's the matter up here—particularly the ticket part. If there is any one thing that does just this thing of having dead-head tickets thrown useless on our hands. We feel singularly injured when this is the case. If one pays for them and then the show don't come, he feels privileged to get mad, and curse, and "take on;" but when he is a dead-head he hasn't got any right to do these things; and though he can feel as much "true inwardness" as the next one, and a little more, he can't say anything, but just has to keep quiet and let his suppressed emotions, like a wurrin, feed on his damaged check.

Meeting of the Board of Aldermen. The Board met, yesterday afternoon, at the hall over the Market, and had an uninteresting session. There was no business of general interest.

A claim made by A. B. Davidson for damage to his property by the widening of Third street, was not allowed.

A claim made by Rufus Reid for damage done his property by work on Mint street, was not allowed.

I. H. McGinn was allowed $100 for damage done his property.

The question of making a new crossing for Tryon street, opposite Tryon Street M. E. Church, was postponed until later in the session.

The application of P. E. Nimo, for license to retail liquor on College street from the present time until next February was postponed.

The license of C. C. Horton to retail liquor on Tryon street, was allowed to be transferred to O. W. Badger.

An application of Bennett Barnes to retail spirits just outside the corporate limits, on the Carolina Central Railroad, was refused.

An application to increase the pay of the police, was laid on the table.

A claim of J. Trotter, guardian, for injury done property on Sixth street, was referred to the Mayor, to examine a report of a commission appointed by the court in a similar case.

An agreement made by the Mayor with Jones & Johnston, attorneys, in regard to the payment of, past-due bonds and coupons, was ratified.

The question of retailing beef in the corporate limits, was postponed to an other time.

Description of the New Jail.

On yesterday this reporter made a thorough examination of the new jail. The finishing touches have been put on; the work is at last entirely completed, and to-day, or at furthest to-morrow, the prisoners will be transferred. The exterior of the building is very handsome, resembling at a distance a gray stone structure. The site was purchased of Messrs. W. R. Cochrane and S. M. Timmons, for $1000. The lot is situated on Mint street, bounded on the North by Third, and when the excavation was proceeded with, good clay was found for the footing, and excellent advantages for perfect drainage. But it is more particularly of the interior of the structure that we would speak, and to this we proceed.

The building is of rectangular form and is 42 feet wide and 67.8 long, having the front portion to a depth of 17.4, devoted to the use of Sheriff, and 42 feet by 50.4, forms the prisoners' quarters.

The keeper's house comprises a basement having a kitchen furnished with sink and water faucet, and a dumb-waiter to the dining room, also a furnace room with hot air portable furnace, to heat the jail. This basement will always be cool in the summer for storing provisions, and warm and dry in winter by reason of the furnace exhausting the air and drawing in a fresh supply. The ground floor has a parlor, and a dining room which has two closets and the dumb-waiter from the kitchen. The second floor staircase is guarded by an iron door, for the protection of the keeper at night against attack from accomplices of prisoners from the outside. There are two commodious bedrooms on the second floor, and a bath room, with bath tub, and W. C. supplied with water from tank. In each room on this floor is a window, guarded by wrought iron bars, commanding a view of all the cell doors, so that any unusual noise in the jail would at once awaken the keeper and bring him to a good point of observation. The third floor has two bedrooms, and on the landing is a trap, with a step ladder, to roof and to the tank over cells.

The jail proper is an entirely fire proof building with outer walls 2 feet, or 3 bricks in thickness, and inner walls forming the cells 2 feet thick of selected hard bricks laid in cement in English bond, that is, one course "headers" and one "stretchers" alternately. The cells form a distinct block of buildings, leaving a walk eight feet wide, and is entered by a passage having two heavy doors, (hereafter described). Four of the cells on the ground floor are built of granite in blocks 2 feet wide and one foot longer than the cells. Each block being anchored with two 1 inch wrought iron anchors, so that removal is impossible. The remainder of the cells are of brick-work, and all are arched over with brick on edge in cement, to a thickness of two feet. On the arches sand is put to make a level surface to receive the paving, which is composed of pine plank coated both sides with tar and laid cross-wise, on which is laid oak blocks four inches wide, nine inches long and four inches thick. These blocks are dipped into hot tar and laid with the fibre perpendicular, and afterwards tar is poured over the top of the paving to fill all joints. This paving is adopted with a view of having a floor that is warmer than brick or stone, difficult to cut through, and at the same time, affording no refuge for vermin. The walk or court yard previously alluded to, is paved in a similar manner, having a gutter running all around to a sink connecting with the main drain. The second and third floors are approached by wrought iron stairs and balconies, supported on brackets built into the walls. The frames are of wrought iron, 2 inches by 1 1/2 inch, having eight 1 inch anchors running one foot into the walls, and the doors are of perpendicular and horizontal wrought iron bars 2 inches by 3, spaced 2 inches apart and riveted at every crossing, with 3 bolts, tapped in while red hot. The lock band horns round the brick work to staples, beyond the reach of tools in the hands of a prisoner, and is secured by a heavy 10 tumbler, Scandinavian jail lock. In the outer walls are thirty window openings, 7 inches wide and 4 feet long, guarded by inch perpendicular wrought iron bars running through three cross bars, all of which extend one foot into the brick work; the frames are fitted with hinged sashes. In the ceiling of the court yard are four skylight openings, 3 feet by 6 feet, having iron bars, affording free egress of air from the jail.

The roof (which covers the entire building at the same level) is strongly framed with twisted principals, &c., and is covered with the best slate, and the gutter running round parapets, which is of the heaviest quality of tin, has two 8 inch pipes connecting with the tank.

The water works are complete and ample for all emergencies. They comprise a tank 5 feet wide, 34 feet long and 2 feet 6 inches high, capable of holding nearly 3000 gallons of water, which supplies each cell, two faucets in court yard, and all superfluous water and wash passes through drain pipes. There are three pipes and cocks in the yard which supply water to the three tiers of cells and a powerful force pump supplies water from the well to the tank and to every faucet. A hose 75 feet long with brass nozzle is furnished to connect with pump or to supply from tank for the purpose of cleansing cells, yard, &c. In this department of the work the services of a practical plumber of great experience were secured, and the whole has been executed in the most substantial and perfect manner.

Gas pipes are laid throughout the building although at present there is no gas pipe running near.

Throughout the work has been well and faithfully done, and the efforts to have a building absolutely secure, and at the same time one that affords all the requirements for the health of the prisoners, have been achieved. The credit for the general execution of this structure, is due to our talented young architect, Mr. Geo. Welch, and of the justly proud, He has done the work according to his own ideas, without interference from any one, and has done it well. It reflects the highest credit upon him, and is a monument to his skill as an architect. There is no other such jail building in North Carolina, and in saying that, Mr. Welch is entitled to the praise, is giving him only simple justice. The others engaged upon it, those who executed his plans and followed his directions, are also entitled to credit, for

Meeting of Executive Committee.

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of Davidson College, will meet at that place to-day, to take action regarding the recently tendered resignation of Prof. Wm. M. Thornton. Rev. J. Ruple, of Salisbury, Rev. J. McKinnon, of Concord, and Rev. Jacob Doll, of Yanceyville, members of this Committee, arrived in this city last night, and go up to Davidson this morning.

A Sweet Brace.

He was a tramp, and nobody knew where he came from, or cared. He was going around town yesterday morning saying "there wasn't a white man in Charlotte; that if you want to see white men you have to go to the North." In the afternoon he and a companion of his were the observed of all observers on Tryon street, for they sat in front of Jefferson & Gordon's barber shop at the Charlotte Hotel, directly opposite each other, one leaning against the house and the other against a post on the outside of the pavement, and both stone blind drunk and sound asleep. Neither was able to move, and there they "laid around," till late in the evening, "in a frightfully disolute state." And that's what sort of "white men" they are.
